Eagleville Eye Clinic Announces Grand Opening Celebration

BY MELISSA BUCHANAN

Join Dr. Rena Cron and her staff for the Grand Opening Celebration of the new Eagleville Eye Clinic at 355 South Main Street, just south of the downtown Eagleville area and only steps away from its former location inside the Eagleville Medical Clinic.

Enjoy refreshments, balloons, door prizes, and other promotions and giveaways Friday, April 16th, 2010 from 1pm-5pm. Also, be sure to check out the clinic's newly expanded frame inventory from designers such as Vera Bradley, Bongo, Candies, bebe, and Nicole Miller just to name a few. And for those of you interested in contacts, the new eye clinic has got you covered with the latest offerings in contact lens wear.

March 16th, 2010 marked a special day for the Eagleville Eye Clinic, as Dr. Rena R. Cron, who is also entering her 20th year of practice, officially opened the doors to a new 4,000 sq. ft. location, complete with separate space and entrance for another professional business or medical practice in the near future.

The Eagleville Eye Clinic is a family practice, providing primary care for a patient of any age. "Our new exam equipment provides for better and easier testing of small children," added Dr. Cron.

The clinic also offers co-management of Cataract and Lasik surgery and although Dr. Cron does not

NOTE

The Eagleville Times published a paid advertisement (article) last month, indicating that Mayor Tune had made statements that were totally false and incorrect.

In one instance, the article states that the Mayor signed a contract on Feb. 9, without a public vote of the city council, for SEC to move forward on Task Order 2.

(The minutes of Jan. 29, 2010 reads, "After further discussion on Task order submitted by SEC, and that is would begin the preliminary for Task 2, a roll call vote taken by City Recorder Colleen Adams and the motion passed 6-1, with Councilwoman Donna Jensen voting "no".)

A Message From Your Mayor

Eagleville has many positive events taking place. It appears spring is finally here, flowers are blooming, grass is being cut, our city park is being invaded with ball teams all preparing for a championship season.

Dr. Cron has her new eye clinic open, Sewell's Family Grocery is planned to open April 12th. The Bread & Jam has expanded; they have remodeled and acquired the building adjoining them for more capacity with a new restaurant with a commercial kitchen to better serve their customers. New highway 99 is ahead of schedule. This long overdue project will provide better excess to our city with a safer highway.

The City of Eagleville has a new city recorder, Amy Von Almen. Amy brings many years of professional office management to our city and is a resident of Eagleville. Several people applied for the opening. The personnel committee had a tremendous task of recommending to the city council the person who they thought would be best of our city. I personally want to thank all of those who applied for the job. Their application will remain on file for future potential openings.

I would like to take this last opportunity to thank Ms. Colleen Adams for the service she provided for our citizens and wish her continued success with her new career.

Maybe the most important event this spring will be Eagleville Senior Class Graduation. Hopefully parents, educators and our citizens have helped to prepare these young adults for their journey through life. As we all know too well, life has no guarantees and is full of challenges, but as well, life is full of opportunities.

My only advice to these seniors is, life is what you make out of it, you are responsible for yourself. Don't expect someone to take care of you. One last thought for the new graduates to remember, THERE ARE TWO TYPES OF BRIDGES, THE ONES YOU BURN AND THE ONES YOU CROSS. It is entirely up to you what you make out of your life.

Also, it is very important that every person be counted in the census report. Please be counted and make sure everyone you know is counted. This is important for Eagleville and Rutherford County in order to receive federal funding. Each person who is not counted will cost us money. What an easy way to make money for your city; just be counted.

As always, shop locally, support all you local businesses, attend as many city meetings as possible. Please accept my personal invitation to attend each city council and planning meeting. They are listed on the city website or feel free to call City Hall.

If I can be of any assistance, call me on my personal cell number at 849-6509.

A Step Back in Time

By Bobbie Sue Shelton-Lonas

The following article about our hometown, Eagleville, was located in an old "Home Journal" publication, a subsidiary of an early county newspaper. The author is unknown.

ONE OF THE THRIVING TOWNS OF RUTHERFORD COUNTY.

As the crow flies, Eagleville lies 18 miles northwest of Murfreesboro. In this instance, the crow is J. W. Elmore, who for twenty-six years has driven the stagecoach between Murfreesboro and Eagleville. Every man, woman and child between these two points, knows Mr. Elmore. He was quite a young man when he began his service on this line. Now, even after twenty-six years, although somewhat stiff and somewhat bald and somewhat grizzled, he is still young in spirit and is as cheery and merry and withal as accommodating as in the morning of his journey. (See additional family information on Mr. James William Elmore, at the end of this article.)*

Eagleville does not enjoy the modern luxury of a railroad. Several times, the iron horse has threatened to invade this territory, but something has always intervened to prevent. It would almost be a pity should such an enterprise were eventuate. To be sure things in that event would take on a little more haste and a little more hustle, but then too the old-fashion courtesy and comfortable hospitality and genuine social contact of neighborhood life would largely disappear and a bald commercialism would take their place.

You may just write it down, that a railroad is not essential to human happiness. Neither do brick and mortar make a paradise. The real happiness comes from within and not without, and we are masters of our own destiny. There is a picturesque charm in an inland village that cannot be found in the larger centers. Where else can you find such kind hearts, such loyal natures, such wholesome examples of Christian plenty; such downy beds; such puffy biscuits; such delicious honey; such candid peaches. As we write the memory of Mrs. Dryden's cookery, it comes over our mind and we would wish we were again in Eagleville.

The first settlement in the neighborhood of Eagleville was made in 1790. Among the pioneer settlement were William and Thomas Jordan, Henry Ridley, James Shepherd, Robert Donaldson, James Neal, Daniel and Ab Scales, John Guy, Robert Wilson, James Gillespie, Joe Carson, and George and Albert White. By reason of its geographical location, the place has always been an important trading center.

It is the crossing of the Murfreesboro, Nashville and Shelbyville pikes, only a few hours drive from each place, and is the center of a fine area of rich farming country. It is one corner of Rutherford County, about equal distance from the county lines of Williamson, Bedford and Marshall Counties. Through it, flows a varied overland travel, and its citizens are busy, prosperous and happy.

Today, Eagleville has a population of about four hundred souls. It is one of the cleanest communities, morally and physically, that may be found anywhere. Life is lived on a high plane. The church and school life, vitally affect the town and community. From them, radiate educational and spiritual influences that show forth in the practical everyday life of the people. In all the essentials that go to make good citizenship, Eagleville is in the front ranks. There is no dissipation, no blasphemy, no horseplay, no wasting of life's forces. The people are earnest and conscientious, have a firm grip on life, and live it with unvarying fidelity to high ideals.

The Town has four dry goods, two groceries, two hardware, one furniture, two undertaking and one vehicle establishment. There are also one livery stable, one saw and planning mill, one flouring mill, one tobacco factory, one grain and feed store and several iron and wood-working establishments.

The Bank of Eagleville furnishes the people with a repository for their circulating medium. It has a paid-up capital of $10,000. According to its last statement, its deposits aggregated nearly $50,000, and its surplus amounted to $3,654.36. Its officers are J. C. Williams President; U. J. Owen Vice President; A. B. Robertson Cashier; and D. H. Hughes second Vice President. This bank is in a flourishing condition and the stock cannot be bought for _____unreadable).

The town has three churches, as follows; Missionary Baptist- Rev. N. B. Williams, Pastor; Primitive Baptist - Rev. J. K. Womack Pastor; Christian Church - No resident Pastor at present. Besides these, there is a colored church of the Missionary Baptist at which Rev. Allen Brown is Pastor.

At present, Eagleville has but one hotel operated by Mrs. E. R. Dryden. This lady runs an excellent hostelry. The food is tempting and appetizing and the beds are fit for the nuptial couch of Venus and Agonist. And if you don't believe it, go try it for yourself.

Three doctors look after the health of the community. Drs. S. S. Duggan, E. L. Williams and J. R. Moon. They are a fine looking trio of professional men and play an important part in the physical and moral economy of the community.

The biggest and most important single industry viewed in dollar and cents is the Eagleville Tobacco Works, manufacturers of twist and smoking tobacco. Mr. U. R. Owen is sole proprietor of the tobacco works. It is well worth knowing this gentleman. He is a self-made man, modest and unassuming, but public spirited and progressive. Mr. Owen is a native of Williamson County. He was quite a youth when the Civil War broke out and the days of reconstruction found him in the formative period of his life, wrestling with the adverse forces of nature, for a bare subsistence. He had been deprived of early school facilities and was illy equipped for the battle of life. However, nature had given him indomitable perseverance and he slowly made headway. In 1890 he established a small tobacco factory at Allisona, Williamson County and in 1902 moved to Eagleville and invested $700, all he had in the world, in his present business.

It is remarkable to note what this one man has accomplished since 1902. He built a large three-story factory, a handsome residence, barns, and out buildings and has bought a valuable farm in the edge of Eagleville. As he, himself, said, the struggle was hard and keen for many years, but the turning point was reached in 1902 and now things are coming his way. Dame Fortune is a fickle jade, but he who woos her with a bold and masterful hand, will bring her fawning at his feet.

This year the volume of business done by Mr. Owen will exceed $20,000. In 1902, it was only $3,000. This rapid increase in the business is due to the superior quality of the goods marketed, by this factory and this in turn is due to the careful personal supervision given every detail of the business by Mr. Owen. Of course tobacco is a luxury and many people think it a useless and pernicious habit, yet there are others and they are greatly in the majority, whose personal habits include the use of tobacco in some form or other and this class is interested in knowing where they can secure the purest and best wares.

Some man once said, "If you are a ditch digger, be a good one; be the best ditch digger going. In other words, what ever you do, do with all your might; do it as if it were the only thing on earth to be done.

This is the way Mr. Owen makes tobacco. He clearly supervises every detail, and can make a full hand in any department. He does not sacrifice quality for quantity, but his goods are at all times kept up to a high standard of excellence. And so he is pushing ahead, holding by merit what is gained and steadily widening his field of operations. Today his wares go into Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, Oklahoma, Arizona, Kansas, Illinois and Texas. His smoking tobaccos are very popular in Murfreesboro.

The "Select Popular" leads all the others in extent of sales although Mr. Owens special pride is a comparatively new brand call "Brazila". This brand is becoming very popular for export. It is the result of twenty years of experiment on the part of Mr. Owen and he assures the lover of the fragrant weed that in this smoking tobacco he will find the maximum of quality with the minimum of price.

"Q" and "Standish" twist are the leading brands of chewing tobacco. No better twists are made than these brands and the painstaking care with which they are made is a guarantee of their high standard of excellence.

The best should always come last; and we can do no better in closing this article than by telling the reader something about the Eagleville School. This is a training school for boys and girls. It is not strictly speaking a commercial asset of Eagleville; yet it is by far the biggest and best thing in the town and in this whole section of country.

Thought is the most potential force in the universe and this is a thought factory. Here boys and girls are molded and developed for the future citizenship, true it is that the schools of our country, public and private determine the status of our country and this is in a large measure true, spiritually, as well as intellectually and ethically. Eagleville has always recognized the importance of good schools and during a long and varied history, has never lost sight of the fact, that the best equipment for the battle of life is good, sound mental training, developing in unison, head, soul and body; and it is safe to say that at no time in her history has she come as near realizing her ideal as at the present time. The present principal of the Eagleville School is John W. Williams. Mr. Williams is a familiar figure in the educational circles of Rutherford County and the state at large. He is yet a young man on the shady side of forty, and is earnest ambitious, aggressive and optimistic. It is his life work and into it he is putting his best thought and energy. He, too, believes, as does Mr. Owen, that the best and only way to successfully do a thing do it well. One manufactures tobacco and the other, though both put into their work, a high order of efficiency, and there in, lies their success.

The faculty of the Eagleville School for the year 1905-06 consists of John W. Williams, Principal, Mathematics, English and Commercial Law; J. W. Journey, Assistant Principal, Latin and the Sciences; Miss Regina C. Cowdick, Primary Department; Mrs. John W. Williams, Department of Music. The Board of Trustees is; Wm. A. Bailey President; J. C. Williams Secretary;

The Stagecoach-Hack that traveled to and from Murfreesboro to Eagleville in the early 1900's.

U. J. Owen, R. T. Russell, J. H. Hay, D. M. Hughes and Rev. J. E. Sullivan; Board of Directors D. H. Hughes Chairman; S. M. Williams, Clerk and A. J. Simms.

The school is non-denominational, although it's every department is permeated with the Spirit of Christian culture. The building is a commodious frame with seven rooms, divided into primary and intermediate rooms, recitation room, music room, library room and cloak and hat room. The rooms are well lighted and comfortably heated. The library is probably the best of the kind in the country, comprising about 500 volumes. In enlarging its capacity and, the Board of Trustees has expended more than $500 on this school, in the past two years.

The day and night we spent in Eagleville lingers. This fair village nestling at the foothills of old Williamson was pleasant to behold. At her feet spread out the broad and fertile acres that pour tribute into her lap. The air was full of springtime redolent with the perfume of orchard and garden and earth and sky. Nature wore her loviest garb and her handmaidens, sang their sweetest song. It was an arcadia, a nocturne of melody and peace and contentment and through it all ran the quiet hum of human activity tuned to nature's sweetest chords.

*Mr. James William Elmore, the Eagleville to Murfreesboro hack driver, (b. 1852 d. 1932), was the son of David Atha and Elizabeth Ellen White Elmore. David Atha Elmore was a stonemason, a producer and engraver of tombstones and other stoneware. He and his wife died within hours of each other in 1900. They had a double funeral at the Eagleville Baptist Church and are buried in a double grave in the Elmore Cemetery near Rover.

Mr. James W. Elmore married Catherine Knott and lived on Bunker Hill Road, later living on highway 99 near the Eagleville School. He first drove a hack transporting passengers to and from Shelbyville but later drove the Eagleville - Murfreesboro route. It's reported that he sounded his bugle upon approaching stops to summon the people. Children of James W. and Catherine Elmore; Anna Virginia "Mollie" Elmore, who married Richard Greenberry Hay; Addie Hill Elmore; Emma Elmore who married Jones Floyd; Pearl Elmore married 1st James Christopher and later Thomas L. Pope and Willie Elmore who married John Black.

Got the Jitters?

Everywhere I go these days, I seem to be running in a rat race at full speed in a futile attempt to make the most out of every minute of my day. Sometimes I feel as though the faster I go the further behind I fall as time disappears right before my eyes. In conversations with friends and colleagues, it seems as though everyone is running in the same race, and we all struggle with the time constraints of career and family as we are caught in the perpetual motion of life. Instead of saying "no" to one more commitment, one more phone call or e-mail, we look for ways to pack in just one more task or errand.

So, many of us reach for a cup of joe, a soft drink, or an energy drink in hope that it will stimulate our thinking and give us that needed boost of energy to keep us on track as we say

"yes" to another task and scramble to get the kids to the next event. However, have we taken the time to examine how much caffeine we are consuming and the effect it has, not only on our bodies, but on our time?

How big is our addiction to caffeine? Red Bull® was introduced to the U.S. market in 1997 as the first "energy drink" and remains the market leader with approximately a 65% market share. Energy drinks are not the only source of caffeine, but it seems as though we are adding caffeine to everything from chewing gum to super extreme energy drinks. According to the ResearchWikis Web site (www.researchwikis.com), here are a few comparisons of some popular products and their caffeine content in milligrams (mg) per 12 ounces: Coca-Cola (34), Pepsi (37), Dr. Pepper (41), Mountain Dew (55), Red Bull (120), and Starbucks Coffee (194).

A moderate amount of caffeine is considered to be 200 to 300 mg per day or about two to three cups of brewed coffee per day. Moderate amounts of caffeine intake are not likely to cause most people any harm; consuming too much (500 to 600 mg per day) can cause noticeable effects such as irritability, restlessness /nervousness, rapid or irregular heartbeats, headaches, anxiety, muscle tremors, nausea, and insomnia. Excessive caffeine consumption can lead to caffeine intoxication with symptoms similar to alcohol intoxication. In some people, however, even small amounts of caffeine can cause effects such as anxiety and sleep interruptions.

Getting control of your caffeine habit can be quite a challenge because trying to stop suddenly may cause withdrawal symptoms such as irritability, nervousness, fatigue, and headaches. The good news is that these symptoms usually go away within a few days. To change your caffeine consumption more gradually, the Mayo Clinic suggests the following tips:

- Keep tabs: Start paying attention to how much caffeine you're getting from foods and beverages. It may be more than you think. Read labels carefully. Even then, your estimate may be a little low because not all foods list caffeine; chocolate, which has a small amount, does not.

- Cut back: But do it gradually. For example, drink one less can of soda or drink a smaller cup of coffee each day. This will help your body get used to the lower levels of caffeine and thereby lessen the withdrawal effects.

- Go decaf: Most decaffeinated beverages look and taste the same as their caffeinated counterparts.

- Make it quick or herbal: When making tea, brew it for less time—this cuts down on its caffeine content. Or choose herbal teas, which don't contain the stimulant.

- Check the bottle: Some over-the-counter pain relievers contain caffeine—as much as 130 mg of caffeine in one dose. Look for caffeine-free pain relievers instead.

According to a Cornell University study on sleep deprivation, the secret to finding more time in your day may be to spend more time in bed at night. Studies have shown that adding one hour of sleep per night for one week can increase your level of alertness by 25%. Although it may sound crazy to those of us with the caffeine jitters, one hour of sleep could make us more productive, pleasant, less irritable, and healthier while bringing the hands of time a little closer.

The Woodpecker

In recent years I have acquired the hobby of bird feeding. They're unique to each bird, just like people. Each kind of bird has its own, within the kind, behavior patterns indicative of that kind of bird, for an example, the blue jay.

The woodpecker was always told to me to be an evil bird. My grandmother always hunted them to shoot and get rid of. They pecked on her house. In my yard, however, they are precious, and I wouldn't hurt one at all. They mind their own business until there is a bird, of different kinds at different times, who can't behave.

They stand out from the other birds, watch for times when the shrubs where I feed them are not so busy, much like people act about grocery stores to be certain they find a shopping cart. They're comical; they will perch upside down to eat, looking around to see their cohabiters, and then they take fifteen to thirty minutes to eat. Sometime, they will hurry to get a big mouthful to carry back to their nest. Their eyes are loving and kind, and they don't bother the other birds, running them off only when they offer to bother them.

After all, they are just attempting to live their own lives and paddle their own little canoes.

I have really enjoyed, I call them my, birds. They are a real learning experience I would invite everyone to find in their own yards, and find the analogy about people. I see people different than I have before for my personal experience with them. They love sunflower seeds.

Anderson & Rowland

Jenna Anderson and Eric Rowland exchanged wedding vows on October 10, 2009, at 6:00 pm at First Baptist Church, Joelton with Bro. David Royalty officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Robert Dale and Donna Anderson of Coopertown. She is the granddaughter of Charlene Anderson of Coopertown and the late Robert C. Anderson and Bob and Ruby Patton of Springfield and the late Mr. and Mrs. James R. Wilkins.

The groom is the son of Doye and Betty Rowland of Eagleville. He is the grandson of Clarence Puckett of Eagleville and the late Lela Puckett and Grady Rowland of Rockvale and the late Betty Sue Rowland.

The bride wore a rich taffeta gown in diamond white. The slim fitted gown featured a strapless bodice and soft ruches asymmetrically throughout the entire design. The v-shaped back flowed to a cathedral length train and the bottom of the gown featured a caught-up bubble hem. The bride also wore an elbow length veil with a diamond white satin corded edge. Her jewelry consisted of pearl earrings and a matching pearl floral necklace and bracelet from Thailand featuring snowy pearls that formed the flowers' petals. The bride's bouquet was made of all white roses tied with white ribbon. She carried a white lace handkerchief belonging to her mother.

The bride's sister, Jada Head of Cedar Hill, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Sarah Tinkle of Pleasant View, Lorie Allsbrooks of Birmingham, Alabama, Leah Corbin of Murfreesboro, Katherine Simmons of Memphis and Julie Justice of Cedar Hill, all friends of the bride.

Serving as flower girl was Haley Rowland, five year old niece of the groom. She wore a champagne dress with tiny pearl embellishments at the waist and a bow in the back. She carried a white satin basket trimmed with champagne ribbon from which she dropped white rose petals.

The groom wore a black tuxedo with a white vest, white tie and shirt. His groomsmen wore black tuxedos with champagne vests and ties and white shirts. They wore boutonnieres made of a sing white rose.

The best man was the groom's brother, Tommy Rowland of Owensboro, Kentucky. The groomsmen were Justin Anderson of Springfield, brother of the bride, Lynn Windrow of Murfreesboro, Kyle Williams of Rockvale, Todd Burks of Murfreesboro and Russ Soapes of Murfreesboro, all friends of the groom.

Ushers were Diego Fua, friend of the groom, Corey Head, brother-in-law of the bride, and DJ Wilkins, cousin of the bride.

The ringbearer was Logan Head, six year old nephew of the bride. He carried a white satin pillow accented with champagne satin ribbon.

Chelsea Hannah, friend of the bride, served as guest register attendant.

The mother of the bride wore a rosewood floor-length trumpet skirt and matching jacket which was accented at the waist by a rhinestone brooch.

The mother of the groom wore a two-piece taupe dress which featured a floral jacket. Both mothers carried dainty bouquets of white roses and brown hypericum berries.

The bride walked down the aisle with her father to "Canon in D". The mothers of the bride and groom entered to "You Raise Me Up" by Josh Groban. Vocalist, Lesa Foreman, sang "In This Very Room" as the grandparents entered.

The parents of the bride hosted a reception, catered by Carolyn Berry at The Center in Springfield. Guests enjoyed music by David Rainwater, owner of Sound Machine DJ.

The wedding cake was a square four-tiered strawberry and vanilla confection decorated in white and champagne buttercream frosting. It featured the bride and groom's initials. The cake was topped with white roses and surrounded by white votive candles.

The groom's cake was an al chocolate cake in the shape of a basketball with the initial "R" on it. Chocolate covered strawberries surrounded the base of the cake.

Before departing, the bride changed into jeans and a black tank top with "Mrs. Rowland" in rhinestone embellishing the front.

The couple honeymooned in Cabo San Lucas, Mexico. They are now residing in Springfield.

Ezell & Writesman

On Saturday, November 14, 2009, Jessica Ezell and Kyle Writesman were married at the Community Baptist Church in Chapel Hill, Tennessee.

Jessica is the daughter of Julie and Harley Ezell of Chapel Hill and Kyle is the son of Maureen and Charles Writesman of Eagleville.

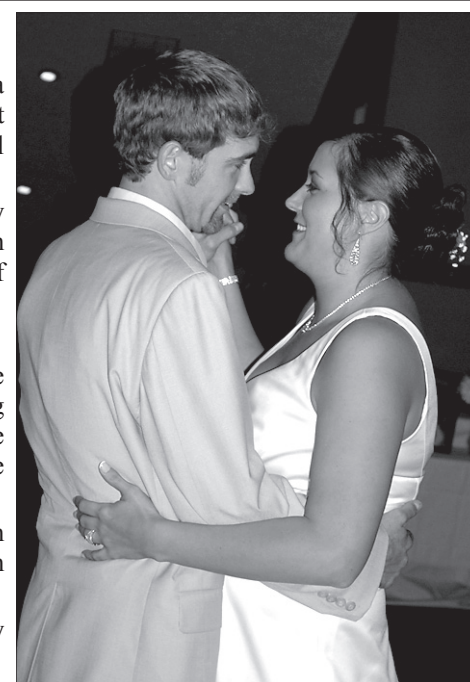

Brother Don McMurry officiated.

Jessica's daughter, Kinsley Inlow was the flower girl and Lee Marston was the ring bearer. Kinsley and Lee delighted the congregation with their antics during the ceremony.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception was held at the Walking Horse Lodge in Lewisburg.

Jessica teaches at Chapel Hill Elementary School and Kyle is self-employed.

They reside in Chapel Hill, Tennessee.

Eagleville High School Student Council Update

By Emilee Wilson

With the end of the semester on its way, the student council is working hard. Behind us is Basketball Homecoming and Valentine's Day celebrations. We also hosted a staff appreciation week to show how much these people and their hard work mean to us. But ahead, we have the Student Council State Convention where Eagleville High School is proudly sending in our application for the Four Star Council Award. We are also working on a blood drive and festivities to send off the class of 2010.

HOMES FOR OUR PUBLIC SERVANTS

To Our Eagleville & Rockvale Public Servants:

We appreciate all you do for the community! To show our appreciation, Homes for Our Public Servants was designed to make the American Dream of homeownership a reality for you. This program is designed for Police Officers, Firefighters, EMS, Veterans, Military Personnel, Nurses and Teachers.

Many Public Servants struggle with low salaries, financial debt issues and often times have trouble qualifying for a loan to purchase or refinance a home. Even selling a home can become costly when you are not prepared for the expenses incurred.

Paige Mayercik, founder of HOPS4COPS, is the wife of a local police officer. She understands the dangers, trials and tribulations that our "Unsung Heroes" face on a daily basis. This empowered her desire to research other fields of public service like Firefighters, Paramedics and Teachers that often go unrecognized for their valiant efforts to assist our community.

Paige assembled an organization comprised of Team Players with a commitment to give service back to the public servant. It is their mission to help you save money. Everyone involved in the organization has agreed to reduce costs to you in order to make your experience less of a burden to your pocket. Team Players, such as Real Estate Agents, Mortgage Lenders and Home Inspectors are individually selected to work with Mrs. Mayercik because of their dedication and integrity in the Real Estate business.

Local Eagleville/Rockvale resident, Susie Manier, a Real Estate Professional with Crye-Leike, knows first hand the importance of Public Servants in her community. Paige and Susie's mission is to honor all our public servants by helping them pursue their dreams of homeownership.

Troop 123 Backpacks Montgomery Bell State Park

Eagleville Boy Scout Troop 123 embarked on a new venture over Spring Break – the first backpacking trip for many of the Boy Scouts. After choosing Montgomery Bell State Park for its accessibility and facilities, the troop planned carefully. Assembling supplies, including packs, dehydrated meals, and water purification tablets or filters, took time and energy. On Saturday morning, the Scouts hiked to their designated shelters and set up camp. The seven Scouts – Jake Bolden, Luke Hicks, Alex Nippers, Will Price, Jake Simms, Will Simms, and Erich Smith, learned about properly packing a backpack, making and using a checklist before setting out on a trip, leaving no trace of their visit, and proper hiking etiquette and safety as they enjoyed backpacking. “The food was good, and the shelter was nice. I learned about native plants and trees,” said Will Price, a Second Class Scout. After breaking camp and hiking back in a rain shower, all of the boys counted the trip a success.

The Hedgepath and Lamb Families enjoyed a ski vacation outside of Denver, Colorado in the town of Silverthorne. They skied four days at Copper Mountain, Beaver Creek and Keystone. (L-R): Tiffany and Deborah Lamb, Rachel Hedgepath, Dalton Hale, Chelsea Lamb, Camden Dykes, Brandon and Bill Lamb, Darren Shanks, John and Johnson Hedgepath.

Laura On Life

By Laura Snyder

She said yes? What a miracle! My son finally asked the girl of his dreams to marry him!

This girl is a dream come true for me as well. If I could have fashioned another daughter, I could not have done as well. She is perfect for my son.

So how did this perfect girl get hooked up with my not-so-perfect son? True, he gets more perfect as time goes on, but I'm his mom. I know the boy he used to be.

This is the same boy who, at three years old, turned the garden hose on his 70-year old grandfather and chased him around the yard with it. Is that imp still inside him? I still see it in his eyes. I suspect, however, that if he turned the garden hose on his fiancé, she'd probably take it a little better than his grandfather did. In fact, she may even get him back by pouring a bucket of cold water on him while he's in the shower.

He is the same boy that at 10 years old tortured his little brother by sitting on him and not letting him up until he ate the skin that's left on the side of a pot after boiling noodles.

He probably wouldn't do that to his fiancé, though. With age has come a bit more... restraint. He knows that his body wash would be laced with jalapeno pepper juice if he was to torture her in such a way. Did I mention how perfect she is for him?

This is the kid who snuck downstairs one Christmas morning before dawn and opened every present under the tree before his parents woke up.

This is the boy that climbed up my hallway walls by straddling it in bare feet, made forts out of my lawn chairs, piled the sofa cushions up and balanced himself on them, and would only eat peanut butter and jelly and macaroni and cheese. To be fair, I have not seen him do any of these things in many years.

The guy whose greatest wish at Halloween was to scare the pants off little kids by sitting on the front porch and pretending to be a monster, now has a softer side. When he spies a sweet little toddler with big blue eyes dressed in a princess costume, he is careful to take off his mask, greet her with a smile and dole out double the candy. He just can't stand the thought of that sweet little face running from him in fear now. That change can only be the influence of his future wife. She makes him want to be a better man. He has empathy now where before there was only derision.

This is the same guy who said, not that long ago, that he would never marry, didn't want kids, and would be just as happy as a bachelor. As his mom, I knew that kind of life would never make him happy. He needed only to meet the right girl and she would convince him otherwise.

My son has his fair share of testosterone... and then some. He's all macho and full of bravado and hard edges. But he's in love, and that makes all the difference. He shows his softer side more often now and, for those of us who love him, that is a side we are delighted to see.

I once thought he would wait too long to ask this treasure to marry him, and that she might get tired of waiting. I should have given her more credit, though. She's here to stay and I couldn't be happier about it!

When he called to announce that he'd asked his lady to marry him, my 12-year old daughter asked what we all were thinking: "And did she say yes?"

Indeed she did. Oh, happy day!

Little Stories About You & Me

By Nancy Allen
Where's Hope?

The sun's gentle rays bathe the new budding leaves with their warmth. It's easy to feel God is in control. But as I think of God's control, I also think about how He gave part of that control to me because he gave mankind dominion over the earth and all creeping things upon the earth. If I have dominion over the things of the earth, I have authority over them. That's really scary. It also makes me upset. Why have the previous generations not done their job? They had dominion too. Why have we allowed the earth to get in such a shape?

This month marks the 40th anniversary of Earth Day. Perhaps laws will be passed, but conservation really starts with each of us. Until we as individuals become responsible the earth will continue to deteriorate. This past year has been enough to make us all want to bury our heads somewhere. Tornadoes, floods and earthquakes have taken lives and caused millions of dollars in damage. Our environment is slowly but surely becoming uninhabitable. The ozone layer is depleting and vegetation is being destroyed. The rainforest are being cut faster than we can scream, "No," the air we breath is full of toxins and our drinking water is unfit to drink.

Drugs are destroying our nation, causing drug wars on the Mexican border. Teen-age pregnancy is rampant and there is violence in our schools and on our streets. Rarely does a day pass without another plane crash and international politics is so complicated not even the terrorists understand their mission. The starving masses starve while their governments hoard the food supply. Why does God allow these things to happen? I believe much of it happens because we have authority over the earth. We are in charge and we have forgotten to do our job. Mankind has decided to center the spotlight on ourselves. We want and we take, never thinking about what we are doing to our earth and our fellowman. Our senseless and hurtful desires have plunged us into ruin and destruction. The love of money is the root of all evil.

Can we find hope in such a world? Yes, but we must change our attitudes and our actions. We can no longer shun our responsibility. We are in charge. We must take responsibility for our own salvation and then perhaps we can see clearly to love our neighbors as ourselves. As individuals we must set the example. Find out what you can do; take responsibility for your world. One person at a time—we can make a difference.

Is It Time To Hunt Yet?

If you are an avid hunter, there are 2 seasons, hunting season and getting ready for hunting season. When February ended, it brought the official end to most of the water fowl, small game and large game hunting seasons. One exception is Spring Turkey Season which has become increasingly popular in middle Tennessee. This type of hunting is challenging for those hunters who enjoy the camouflage requirements of deer hunting and for those who like the active "calling" of waterfowl hunting. And with the season opening in early April and ending in mid-May, hunters do not have to contend with cold weather extremes.

Wild turkeys are in no way similar to the birds familiar to most of us for our holiday meals. These birds filled many areas of the U.S. with a large population in the southeast. They provided meals for early settlers and for the native populations before that. These birds can fly, roost in the treetops to sleep, and forage for food, including insects in open lands adjacent to wooded areas. Benjamin Franklin was so impressed with this wild bird, that he wanted it to be the symbol of our country. But the Bald Eagle won out.

The wild turkey travels in flocks. In a typical flock, there are young males called Jakes and hens. The mature males, Toms, usually travel as a separate group unless it is mating season when they may join a group of hens. At night, the turkeys roost in area trees and then spend their days on the ground feeding. During the breeding season, the female will separate herself from the flock, call to attract a male, and then lay her eggs in a ground nest. Since hens can lay up to an egg a day during a typical breeding cycle, they try to attract a male each day.

The wild turkey is a challenging bird to hunt. The wild turkey has extraordinary eyesight and excellent hearing. Because of the turkey's keen eyesight, the hunter must be completely camouflaged including hands, arms, neck, face and head. Special mesh veils allow the hunter to hide behind a face mask of foliage while allowing them to see their prey. It is important that the hunter also camouflage their shotgun as well. Also, the hunter must be careful to avoid any sound that will alert the Tom or the Hens to the presence of potential danger. Turkey hunting also requires turkey calling. There are two main types of calls, the slate call or box call and the mouth diaphragm. Both imitate a hen's call, which the hunter uses to bring out a curious and hopeful male.

Success in the hunt is determined by the "length of the beard" of the tom. The longer the beard, the older the male, the more prestige. It is permissible to hunt jakes but hunting hens is prohibited during the spring hunt. Many hunters use the wing feathers and the tail fan to mount them for a dramatic piece of art.

In Tennessee, all counties are open for spring turkey season which runs April 3 – May 16. As with other game, the population is carefully managed. Each hunter is limited to one bearded turkey per day with a maximum of 4 turkeys per season. To encourage interest in this sport, Tennessee sponsors a Statewide Spring Young Sportsman Hunt March 27-28. This hunt is for young people age 6 through 16 and each hunter is required to have a non-hunting adult with them during the hunt.

THE BUZZ AROUND CO-OP

By Karen Brown

TIME TO CHECK YOUR SOIL

Do you want to plant a garden? Knowing a bit about the soil chemistry first is the most basic measurement you'll need to know. The soil PH is a measure of the soils acidity or alkalinity. Different plants require different PH levels, so once you know your soils PH, you can have plants that will thrive in that soil or you can amend the soil to expand the range of plants you can use. Getting a measure is easy! Stop by and talk to our gardening experts at your Eagleville Co-op!

Film opens in theaters April 9th

On Friday, April 9, "Letters to God" will open in approximately 800 theaters across America. This is an inspirational film of hope, redemption and courage about a little boy stricken with brain cancer, who writes letters to God. These letters find their way into the hands of Brady McDaniels, a postman who is having difficulty dealing with his out-of-control life. Inspired by the real life son of writer, Patrick Doughtie, it is a moving and often funny story about the effect one child's belief can have on his family, friends, and community. Doughtie is the son of Pete and Kaye Doughtie, formerly of Bishop, CA.

The film is directed by David Nixon, Possibility Pictures, LLC. Nixon was one of the producers of "Facing the Giants," and "Fireproof," which was the #1 independent film in 2008. The cast includes Robyn Lively, Jeffrey Johnson, Tanner Maguire, Bailee Madison, Michael Christopher Bolten, Maree Cheatham and Ralph Waite.

There are a total of seven books, published by Zondervan, directly related with the movie. These include "Letters to God," a novel, written by Patrick Doughtie and John Perry, which, in its second week out made the top 50 list on the American Booksellers Association's adult religious title at #46. During the third week, it jumped to #16 on the list and this past week it was at #9, and all before the movie comes out on April 9th.

Also included is "Letters to God," a children's book, also written by Doughtie, "Letters to God Journal," "Dear God," which contains the actual letters Tyler wrote in the movie and a movie pictorial of behind the scenes, a book entitled "Prayer, Your Own Letter to God," "Hope is Contagious" and Letters to God Bible.

These books may be ordered at www.patrickdoughtie.com. They are also in bookstores and online. The soundtrack to this film will be out March 30 and includes the original song by the Warren Brothers, "Dear Mr. God."

On Tuesday, April 6, there will be a Pre-Release Fundraiser and After Party with proceeds going to Monroe Carrel Children's Hospital at Vanderbilt. The screening will be held at Regal Green Hills Cinema, 3815 Green Hills Village Drive at 7 p.m. and the after party immediately following at Yolo's Restaurant. Tickets are $25 for the movie only, and $60 for the movie and party where you will be able to meet and greet some of the actors, the writer, and director. The Warren Brothers will perform "Dear Mr. God." To purchase tickets, you can go to www.patrickdoughtie.com and click on the bar advertising the event.
