Gold Wings Roll Into Eagleville

By Ken & Shirley Craddock

Ninety-nine Gold Wing motorcycle riders celebrated the 5th of July in Eagleville. After visiting the Stones River Battlefield in Murfreesboro and Henry Horton State Park, 54 Honda Gold Wing motorcycles and 3 trucks rolled into the Eagleville Mini Storage complex.

The riders included 60 visitors from 15 states of the U.S. and 5 provinces of Canada. The whole group enjoyed RC's and Moon Pies while they waited to tour the Chesley Williams mansion owned by Mr. Alan Ball and the John Turner Museum to view Civil War memorabilia. Many of the group later rode to the farm of Dr. Jay Milam in Rover to witness the firing of blanks from authentic reproduction civil war cannons. Some of them even fired the cannons themselves.

Hosted by the Gold Wing Road Riders Association (GWRRA) Tennessee Chapter Y of Murfreesboro, the group was visiting sites associated with the War Between the States in the Middle Tennessee area. Most of them had been in Nashville for the week of Wing Ding 28, which is an international convention of Honda Gold Wing motorcyclists.

Chapter Y was sponsoring a Civil War Tour ride from Nashville through Rutherford, Bedford, and Marshall Counties for other Chapter Y members from other states and countries. GWRRA is a non-profit, non-political, and non-religious organization for Gold Wing riders all over the world which promotes "fun, safety, and knowledge."

Even though there were numerous heavy thundershowers, the tour group had a fun day in Eagleville and the surrounding area as evidenced by comments

Small Towns Have Strong Histories

Small Towns have Strong Histories and Eagleville is no exception. And thanks to the tireless effort of Don McCord and Bobbie Sue Shelton, the legends, families, business histories, and stories of Eagleville are preserved for future generations.

Don McCord whose family traces its roots to the Eagleville area since the 1800's has always been interested in history and genealogy and began working on the Eagleville book in 1999. Bobbie Sue Shelton, also a life-long resident of Eagleville, shares a love of genealogy and used her experience gained while working on the History of Don McCord and Bobbie Sue Shelton at the recent book signing hosted by Paula Tipton held at Regions Bank in Eagleville...

Rover "Bedford County", published in 1986, to contribute to this book.

The book has been well received by long time residents of Eagleville and by those who have recently moved to the area. With over 500 pages, it is an exhaustive document that includes the history of churches, schools and businesses in Eagleville. The largest section is devoted to the family histories and stories that contributed to the character of the community that exists today. Adding to the impressive narratives, the book contains over 200 pictures which all predate 1960. These photographs show historic homes, businesses, schools and other buildings of Eagleville's past and showcase many of the families that have lived or continue to live in the area.

A recent book signing, hosted by Paula Tipton at the Regions Banks gave both authors a chance to talk about their efforts to capture the history of our town. Those who attended the signing enjoyed the chance to compare stories with the authors. Area residents also shared with the authors the impact having their history and the history of the Eagleville Community preserved in print. Everyone is very appreciative of the work these two authors completed for this project.

Third Year Anniversary

Small town paper isn't a small enterprise. After 3 years of publication, Eagleville Times continues to grow in length, frequency and circulation. August 1, 2003, the paper began as a monthly publication and now includes two issues each month. Articles are submitted by a growing number of writers, some of who have a regular column and some who submit an occasional special interest piece. The paper has expanded to include reports from many neighboring communities including Rockvale, College Grove, Chapel Hill, Arrington, Rover and others. Space in the paper also showcases pictures which highlight community events and celebrate events of local families. Beginning as a very "local" paper, the circulation has grown to over 2,500 copies each month. These are distributed at various businesses in the many communities the paper covers as well as through home delivery within the state and outside of Tennessee as well. And each issue, the paper works hard to meet a high standard and to reflect the personality of our communities. Happy 3rd Birthday Eagleville Times and thanks to all who work so hard to bring the news to our door.

If you are interested in subscribing to the Eagleville Times, turn to page 22.

Don't forget, the online web edition can be viewed at: www.eaglevilletimes.com

Featuring archive of all the "Step Back in Time" and "Citizen" articles. Also, all veterans submitted can be viewed on the website.

For community convenience, a UPS drop-off box has been placed in front of Eagleville Drug Center. Letters and packages must be in the box by 4:00 pm for pickup.

A Step Back in Time

By Bobbie Sue Shelton

The Ash Hill Community of southeastern Williamson County like many small communities in rural Tennessee, is home to families with ancestors that have lived in the same area for several generations. Many family names appearing on a late 1800s map of this area are the same names of many Ash Hill area residents today. The Roberson family, natives of North Carolina, was one of several influential families of the area.

Two early 1900 businesses prospered for several years. According to the Flat Creek History "Its Land and Its People" around 1918 Grover Roberson, son of James L. "Jimmy" and grandson of John W. and Diademin Roberson built a country store on his property on Ash Hill Road. All grocery items needed by the farm families were sold at the store. The groceries were bought from Lem and John Warren who also owned a store at Duplex and were delivered to the Ash Hill store in a covered wagon. When the truck peddlers began coming through the neighborhood, the store was closed around 1933.

Mr. Grover Roberson also operated a gristmill for the convenience of his neighbors bringing their corn to be ground into meal. Mr. Grover received his "toll" for grinding the corn, which was a certain amount of the corn for his own use. Arthur "Sal" Tucker who lived at Ash Hill in the 1930s remembered his family would shell the corn while setting around the fire at night. His father, Winston, would send him to the mill the next morning on their horse, Mike, with the shelled corn.

Jessie Roberson, son of John William and Diademin Roberson gave land for the Ash Hill School in the late 1800s, which remained a school until mid 1940s. Ash Hill School was a popular school for grades 1-8. As all other early country schools, one teacher taught all eight grades. Known teachers at Ash Hill School; Ms. Eggleston, Ms. Mary Alice Gillespie (Smith), Ms. Sheffield and Herbert McCall. In the mid 1930s drinking water was carried by students from a spring approximately ½ to 1 mile from the school. Students would make a drinking cup from their used notebook paper or drink from a dipper. In later years a water well was dug at the school and electricity was also added.

In a 1939-40 school register for Ash Hill School, the following students were enrolled: Abraham Lincoln Burnett, Alvin Eley, Joe Neal, Dave Crutcher, Edward Roberson, Raymond Roberson, Billy Wiley, J. T? Smithson, Marjorie Roberson, Jane Tucker, Jimmy Smithson, Ivy Smith, Frances Crutcher, Polly Crutcher, W. B. Crutcher, Elizabeth Smithson, Mary Elizabeth Tomlin, Lee Core Neal, J. D. Crutcher, Raymond Crutcher, Dorris Smithson, Lee Farris Eley Jr., J. W. Culberson, Raymond Core Smithson, J. C. Crutcher, Frances Creswell, Dorothy Smith, Frances Wiley, Lorene Smithson, Joe Crutcher, Thomas Hargrove, Rebecca Smithson, Jesse Carl Roberson, Fred Riley Smith, Ernest Roberson, Ruth Smith, Willie Hargrove, Willie Mae Crutcher, Arthur Tucker. Teacher: Mary Alice Gillespie

In the 1930s the children of Winston and Elnora Tucker was attending Ash Hill School. At Christmas one year, Jane Tucker, wanted to give her teacher, Miss Mary Alice Gillespie a Christmas present. Times were hard and with several children in the family, money wasn't always available for gifts. Elnora, Jane's mother, wrapped up one of her own pieces of jewelry, a pin, and gave Miss Gillespie. Years later, in the 1970s, Jane visited Mary Alice and she gave Jane the pin back

It has been said, "The Church is the Core of a Community". Businesses and even schools may fade away but the Church will survive time. The Ash Hill Church and Community is one example of this belief.

In April 1881 the Ash Hill Church congregation was organized as a branch of the Mount Carmel Church. The Reverend W. T. Dale under a brush arbor delivered the first sermon on the first Sunday in April. They continued preaching regularly until the third Sunday in July, when he held a Presbyterial Meeting. In October a revival meeting was held. Reverend Dale remained pastor for the year 1882 and by his advice the community began to build a church building. John Stephens gave enough land on which to build the Ash Hill Cumberland Presbyterian Church. W. B. Cathey donated the lumber. On the first Sunday in September 1883, a meeting was held in the new church. In 1887 the family names on roll of the Ash Hill Church congregation were: Walker, Hargrove, Cathey, Roberson, Carson, Postelle, Dobson, Fost, Baggy, and Sutherland. Some of these families still have descendents who are in regular attendance and have been since the church was organized. After 70 years, the old church was in need of repair, so the members met in September of 1953 and decided to build a new church. Mr. Jim Cathey donated the logs to be as lumber in the new building. He and Mr. Walker McCord laid the concrete blocks and other members helped complete the structure, which houses the congregation today. Rev. J. C. Bradford held dedication of the new church the fourth Sunday in April 1954. Several additions to the building have been added since 1954 many family names have been added to the church roll the last 123 years.

I want to express my appreciation to everyone who had a part in the publication "Flat Creek – It's Land And It's People". Much of the above information came from that publication. Also I want to thank Arthur "Sal" and Roy "Pete" Tucker for sharing their pictures and memories of living in Ash Hill. Preserving and documenting life of the early years in the communities we know as Home is vital for our future generations.

Fun Day At The TVPPA Show Grounds

Tennessee Valley Pioneer Power Association
By Buddy Woodson

On Saturday, July 15th, it wasn't about winning or losing, distances pulled or timed events, it was all about fun and appreciation of days gone by at the show grounds on a hot July day. There were no gatekeepers to collect admission, no entry fees for the events, only good food and fellowship for all who attended the day long event.

Antique tractors were available to anyone who wanted to take their turn pushing a barrel down the track or maneuvering through cones backwards and forwards and we had many first time drivers trying their skills.

It addition to our skillet throwing contest for the ladies that we debuted at last years show we added wrench throwing for the men using a rather large antique wrench that topped the scales over 9 lbs. Some of the teenage boys hurled the heavy wrench over 80 feet!!

Another first time event was the frozen tee shirt event. Four teams of four people were given tee shirts that had been frozen in a block of ice. The instructions were that the first team to successfully thaw the tee shirt and send one of their members back to the announcer wearing the tee shirt would be declared the winner. They could use any method to thaw the shirt except placing the shirt under running water. The winning team used heat from a John Deere tractor exhaust to thaw their shirt while others ran immediately to the gas fired grill that was cooking our pork loins for our supper. It still took the winning team approximately 20 minutes to free the shirt from the ice!!

The tractor pulling started with several teams double tree pulling where two tractors hook to the sled at one time just like two mules would have hooked to a plow in days gone by and ended with the traditional one tractor hook at a time. Everyone who brought tractors made several passes down the tract before the day ended.

Dwayne, Kathy, Chris, Penny, Pat and Richard Kieffer took care of preparing the food as Chris and Dwayne tried out their new home made grill large enough to feed a small army. It was made from two large LP tanks welded together with 3 large burners in the bottom fuels by 3 LP tanks. They cooked over 100 pounds of pork and several hamburgers all at one time!!

It was indeed a day of fun for all who attended and a warm up for our 19th Annual tractor show that will take place September 8, 9, and 10th. We would like to take this opportunity to again thank the Community of Eagleville and all of our faithful sponsors who have given so much of their time and money to help us grow.

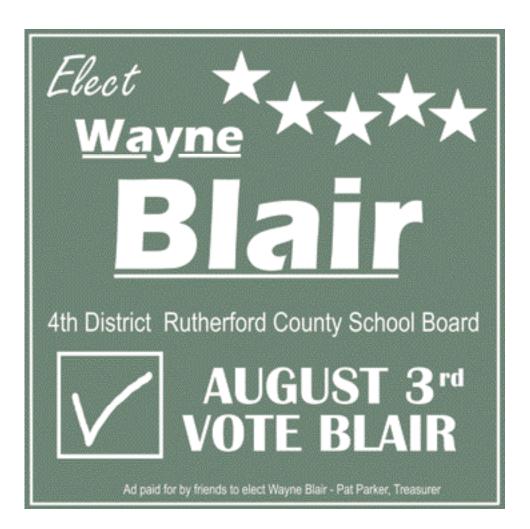

Our tractor club is a family club and we welcome all who would like to help us keep the past alive by hosting the annual shows in Eagleville.

LOCAL OPTOMETRIST TO PROVIDE INFANTSEE™ ASSESSMENTS AT NO-COST

Former President Carter and American Optometric Association Raise Awareness of Infant Eye Health

Rena R. Cron, OD is one of 7,000 optometrists nationwide who are participating in InfantSEE<sup>TM</sup>, a no-cost public health program developed to provide professional eye care for infants. Under this program, supported by former President Jimmy Carter, who serves as honorary national chair and spokesman, Dr. Cron and participating optometrist will provide a one-time, comprehensive eye assessment to infants in their first year of life, offering early detection of potential eye and vision problems at no cost regardless of income.

"I'm very proud to be involved in InfantSEE™ to ensure healthy vision for our community's infants," said Dr. Rena R. Cron of the Eagleville Eye Clinic.

InfantSEE™ was launched in June 2005 by the American Optometric Association (AOA), in partnership with The Vision Care Institute of Johnson & Johnson Vision Care, Inc.

"As parents, we regularly take our children to the dentist to help prevent cavities. Likewise, we should take our babies to the optometrist to help prevent potential eye and vision problems," said former President Carter. "Given my family's experience managing vision problems that were not caught early, I strongly encourage all parents with babies to visit an optometrist for and InfantSEE<sup>TM</sup> assessment during the first year of their child's life and I applaud AOA for providing parents this opportunity."

Using retinoscopy, optometrists can detect asymmetric development of refractive errors that can lead to amblyopia, often referred to as lazy eye, just as commonly as eye misalignment. Significant risk factors to eye and vision disorders, however, are typically not detectable by base-level infant eye screenings, and even early retinoblastoma (the seventh most common pediatric cancer) is detected more than 80 percent of the time by a family member or friend, as opposed to a health care professional.

Although infants cannot respond verbally, the first year of life is an ideal time to conduct and extensive eye assessment. Not only is this a critical time for eye and vision development, but generally children at this age do not yet fear doctor visits and find the assessment painless and often enjoyable. Typically, infants sit on their parent's lap during the assessment, in which the optometrist uses lights and other hand held objects to check that their eyes are working together and that there are no significant refractive issues that will impede proper vision development.

As part of the national launch, former President Carter issued a call-to-action through a public service announcement (PSA), which will educate parents about InfantSEE<sup>TM</sup> and urge them to take advantage of the program. The PSA cites his personal experience regarding his grandchildren's eye problems. His granddaughter was diagnosed and treated as a toddler for amblyopia, a leading cause of vision loss in people younger than 45, which will affect one in 30 children. His grandson's amblyopia was not identified until grade school and may never be fully corrected.

To learn more about InfantSEE<sup>TM</sup>, call toll-free (888) 396-EYES (3937) or visit www.infantsee.org. Dr. Cron can be reached at (615) 274-2102.

and notes from the guests.

Linda Lowe from Pennsylvania exclaimed, "Thank you again from the bottom of our hearts for a truly wonderful day. You and your friends made the Chapter "Y" ride the highlight of our trip to Nashville. Everything that day was just perfect, except maybe the weather. But even the rain cleared up long enough to shoot the cannons."

And, as stated by Judy Smith of New Jersey, "We made it home safe and are still talking about what a great trip we had to Nashville from New Jersey. Steve & I wanted to thank you both for a wonderful time on the civil war run and the shooting of the cannon."

Anyone interested in GWRRA chapter activities in the Middle Tennessee area can contact the Chapter Y Director Joey & Bridgette Hendren at (615) 355-1749 or email at foofyjay@comcast.net.

Shirley Craddock shooting the cannon, while her dad John Turner, supervises.

Garden Thyme With Tee By Tee Billingsly

General Plans:

Kill Japanese Beetles by spraying or dusting every week to ten days with Sevin.

Flowering Trees:

Spray dogwood with thiodan to kill Southern Borers on the first of August.

No planting or pruning this month.

Use Orthene or Sevin to control scale, spider mites, lacebug, leaf miner, spittlebug and leaf hopper.

Shrubs:

Do not prune spring flowering shrubs like azalea, viburnums, hollys and hydrangea. You will be cutting off the blooms for next year.

Flowers:

Scatter columbine seeds to bloom next year.

Try Coneflowers and Black-eyed Susans in the shade.

Roses:

Prune large rose bushes back 1/3 to force strong growth for fall blossoms.

Give a foliar fertilizer.

Keep well-mulched and watered in this hot weather.

The Chicken House

By Ann J. Huckaba

We did not know that we didn't know how to build a chicken house, my sister and I. When we planned to raise chickens to earn money, we needed a place to keep them as all other facilities were being used for the regular flock maintained by our parents. Well, of course, our answer was simple - we build our own. It never occurred to us there was anything else to be done.

Born and brought up on a farm, necessity developed ingenuity and self-confidence, and in the case of two very young girls, both under the age of twelve, I am sure it was unwarranted confidence, even so. Aside from the absurdity of the whole thing, as viewed from this distance of time, there was the matter of materials needed, lumber, nails, and use of tools required, all of which were in good supply on the farm, but items that were never to be squandered.

In retrospect, I would now really like to hear the conversation our parents had when this project was proposed. Or, did they even have a conversation regarding it? Perhaps they took the attitude, "Well, I wonder what they will try to do next!" I am sure they were well aware of our every move, but to their credit stayed completely out of it. More than likely, they were glad we were occupied and staying busy.

After selecting a site for our chicken house - far away from the other chickens - we gathered our materials and started work. I don't recall that we ever asked our Dad how or what to do. As I remember it, the structure was about four-feet deep and sixfeet long and tall enough for us to stand in - not large but adequate to hold the chicks we anticipated.

Now if anyone thinks our little house was some terribly rough, uneven structure that should immediately go to the trash heap, I assure you that was not the case. The boards were reasonable evenly sawn (yes, we knew how to use a T-square, mark the line and saw on the line because we had seen it done), then they were nailed to the corner support post, perfectly squared off. A spirit level was used to be sure the siding was properly aligned. (We knew the bubble had to be exactly between the little lines on the glass.) We made a door, found some old hinges and hung it. I believe the roof was of tin, something found in storage at the farm.

Yes, there were a lot of bent nails, and we had to take turn-about many times to get the boards cut. We were, after-all, little girls and these were heavy tools normally used by men. We never got to paint our masterpiece. That would have required cash money and we knew better than to even ask. If we could have painted it white and then put red paint on the roof, just think how wonderful it would have been!

To say our little house was anything a carpenter would acknowledge to be his work would be stating the ridiculous. To two little girls, it was beautiful. To our parents - I have no idea; compliments were to come by in our home. I think their attitude was that if you need a chicken house, you built it.

The little chicken house remained standing, serving its purpose for three or four years. I lost track of it when I was in school. I then went on with a life away from the farm, but over the years my sister and I each built many chicken houses, wherever and whenever we needed one.

Note: After writing this memoir, I talked with my sister who still lives in Middle Tennessee. She said the little chicken house was still standing when the farm was sold several years after I left.

The Eagleville Express By Rebecka Jackson, 8 years old

The Eagleville Express won the Silver Tournament Championship. We had to play three games in one night. We were all tired. But we did it. We were all hitting good. We played the field great. I was tenth batter and hit a home run. Elizabeth Goad got home two or three times. Cole Miller got a lot of people out. Coach James was a really good pitcher. The base coaches were good too. Horace Jackson was 1 base coach. And Lonnie Jones was 3 base coach. I tagged a boy out and he laid flat on the ground. Before the games Kelsie Waggoner got hit with a softball. We had to play the Flames that had not been beat in the tournaments. They were from Lanneane. And when I tagged that boy out Coach James came to me and slapped my hand. But everybody played a great game the whole time. It was very hard to beat the Flames. And that is how the Eagleville Express won the tournament.

GOD IS BESIDE US

God is beside us each step of the way, If only we lean on His arm as we pray. His love is eternal and help can be wrought, If Faith is applied in each prayer and thought. Doubt sees the obstacles, Faith sees the way.

Doubt sees the blackest night,

Faith sees the day.

Doubt dreads to take a step,

Faith soars on high.

Doubt questions, "Who believes?"

Faith answers, "I".

Now doesn't that make a cup of blessing for God so fair?

Since life is short, we need to make it broad,

Since life is brief we need to make it right.

He looks down at us; His eyes are full of love,

The angels are singing, sweet notes from above.

I reached for His hand,

He reached for mine,

He touched me and smiled.

His smile was so divine.

May we all look and have Faith that we will

See the silver lining someday.

Love to all,

Maye Taylor

Travels of the Wandering Fool By Lee S.

Hello and welcome and welcome once again to the Travels of the Wandering Fool. I, as I'm sure you have guessed by now, am the Fool and I tend to wander around the Middle Tennessee area in search of good food and great entertainment. I do all this so that I may tell you a story or two about my findings. Join me as I shed some light on 3 dark movies in theatres now. One is about the maniacal and controlling side of fashion, one about the dark side of the sea, and the final film is and animated depiction of a living haunted house.

The Devil Wears Prada is a look at the dark side of the fashion magazine industry. This film, based on the novel of the same name written by Lauren Weisberger (which is rumored to be based on the editor of Vogue Magazine) stars Ann Hathaway as Andy, a fresh college graduate with no sense of style to speak of. Parents may remember Miss Hathaway from a similar roll in the Princess Diaries and the Princess Diaries 2 or her role as another princess in Ella Enchanted. Andy (Hathaway) gets a job working as an assistant to Miranda Priestly (Meryl Streep) who is quite literally the toughest boss I've ever seen. Miranda (Streep) is the editor of Runway magazine and has the power to make or break designers in the fashion world, her subtle facial expressions acting as a cue as to whether a dress is worthy or garbage in her eyes. Despite Miranda's cold, bitter, sometimes scathing exterior hides the heart of a woman dealing with her own problems. At one point in the film, we see Miranda Priestly at her rock bottom with no makeup. For someone who makes a living looking pristine and making others feel that they must do the same, that is saying a lot. The film follows the trials and tribulations of Andy as she struggles to find a balance between her tyrannical boss and her boyfriend.

Though this movie is quite different from most being released this summer, it isn't for everyone. The film felt as though it lacked something though. I'm guessing that would be humor. While there was some, there remained large gaps of time that just weren't all that funny. That's why I give The Devil Wears Prada 3 maniacle fashion mavens out of 5.

This summer, Johnny Depp, Keira Knightley and Orlando Bloom return in the swashbuckling tale, Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Man's Chest. The film is decidedly darker than its predecessor but is still filled with the stunts, fights, and comedic timing movie goers have come to expect from summer blockbuster films. Dead Man's Chest is loosely based on the sailor's tale of Davy Jones and his ship the Flying Dutchman. The catch in this film, as with more Disney movie versions of classic stories is that something if different. Davy Jones and his crew are human/animal hybrids from the depths of the sea. These hybrids range from octopus to crabs and sharks. Their ship even looks as if it were plucked from the ocean floor and cobbled together from bones, driftwood and barnacles.

There are quite a few references to the Pirates of the Caribbean ride as Disneyworld as well. Those who have been may remember a jail scene in which a dog is holding the keys while prisoners are trying to reach for it. In this film, the prisoners are reaching for something a bit different.

While there isn't blood in this film there are quite a few fights as well as a few scenes that may give little ones nightmares. The action sequences can and will keep you on the edge of your seat whether it be swinging a large orb shaped cage made of human bones or a sword fight taking place atop an out of control waterwheel. I will admit though that the movie left me feeling let down as things drew to an end over two hours after it began. I looked at a clock and asked myself, 'they're not really going to go on another adventure now are they?" It should also be noted that Disney filmed this movie along with the third movie in the Pirates of the Caribbean trilogy. Hopefully the third movie will tie up a couple of loose ends left by this film. Having taken all this into consideration, I give Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Man's Chest 4 swashbuckling "Arrrrg"s out of 5 – me heartey.

How do you stop an evil house that is eating your neighbors? Sony's new animated release, Monster House answers that question and more.

Monster House is the tale of an evil house that has come to life, eating anyone who dares to trespass on its lawn. The film follows DJ, voiced by Mitchell Musso (Voice of Ang from Nickelodeons Avatar the Last Airbender and Oliver from Disney's Hannah Montanna) as well as his pal Chowder and a new friend named Jenny. When the crotchety old neighbor (Voiced by Steve Buscemi) has a heart attack the house seeks revenge on anyone foolish enough to step off the sidewalk whether they are adults, children or even dogs. Parents, Babysitters and even the local police won't believe what is going on, leaving it up to the three courageous children to solve the problem.

The film, though aimed at children, has humor geared for adults as well. Even with the scary nature of the haunted home, most children will enjoy the movie. The plot seemed to move well and there were a number of good action sequences. I still maintain that small children may be frightened by this movie so parents should decide if their child can handle it.

Sitting in the theatre, I saw many families and even some lone adults and a few teenage couples. The film really is for all ages. That is why I give Monster House 4 howling good times out of 5.

That's all for this edition's travels of the Wandering Fool. I hope you enjoyed reading it as much as I enjoyed living it. As always, if you would like to recommend any local restaurants or shows (including any local plays) that you think I should wander by in future editions, please send an email to the fool@chaoswebdesign.com.

All reviews are the opinion of the Wandering Fool and guest reviewers only and do not reflect the opinions of the Eagleville Times.

BANANA SPLIT CAKE

- 1-1/2 cups graham cracker crumbs
- 1 cup sugar, divided
- 1/3 cup butter, melted
- 2 pkg. (8 oz. each) cream cheese, softened
- 1 can (20 oz.) crushed pineapple, drained
- 6 medium bananas, divided
- 2 cups cold milk
- 2 pkg. (4-serving size each) vanilla flavor instant pudding & pie filling
- 2 cups thawed whipped topping, divided
- 1 cup pecans, chopped

Mix crumbs, 1/4 cup of the sugar and the butter; press firmly onto bottom of 13x9inch pan. Freeze 10 min. Beat cream cheese and remaining 3/4 cup sugar with electric mixer on medium speed until well blended. Spread carefully over crust; top with pineapple. Slice 4 of the bananas; arrange over pineapple. Pour milk into medium bowl. Add dry pudding mixes. Beat with wire whisk 2 minutes or until well blended. Gently stir in 1 cup of the whipped topping; spread over banana layer in pan. Top with remaining 1 cup whipped topping; sprinkle with pecans. Refrigerate 5 hours. Slice remaining 2 bananas just before serving; arrange over dessert. Store leftover dessert in refrigerator.

FROM THE WORLD WIDE WEB - WWW

For those of you that don't have internet email, you tend to miss out on some pretty good statistics or jokes that get passed around the internet. For you, I decided to share some of this interesting fun. *Intended for fun only. No guarantees to authenticity.

History Lesson - Believe It or Not

Abraham Lincoln was elected to Congress in 1846. John F. Kennedy was elected to Congress in 1946.

Abraham Lincoln was elected President in 1860. John F. Kennedy was elected President in 1960.

Both were particularly concerned with civil rights.

Both wives lost their children while living in the White House.

Both Presidents were shot on a Friday.

Both Presidents were shot in the head.

Now it gets really weird.

Lincoln 's secretary was named Kennedy. Kennedy's Secretary was named Lincoln.

Both were assassinated by Southerners.

Both were succeeded by Southerners named Johnson.

Andrew Johnson, who succeeded Lincoln, was born in 1808. Lyndon Johnson, who succeeded Kennedy, was born in 1908.

John Wilkes Booth, who assassinated Lincoln, was born in 1839. Lee Harvey Oswald, who assassinated Kennedy, was born in 1939. **

Both assassins were known by their three names.

Both names are composed of fifteen letters.

Now hang on to your seat.

Lincoln was shot at the theater named 'Ford.'

Kennedy was shot in a car called 'Lincoln' made by 'Ford.'

Lincoln was shot in a theater and his assassin ran and hid in a warehouse. Kennedy was shot from a warehouse and his assassin ran and hid in a theater.

Booth and Oswald were assassinated before their trials.

And here's the kicker...

A week before Lincoln was shot, he was in Monroe, Maryland. A week before Kennedy was shot, he was with Marilyn Monroe.
