Art Gallery Opens In Rockvale

On March 19, 2011 Rockvale unleashed the Grand Opening of a new Art Gallery, the Rockvale Art Gallery, or RAG for short. The Rockvale Art Gallery is located in a rustic old barn on Hwy 99 two doors up from the Rockvale post office. The Gallery showcases various forms of artistic expression from traditional paintings, sculpture, antiques, whimsical curiosity’s, jewelry, to photography and abstract art. The RAG features eight talented local artist and is adding more every day.

Opening day was a huge success with customers coming from Franklin, Nashville and as far away as Chattanooga. All Artist where present to great our customers and answer any questions about their form artistic expression. Future events will include, professional painting and drawing classes, wine tasting, and musical events during the weekend hours throughout the summer. The Gallery’s hours are Mon. and Thurs. 11-6, Fri. and Sat. 11-9, Sun. 12-4. The RAG would like to extend a personal invitation to everyone to come out, discover great talent and have an enjoyable time.

Rockvale Art Gallery’s mission is to provide their customers with a relaxing, whimsical environment in which to view and purchase art, antiques, home decor, and Interior Design Services. The Gallery offers a step into the past as well as a view of the future.

EAGLEVILLE POLICE DEPARTMENT

A Small Police Department with a Big Job

By: GeorgeBarrett

So you come home from work and find that your door is unlocked. You think to yourself "Did I lock it this morning or did I not?" You go to your tool shed and find that your lawn mower is missing as well as some tools. You're having problems with your son or daughter and need advice. All of these situations happen to us all at one point or another. So what do you do? Ignore it? No...you don't have to. You can simply pick up the phone and call the Eagleville Police Department. We may not be a round the clock just yet but we are here to help you in many situations. Many people look at local law enforcement as a good thing while others think they are constantly being watched and dislike the fact of having a police department. The Eagleville Police Department, though small, is here to protect the citizens that reside in Eagleville as well as those who visit or pass through. Some people have the idea that we have created a "speed trap". This couldn't be further from the truth. We address traffic violations just as any other agency would. The department is very fair when it comes to speed limits. While I can't tell you at what point we stop a car for speeding, I can ensure each of you that we do not stop drivers for 2, 3, or even 5 over the limit. Most stops are for 15 over and up, with the most over the limit being 32 miles over the limit. Also, not everyone we stop gets a ticket. It is officer discretion and each is taken on a case by case situation. The department also focuses on other areas of protection. We conduct welfare checks, extra patrols when residents are out of town, and business checks at night. The department also assists the ambulance service, fire department, THP, and Sheriff's Department (which we are also deputized by). Since I have been Chief, I have had the opinion that Eagleville deserves the best police protection it can get. I am building a department that will be just as professional as any surrounding agency. We may not have the budget of other agencies but we can still give the same service. We have purchased 2 new Dodge Charger police cars, as most of you have seen. These were purchased to replace the 13 year old Ford Explorer and the 11 year old Ford Crown Victoria donated by Laverne Police Department. The vehicles were unsafe for police use and were starting to show various mechanical issues. Both cars were purchased and outfitted for a little more than $50,000. Some of that money came from a GHSO grant and surplus of Police department property. The usual price for a complete police car is around $30,000.00 each. With the upcoming budget year we are looking to expand the police department so that we may provide more continuous service. I have an open door policy for each and everyone. If you have a concern or issue, please feel free to contact me anytime. I am very happy to be a part of Eagleville and look forward to the years to come.

A Message From Your Mayor

Hello Eagleville ,

Anyone who has driven down Main Street the last several years has seen the log cabin restaurant that was never completed. I have been asked hundreds of times, “ what is going on with that building, what is the future of the building?” I am sure that by now many people have heard that the city is purchasing the building for a new City Hall. Closing is scheduled this coming Friday, April 1st. The construction to finish the incomplete building is estimated to take 45 days.

Any purchase, large or small, takes consideration as to assure the tax payers money is wisely spent. I realize some people are never in favor of anything and look at the negative side of everything. This is normal and expected, however, the purchase of the log building has to be one of the most positive achievements in the City’s history.

Allow me to explain the process and the positive effects of the purchase.

The City of Eagleville, like any other city, has financial and legal advisors to assist in making decisions. After many hours of meetings and studying the cause and effect of the purchase, it was unanimously decided that the purchase would be a positive move for our City and allow us to plan the future design of Main Street.

To set the record straight, the City of Eagleville is in the best financial position in the history of Eagleville. We can afford this purchase or it would not be done. The purchase, in NO WAY will require a tax increase or will jeopardize the financial stability of our City or its citizens. Contrary to this, the purchase will improve the financial position of the city. The purchase will provide City ownership of the entire corner of downtown at the City’s only traffic light.

The City is teaming with The Rutherford County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau. They will occupy space in the building and contribute $6,000 per year toward the cost of the building. Also, talks are taking place with Nissan Corp. to install a charging station for the new electric automobile. Yes we have to plan for the future.

The completion of the purchase and the building will allow all City meetings and City Court to be held at City Hall.

The first step taken was to find a solution for the embarrassing septic arrangement at our city hall. This was proven successful, so until the city has a public sewer system we can use the “new” septic site. This will allow us to be in compliance with state health regulations.

The purchase will include the building, the lot directly behind city hall, and the lot on Allisona Road. The purchase will allow the City to “clean up” the corner of Main Street and set the design and tone for the future of down town Eagleville.

The present city hall will become the Safety Annex, being home for the police and fire departments. The lot behind the log building will allow for the City to establish free public parking and a multi use area.

The total purchase price to the building and both lots is $315,000. The established value of the real estate is $165,000, with the remaining $150,000 being the cost of the building. It is estimated to complete the project will be $100,000. This includes a new paved parking lot and furnishing inside the building. The City will borrow $350,000 from Tennessee Municipal League at 4% interest. The remaining $65,000 will come from a Certificate of Deposit the city has had for many years, to be used only for the purpose of a new city hall and the general operating fund.

The purchase will enhance the financial stability of the City, establish a sense of pride in our City and help to bring business to down town. As well, your City servants and elected officials will be able to better serve its citizens.

The new City Hall will have a conference room that will seat approximately 20 people. This will be open for the public to use for meetings and presentations. I encourage citizens to call for reservations and take advantage of the property and building.

If anyone has questions, please call so we can make sure you have CORRECT information .

Another positive note of interest, The Rutherford County Commission has approved spending $350,000 for the design of the expansion of phase 1 and 2 for our school . The expansion is badly needed and will prove to be a tremendous asset toward the education of our students.

As always, I encourage everyone to support our school and our City. Shop locally for the support of our merchants.

THANK YOU for allowing me to be your mayor and representing The City of Eagleville. Feel free to call my personal cell number if I can be of assistance.

Sam Tune, Mayor 849-6509

BEWARE - DANGER - WARNING

by Karen Brown

The little deer tick is causing a very big health risk here in Tennessee. I personally have several friends and a family member who have contracted Lyme Disease, and would like the public to be more aware of it.

Lyme Disease is a bacterial infection transmitted by a deer tick. First discovered in 1975, researchers found that the tiny deer tick infected with a spiral-shaped bacterium was responsible. The ticks most commonly infected usually feed and mate on a deer during part of their life cycle. With recent growth of the deer population, this has contributed to the increased number of people being affected by the disease. The Lyme Disease is transmitted through the bite from the tick.

In the early stages of Lyme, one may only experience flu-like symptoms. Many experience a large rash around the tick bite that resembles a bulls-eye. These symptoms usually resolve within days to a few weeks. The more the disease advances, nerve problems and arthritis, usually in the knees occur.

Lyme Disease imitates a variety of illnesses and the severity can vary from person to person. If you have been bitten by a tick and live in a know area to have Lyme Disease, see your doctor right away so a proper diagnosis can be made and a treatment started

A Step Back in Time

By Bobbie Sue Shelton-Lonas

March 1907 - Misses Irene and Maud Little delightfully entertained the “Jolly Girl Club” last Monday evening, after having been postponed on account of rain. Misses Maggie Russell and Gertrude Elmore assisted the hostess in entertaining the friends present. Games were the amusement of the evening. Those present were Misses Cora and Florence Elmore, Maggie Russell, Gertrude Elmore, Fannie Berry, Mary Dryden, Jessie Elmore, Daisy Utermohlen, Susie and Nettie Little, Beulah Beechboard, Ethel Motlow, Messrs. Sam and Jesse Owen, Bun Hay, Lewis and Tom Elmore, John Taylor, Melvin Wilson, Clifton Little.

1908 - Miss Emma Love celebrated her 18th birthday on last Wednesday night. Quite a number of her friends were present. Music was furnished on violin and organ by Horace Jackson and sister, Miss Willie. Ice cream and cake were served as refreshments. Those present were Misses Fannie Giles, Bettie and Ola White, of Puckett; Estelle Jordan and Kate Windrow of Rocky Glade; Minnie Johns of Eagleville; Bessie Carson of Nashville; Myrtle Ralston, Annie Lou Morgan, Maud Manire and Willie Jackson. Messrs. Quin Barnes of Midland; Jack Smotherman, Grady Jackson, Bob White, Eliza Wray, Blake Giles, of Puckett; Keithley Rowland of Rocky Glade; Horace Jackson, Pat Taylor, Tolbert, Macy Lee and Cleveland Ralston.

Sept. 1908 - A reunion of Confederate soldiers was held at Eagleville Wednesday. A bountiful basket dinner was spread and quite a number of ex-Confederates attended.

April 1909 - Quite a number of little people were entertained by a delightful Easter egg hunt, given by Bessie Maxwell at her home at Rockvale. A large number of eggs being hid made the hunt very interesting. The prize eggs were found by Miss Blanche Lamb and Master Mack Burt.

June, 1910 - A distressing accident occurred early Monday morning on the Eagleville Pike near Puckett, in which, Mrs. J. N. Martin lost her life. She was with her husband in a buggy coming to this city.

Mr. R. N. Johnson, manager of the American Pencil Co., was returning from his home in Lewisburg, in his automobile, when he saw the buggy ahead of him. He sounded the horn and noticed that the driver had drawn the horse and buggy to the side of the road. Everything appeared to be correct until Johnson attempted to pass. At this instant, Mrs. Martin, it is stated, jumped or fell from the buggy in front of the auto. Mr. Johnson did all he could to stop the machine, but was powerless. Mrs. Martin was almost instantly killed. Mr. Johnson is very much distressed at the accident and none deplores it more than he.

December 1912 - A big rabbit barbecue was given at Mr. Andrew Turner’s home, near Eagleville, on Monday night. Fifteen fine, plump rabbits were dressed by Mr. Turner and barbecued by Mrs. Cora McDaniel and those partaking of the feast say they never had anything better to eat. Among those present were: J. F. Baskin, W. A. Burkhart and family, Sam Maupin and family, R. H. Baskin, Jesse Wilson, Jas. Vaughan, besides a number of young people. The rabbits as dressed by Mr. Turner looked good enough to eat without cooking. Mrs. Cora McDaniel is to be praised for the excellent manner in which they were barbecued. Some of the guest say their mouths are watering for a repetition of the beast. Tuesday night, a similar feast was held at W. A. Burkhart’s

May 1913 - Mrs. Jesse Morgan was a charming hostess last Saturday evening, when she entertained in a delightful manner, to compliment her guests, Misses Lee, Bennett and Hampton, of Smyrna. Rook was played at several tables. The following young people were present: Misses Annie Lee Rowland, Susie Morgan, Anna Bell McCord, Ethel Hampton, Leronia Lee, Willie Bennett, Cora V. Windrow, and Lee Marler, Messrs. Forest Tucker, Walker Carlton, Clyde Frost, Tom Seat, Esley Wray, Carl Owen, Travis Windrow and Elmer McCord of Christiana.

1913 - Miss Annie Alcorn, a highly esteemed young lady, was fatally burned at her home near Eagleville Sunday. Although she was given prompt medical attention, she died Monday. The young lady was making a fire in the stove preparatory to cooking breakfast. She had poured kerosene on the wood and accidentally spilled some on her clothing, which ignited, and she was enveloped in flames before anyone could reach her. Her father was badly burned on the hands in his efforts to extinguish the flames. Miss Alcorn was about 19 years of age and a Christian.

May 1913 - Mrs. Crockett Ralston was hostess of a most attractively planned lawn party last Thursday evening at her home near Eagleville in honor of Miss Nettie Overall and Miss Eva Palmer of Knoxville. The spacious lawn was beautifully decorated with numerous Japanese lights. A special feature of amusement was a cake walk, after which the cake was presented to Miss Audry Jackson. There were sixty guests present and at a late hour a tempting ice course was served. Mrs. Ralston was assisted in receiving and entertaining by her sisters, Misses Katherine and Ora Mai Love and Misses Lois Ralston and Audry Jackson.

1915 - The marriage of Miss Allean Faris, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Mr. R. W. Faris of Rockvale and Mr. Thomas Howard, of Perry, Iowa, was briefly noted in the News Banner of April 2nd.

It has since developed that this marriage was just a little bit out of the ordinary, not altogether devoid of the romantic and idealistic. Their courtship began through correspondence. The stalwart young groom, whose presence and bearing have proven him to be a manly man, had set his heart and hopes upon securing a Tennessee girl for a bride. A few short months ago in looking over a copy of the News Banner, which had by chance come into his possession, his eyes rested upon a name and address in its news columns which stood out in bold relief and inspired within him the feeling of adoration. In response a feeling that wouldn’t down, he indicted a letter to Miss Faris, which brought its reply. Other letters passed between them and photographs were exchanged, and then came Mr. Howard for a visit to the Faris home in December last. He laid siege of love with the ardor and persistency of a Lochinvar of old, and in his splendid personality and deportment readily found favor not only with the object of his affections, but also with the stern parents, who, at first, were anything but pleased. The wedding day was set for the leafy month of June, but after his return home, time dragged too heavily with these ardent lovers with so much distance separating them, hence, the earlier marriage.

Mr. Howard has given to his new parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Faris, such glowing accounts of Iowa that they too have decided to go to that State to reside, temporarily at least. Mr. Faris will retain his fine farm near Rockvale, but last week had a sale of stock and personal preparatory to leaving for Iowa.

While researching for the above news articles, I was reminded of a “killer storm/ tornado that hit the Windrow Community in the spring of 1913. Four members of the Lee Rowland Family were killed including a daughter Leanna, who had just returned home from school. (This article appeared in the September, 2008 Eagleville Times.) The old Windrow School was also destroyed by the storm, and was later rebuilt.

WINDROW SCHOOL

Windrow School was located on the southeast side of Windrow Road, at its intersection with Snail Shell Cave Road. The Windrow family gave the land for a church, a camp meeting ground, and a school. The T. Winrow estate, the Windrow Church and Camp Ground are shown on the 1878 Beers Map indicating that the school must have been built later.

The school was a one-room frame building facing northwest. It was weather-boarded, painted white, with a front porch and a belfry with lattice work. Inside the room at the back were a long stage and a blackboard. A pot-bellied stove furnished the heat. Grades were one through eight. In 1913, the school had about thirty students. On March 13, 1913, a little after three o’clock in the afternoon, a double-pronged tornado blew away the school and left a lot of damage in the area.

Among the teachers were Nanny Wade, Lottie Ralston, Miss Willie Haynes, Hugh McHenry, Mrs. John Reed, Stella Scales and Mary Knott, the last teacher. Most of the teachers boarded at the homes of Minnie Kelton and Maturity Windrow.

On September 6, 1913 Trustees of the M. E. Church, T. O. Johnson, A. C. Johnson, Gilbert Floyd, Lem Lawrence, Taylor Johnson, A. or S. Vaughn, and in addition J. S. Jarratt signed a deed to the Rutherford County Board of Education for one acre of land. Roy Watson and Myers Vaughn carried water for the workers who rebuilt the schoolhouse. The frame building consisted of one long room with a porch at the front. A stage was at the far end of the room.

Teachers were Mary Knott, Nina Williams, Lottie Ralston, Lola Tilford, Era Hutchison, Elsie Mai Tatum and Charlie Tolbert.

In the late 1930’s or early 40’s a new school building replacing the one that was blown away. This new building had one very large room, a small room called the “cook” room and two large cloak rooms. A pot-bellied stove was the source of heat. The building was weather-boarded and painted white. Teachers were Charlie Tolbert and Owen Scott.

When the smaller schools were consolidated with the larger area schools, Windrow students were transferred mostly to Rockvale or to Murfreesboro. The school building was bought by Paul Parker Windrow and the ownership was transferred several times. When Mr. Will Parsley bought the building, he moved it to Barfield where it was used as a home. (Thanks to Mrs. Pauline Arnold for contributing the “Windrow School” picture.)

Anyone with information and/or pictures on any “Rebekah” or “Odd Fellow” Lodge in Eagleville and surrounding communities, please contact Bobbie Sue Shelton-Lonas at (615-274-6282) or 4606 Highway 41 A N., Eagleville, Tn. 37060. Need for a future article.

Let's Grow Together

I have reminisced this week of seasons past as we get into the full swing of spring. Spring is a time when our planet renews itself as trees are greening and their leaves frolic in the breeze. Spring is a time of renewal as our lives and planet spring to life. I took a few minutes to thumb through an old family photo album this week. I noticed something about the pictures taken during the spring of the year-we were in the garden. One of my favorite pictures of myself is one of me dragging a hoe in one hand with my cat under my arm traipsing into the garden. Obviously, gardening was a family affair as most of these pictures included at least three generations and a family pet.

April 22nd was Earth Day and it is estimated that more than a billion people across 190 countries came together to help bring awareness that in order to be a healthier, safer people we must have a healthy environment. Many people planted trees, started gardens, and pushed for more recycling. It is important not to lose the energy and enthusiasm of Earth Day and keep it alive every day. This is the time to plan a back yard or community garden. These gardens will grow more than food; they will grow memories and relationships, not only with friends and family but with Mother Earth.

Regardless of your gardening experience whether you are a beginner or expert there are a lot of resources out there to draw from: Local greenhouses can make recommendations on plants that do well in your local area and offer expert gardening tips. Home improvement stores often have printed materials, books, and staff willing to help. The local farm supply stores offer everything from seeds and plants to tools and knowledge. Your Local Library is also an excellent source for information and I always encourage you to take advantage of this great community resource.

Now that we have had Earth Day I think we need a Health Day. Our bodies are our own personal planet so to speak. The same attention we place on energy conservation for our planet we need to make sure we give ourselves enough time for our own personal energy conservation for sleep. The emphasis we place on toxic chemicals and their impact on our ecosystem, we need to be mindful of what we put into our bodies. We are only given one life, one body so as we take measures to protect and renew our planet let's look at ways to protect ourselves.

The Centers for Disease Control and Preventions recommends these six gardeners' safety tips:

- Dress to protect. Prevent exposure to chemicals, insects, and the sun by wearing the proper clothing, safety equipment, and using an insect repellant and sunscreen.
 - Put safety first. Limit distractions and follow the labels when using chemicals and equipment. Be aware of possible hazards to lower your risk for injury.
 - Watch out for heat-related illness. Even being out for short periods of time in high temperatures can cause serious health problems. Monitor your activities and time in the sun to lower your risk for heat-related illness.
 - Know your limits. Talk to your health care provider if you have concerns about your ability to work in the garden safely.
 - Get vaccinated. Vaccinations can prevent many diseases and save lives. Remember that tetanus lives in soil and all adults should get a tetanus vaccination every 10 years.
 - Go green. Conserve water, reuse containers, recycle, and share your bounty.
- Gardening is a connection to family, friends, and nature. It is a continuous learning-an adventure of sensory and aesthetic stimulation-that keeps us young, gives us challenges, goals and a sense of accomplishment. A garden is life, and is a great way to get physical activity, while fighting obesity, high blood pressure, diabetes, osteoporosis, stroke and heart disease.

Come, let's grow together!

“I would stop and smell the flowers..... but it makes my eyes itch!!!!”

Spring is in the air --- literally!! The trees are budding. The grass is greening. Flowers are blooming. And if you suffer from seasonal hay fever allergies, the next few weeks will be miserable!! Along with the beauty of springtime comes that time of the year when allergy sufferers are bothered by itchy, watery eyes, sneezing, headaches and general fatigue. Just as the warmer spring time air can bring out spectacular blossoms in the trees, yards and flower beds, it can harbor misery for many allergy sufferers. An estimated 42% of our nation’s population suffers from ocular allergy. Surprisingly, only 3% of these will seek relief from the redness, watering, itching, and swelling of the eyes that can be a daily aggravation. Of those seeking relief for itchy eyes, some will simply try over the counter remedies. Eye drops bought from the drug store might sooth the itching and calm the angry redness for a short while. But many times this is not sufficient to provide long lasting relief.

An evaluation from an eye doctor is the first step in seeking relief. Depending on the severity of your symptoms, an Optometrist can prescribe eye drops that will more efficiently relieve the numerous symptoms of ocular allergy. While these prescription eye drops will provide prolonged relief from your ocular allergy symptoms, keep these helpful tips in mind:

- Always shower immediately after yard work or gardening to eliminate as much of the offending toxins as possible.
- Use cold compresses over the eyes to relieve any swelling.
- Be consistent with ALL allergy medications. The medicines work best if used every day, beginning before the allergy season arrives.
- Use artificial tears to help lubricate and flush toxins from the eyes.
- Keep contact lenses fresh by disposing of them promptly and on schedule.

If you have questions concerning your eyes or vision, please contact Dr. Rena Cron at the Eagleville Eye Clinic at (615)274-2102. Dr. Cron has been in private practice for over 20 years, and has been taking care of the Eagleville community for 10 years. The Eagleville Eye Clinic is conveniently located at 355 South Main Street in Eagleville, in front of Wastequip/Holts. THE BUZZ AROUND CO-OP

Spring Spraying - Pasture Weed Management

Spring is the best time to get all the weeds under control. There is a wonderful array of herbicides on the market today to control your pasture weeds. Always consider that the more weeds you have in your pasture, the more competition your grasses have for nutrient rich soil and moisture. When you reseed your pastures, the removal of weeds will permit your seeds to germinate and have a better chance of surviving.

This year at Co-op you will have many chemicals to choose from, some will come with a new product name. We will be using chemicals from Agri Solutions and just to name a few, they have a 2,4-D (#46782) and a new Gly-4 product by the name Cornerstone Plus (48263). Many other products like Forefront are also available. A great product for the small farm (20 acres or less) is Martin’s Pasture Clean. We rent 2 field sprayers and 1 fence row sprayer for you to use with these chemicals, call ahead to reserve.

Preparation is now taking place for this year’s Eagleville Main Street Festival. Save the date, Saturday, June 4, 2011! Main Street will be blocked off again this year for this fun and exiting event for the Eagleville community.

Vendor rules and application, now on-line and can be viewed on the Eagleville City website at www.eaglevilletn.com or the Eagleville Times website. Applications are also available at City Hall. We’ve already received many entries so expect this year’s festival to be another fun successful day.

Some of what you can expect this year: Mid-Tennessee Cloggers, “Eagleville’s Got Talent” (talent contest), Lots of Kids Inflatables, Lucky Ladd Farm, Car & Motorcycle Show, Music, Dancing, Craft Booths, Festival Food-Food-Food!

Meet The Artists of the Rockvale Art Gallery

Jennifer Taylor

My name is Jennifer Taylor. I was born here in middle Tennessee. I have a loving, supporting husband, a 7 year old son & a lazy dog.

I grew up on a horse farm & never spent a moment inside. I've been dabbling in the arts since I was 9 years old. I started by drawing, then painting. My grandmother painted while watching Bob Ross. She inspired me to paint landscapes, although, my attachment to fantasy had me creating faeries, unicorns, mushrooms & trees. My mother taught me to sew before I went into high school & that became a life long passion. I enjoy quilting, home interior, & fashion. I began making jewelry in my early to mid 20's. The love of antiques & statement pieces strike my inspiration to create not only what I love but, others to enjoy as well. Diversity is the key to keeping life interesting & fresh & I can express that in my jewelry.

My heart & soul lie in the enjoyment of photography now. I am inspired from nature & the tiniest detail of a flower to the crawling lady bug, all the way up to the majestic cloud formations & sunsets. I play with shadows & reflections. I sometimes even play with photo manipulations to enhance the enchantment I may be feeling that day.

Phyllis Moody

Born a coalminer's daughter, last of 5 children and only one born inside a hospital in Charleston, WV. The doctors had told my father that if he didn't get out of the mines that he would die of the black lung fever, so he went off to Chicago to get electrical training and then was later hired at DuPont. DuPont later decided to build a new atomic plant in South Carolina, so my father transferred to the new plant and this is really where I grew up after the age of 5. I really enjoyed my childhood, loved the outdoors, enjoyed climbing trees, playing with my dolls, carrying my cap pistol and wearing my pearl necklace, all while I played in the rain, drove my toy cars in the sand and collected sandspurs as I went running through the woods of beautiful South Carolina country.

My mother seemed to think that I should take some painting lessons from a local painter when I was around the age 8 or 9 years old, so I believe this might have been the beginning of my love of painting and drawing. Also have had instruction/classes in pottery, paint, and art classes since I have become an adult. Had an older brother that painted watercolors and so I also decided that was just the way to go for me, but most of my subjects were cats of the wild. After high school and later marriage, I started using acrylic paints and really liked how I could work the medium wither by brush, knife or hand.

Then the babies came along and I just had to put it all away because they too like to play in all of these things that little ones really don't nee to eat, paint on the floor, walls or each other, if you know what I mean. So I played more with the house, the children, the flowers, etc. and really got away from any real expression of my creative side until I began to go on medical/mission trips. I so wanted to take gifts to give away while on my trips and I began to make bracelets and necklaces for my 4th trip to South America.

The jewelry became addictive (really hard to go to jewelry shows and not want to buy everything). I pray a blessing on each piece you see here and do hope you find just what you have been looking for.... For yourself, a loved one or friend.

Maybe a piece is here that you would say: "You need to come home with me", and/or "Oh, this is just the right piece of jewelry for you fill in the blank".

Kelli Robin Miller

Born a gypsies daughter, just kidding, but it really kind of feels like it when you go to 12 different schools in 12 years. All in all, I honestly did not know any different, and it made me the woman that I am today. Nobody is a stranger. I have lived in Florida, Michigan, and lastly Tennessee.

I grew up with a mom and siblings that were all artists in their own ways. I always felt and still do in some ways quite the inferior artist. So, art was something I did not pursue until I was much older, in all honesty it started after I had children. I have begun to enjoy many different venues in art. My addictive side runs toward collecting as much fabric as I can possibly get my hands on and then figuring out what I can do with it. I do tend to have enough of my father in me that I feel that all of my art needs to be practical in some way. Some days art is a pure sojourn away from the busy, crazy, reality of life and other days my blessed family are a reprieve away from art. So, I hope that in some way you can enjoy wearing or using my art and love it just a little bit as much as I enjoyed making it.

Mike Stroud

A native of middle Tennessee, Mike Stroud has called this area home most of his life. He's also lived in Illinois and Oregon.

Mike grew up on a dairy farm in the Statesville community - a quaint little place in southeastern Wilson county. He remembers a very "Mayberry-esque" upbringing. After attending Lipscomb University earning a B.A. in 1976, Mike married his college sweetheart Karen. They have a son and two daughters. He currently serves as Director of The Timothy Network, a non-profit discipling ministry based in Murfreesboro.

Mike's interest in art started with coloring books and drawing when he was a child. As a young boy he also discovered his mom's Polaroid Brownie and became fascinated with cameras. Doodling, drawing, and painting-by-numbers occupied a lot of his interest during childhood. He remembers this interest mostly fading after receiving a camera for Christmas when he was a teenager. It was after taking an entry level photography class in college that Mike became "thoroughly and forever hooked." Photography has been his main hobby and a very enjoyable pastime ever since.

His work has previously been displayed at Murfreesboro's Center for the Arts.

Paula Francis Owner - Rockvale Art Gallery

becomes bored using one medium. She can be found in her Middle Tennessee studio covered in charcoal, paint, glue, sawdust or whatever has inspired her. The combination of her excellent education, artistic childhood and life experiences gives Paula’s work a unique quality. She paints or draws subjects that are significant to her and has learned to look deeply at every aspect of life because beauty can be found in everything.

Paula’s goal is to create something beautiful to enrich your home, life and hopefully put a smile on your face.

Born in Seattle Washington, raised in Southern California the daughter of a journeyman carpenter, Paula always knew she wanted to be an artist. At the young age of 7 she won a first place ribbon for her finger painting of an Easter chick (complete with a bonnet and basket full of brightly colored eggs of course). Through out her life she experimented with almost every form of artistic expression from sewing, basket weaving to Trompe L’oeil and faux painting. While attending the prestigious O’More College of Design in Franklin, TN she discovered her extreme talent for drawing. Paula fine tuned her artistic skills while studying abroad extensively in France, Germany, Italy and Ireland and in 2009 received her Bachelors Degree in Fine Arts.

Paula would describe her artistic style as eclectic, bold, daring, colorful and usually whimsical. Her restless spirit

Carolyn’Riess-Dodson

Locally she has also studied art at Nashville’s Watkins School of Art and Design. And in the summer of 2004 she studied at the School of Visual Arts in Manhattan, New York.

Carolyn and her South Dakota sweetie have three children and four grandchildren. She lives on a very small farm in Middle TN, painting whenever time allows. Her love of the countryside has inspired her to work her magic to create abstract compositions from the typical landscapes we see almost everywhere here in Middle TN.

Carolyn has been an avid artist since she discovered, at a very young age, the fun – and freedom of working on her family’s old house in the small resort town of Ocean City, NJ. Art classes were a passion throughout high school. Because of this early experience, she developed a painterly style – bold, wide strokes without apology. Later after marrying the love of her life that just happened to be from South Dakota, she moved west-taking classes wherever they lived. When time and babysitters allowed, Carolyn took college classes. She has lived in too many states to mention as well as the Panama Canal Zone, finally settling down in Murfreesboro, TN where she has lived since 1978. Finally in 2000 Carolyn graduated from Middle TN State University.

Sandra Vanderpool

University School of Nashville studying with Christie Thomas and with noted Nashville artist Charles Brindley, she also attends many different workshops and classes to broaden her art knowledge and skill. Sandra lives and maintains her studio in Murfreesboro and is a member of the Tennessee Art League.

Sandra was born in Mondovi, Wisconsin and grew up in St. Paul, Minnesota. She graduated from the Minneapolis Vocational and Technical Institute with her degree in Commercial Art. Sandra worked as a graphic artist for twenty years, working in Minneapolis, Minnesota, Monroe, Louisiana and in Nashville, Tennessee. Sandra moved to the Nashville area in 1976. She has been married to her husband Ken for 34 years, and they have one son, Matt. 1992 brought change for Sandra with the opening TimeFrame Custom Framing and Gallery in Murfreesboro. She operated her business for ten years before deciding it was time to pursue her art on a full time basis. Sandra has been taking classes at Cheekwood Museum of Art and

Little Stories About You & Me

By Nancy Allen

Peanut Butter

I'll bet you thought peanut butter was invented by George Washington Carver. I did. While he is credited with inventing over 300 uses for peanuts, peanut butter (or at least some form of it) has been around since the Aztec natives mashed peanuts to make a paste.

A patent was issued in 1884 to Marcellus Edson of Montreal, Quebec, Canada for the process of milling roasted peanuts between heated surfaces until the peanuts entered a fluid state. When the product cooled Edson explained that it was the consistency of butter.

In 1897 J. H. Kellogg secured a patent for a substance which he produced and called "nut-butter."

In 1890 Dr. Ambrose Straub from St. Louis, Missouri produced peanut butter for his toothless elderly patients and in 1903 his peanut-butter-making machine was patented. At the 1904 World's Fair, also in St. Louis, Missouri, peanut butter was introduced as an important health food. Iced tea, hamburgers, hot dogs and cotton candy were also popularized at the fair.

I remember a time when one of my children would hardly eat anything but peanut butter sandwiches. Peanut butter came in a huge jar in the 1980s and I still have one of those jars. It's one of my little memories that I keep tucked away.

Peanut butter can be a very healthy food providing protein, vitamin B-3 and

E, magnesium, foliate, dietary fiber, argentine and high levels of the antioxidant p-coumaric acid. There are also trace elements of calcium, iron, phosphorous, potassium, sodium, zinc, copper and selenium. Other vitamins are thiamin, riboflavin, niacin, pantothenic acid, B-6, betaine and vitamin K.

One could hardly imagine a more perfect food if it were not for allergies. Peanut butter can cause anaphylactic shock which can be life threatening. This has lead schools to ban peanut butter from their lunch counters. The peanut plant is susceptible to the mold Aspergillus flavus. It is impossible to remove every instance of aflatoxins from the peanut butter product which leaves some of us susceptible to the allergy. A study in 1990 showed that American peanut butter contained an average of 5.7 parts per billion of aflatoxins.

Peanut butter is often added to other products such as cakes, jams, jellies, ice cream, brownies, pretzels, porridge and sandwiches. So if you have allergies—BEWARE.

Plumpy-nut is a product high in calories that can keep up to two years without refrigeration and requires no cooking. This nutritious food has been used in famine stricken countries to fight malnutrition.

When the kids are home for a "snow-day" and need a fun project, try smearing pine cones with peanut butter and covering them with seeds. Hang them on the trees in your yard and watch the birds come for a feast. Let's just hope they're not allergic.

MRS. ELLA MOORE CELEBRATES 105th

Mrs. Ella Moore

Mrs. Ella Taylor Moore celebrated her 105th birthday March 27th. Family and friends gathered at the Eagleville Community Center for this very important birthday celebration. Mrs. Moore, a native of Rover, presently makes her home in Nashville, Tennessee

MRS. BLANCHE COOK CELEBRATES 100th

Mrs. Blanche Cook

Family and friends celebrated with Mrs. Blanche Cook at her home in Bell Buckle on her 100th Birthday, March 19, 2011!

Mrs. Cook and her husband owned and operated one of the first antique shops in Bell Buckle. She is well known for her excellent quilting. She attends the Bell Buckle Church of Christ every Sunday.

Her children are Charles A. Cook (wife, Jo), Bell Buckle and Rubye J. Jarrell, Eagleville. Local grandchildren and great-grandchildren are Kay & Christina Ash, Murfreesboro and Joseph Ash, Eagleville.

Belly Dancers and Stud Muffins aaa

I'm healthy right now – knock on wood – but it only takes a glimpse of someone 10, 20, and 30 years older than me to know that health is a transient thing. You never know how long you're going to have it.

Most of us will take precautions to hang on to their health as long as possible. We take vitamins, eat right, and exercise. A few of us have the conviction that you can't live forever anyway, so why not do just what you please and deal with health issues when they arise. We are the reason health insurance is so expensive.

I fall somewhere in-between. Because those two trains of thought are so extreme, I find myself vacillating between them every few weeks.

Currently, I am in the stage where I want to live long enough to see my great-great-grandchildren, no matter how many donuts I have to give up. Well, okay, I will probably never give up donuts, but I do take less mayonnaise on my ham and cheese sandwich.

Exercise is probably good for me. If I could do it consistently, I could burn those donuts off my thighs. Unfortunately, I have the kind of body that, if I should try to take a jog every morning, like some of my fanatic (but skinny) neighbors, everything would shake loose and I'd need a chiropractor to put it all back together again. Picture a woman made of Legos trying to jog. Yeah, you've got it now.

In the interest of self-health, I have started turning on the TV every morning. Yes, I know that doesn't help, but I put it on the Fitness Channel and watch it standing up. I should get half of a health-point for doing that.

The Fitness Channel appears to be all about people bending themselves into pretzels and smiling while they are doing it. It's very inspirational, until I realize that I might be past the point of no return where pretzel-bending is concerned.

There is some Indian chick I watch that does belly dancing moves. I just know that trying to make my belly do that would surely knock all of my knick-knacks off my mantel. My belly doesn't work like hers. Can bellies be retrained?

Gilad, the "Israeli stud-muffin", struts his considerable stuff all over the screen and I can barely get excited. He makes stomach crunches look like a party to which I wasn't invited. All the lesser stud-muffins and cupcakes behind him are always smiling and never seem to break a sweat. It's depressing.

Then there are the beautiful people that exercise by doing popular dance moves. I never learned to dance like that. When I try, I look like a beluga whale having an epileptic seizure. My husband tells me to stop scaring the children.

At some point, if I want to stay healthy, I will have to get serious, take off my bathrobe and actually start doing these exercises. For now, it's enough to watch them until they seem normal... or until I'm back in the "I don't give a darn" stage – whichever comes first.

Is it possible to get healthy merely by watching people sweat?

Recipe Of The Week

Pork Ribs With Sweet Pepper
Dry Rub

Servings: 4

Cooking Time:

2 HRS 30 MIN

INGREDIENTS:

2 1/2 pounds spare ribs
1/2 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 tablespoon onion powder
1 tablespoon garlic powder
2 tablespoons chili powder
1 tablespoon salt
1/4 cup sweet paprika
2 1/2 teaspoons ground black pepper
2 teaspoons dry mustard
1 teaspoon ground thyme
1 1/2 tablespoons celery salt

STEPS:

In a medium bowl combine brown sugar and remaining ingredients. Rub spare ribs with seasonings until well coated. Preheat oven to 250 ° F. Wrap ribs in 2 layers of heavy duty aluminum foil. Bake 2 hours.
Remove from oven and unwrap. Grill over medium-high heat 30 minutes or until desired degree of tenderness.
