Work To Begin On Eagleville City Park Walking Trail

BY GLENDA DYER

Eagleville councilmen accepted a $50,000 bid from a Murfreesboro firm at a called meeting July 31 to pave a walking trail and other areas at the city park.

The winning bidder was Hollingshead Concrete Co. Five other bids were received, including a lower bid from freesboro for $47,612.

Councilmen voted unanimously to accept the bid from Hollingshead, who has done the other paving work at the park. All councilmen were present except Councilman M.A. Smitty.

"This is who we have used so far, and they have done good work but these other people might do fine," said Vice Mayor Ronnie Hill, who oversees the Hill noted that Hollingshead had made donations to the park but said that he did not know if "that should matter."

Councilman David Rigsby said that whether the company donated or not does not "sway" him, but he indicated he would rather select the company that had already successfully done work at the park.

Councilmen also commented they were not bound by the lowest bid.

"My personal preference is I would rather go with them (Hollingshead) because I don't have to worry with them and because otherwise I would have to be down there watching," Hill added.

The state agency that has overseen a Williamson Construction Co. of Mur- $600,000, 50/50-matching grant for the park must now approve the contract with the bidder before the work can begin. The 50/50 match means the state will pay up to $300,000 for the project and the city must match the amount the state pays up to $300,000.

> The walking trail is expected to be the last project under the matching grant, which ends about October and has a maximum amount of $90,000 left in it. Because the city has to match each dollar the grant pays, the most that the city can receive from the remaining grant will be $45,000.

> The city has about $15,000 in the park fund now so will have to borrow $35,000 from the general fund to pay for the concrete work, which has to be done and paid for before the end of September. The city then has 45 days to turn in its

As of July 31, the city had $38,117 in the general fund, according to City Recorder Colleen Adams. Mayor Nolan Barham indicated that if cash flow should get tight the city could use its certificate of deposit to meet expenses.

In order for the city to realize the total of the $90,000 grant amount, it will have to come up with about $40,000 more in expenditures in addition to the money being spent for the walking trail paving.

Vice Mayor Ronnie Hill said that the city has already paid some park expenses such as about $8,000 donated by the county toward paving the road to the park and some other donated work that would go toward the matching amount.

Hill said he expects the cost of the walking trail paving to come in at about $48,500 instead of $50,000, because he plans to dig out the area for the trail after loosening the dirt with a tiller instead of having the contractor do that work. Hill said he talked with Hollingshead the day after the bid was accepted, and the company agreed to reduce the bid by $1,500 for his doing that work.

Other bids received included Roy T. Goodwin Contractors of Nashville, $86,850; Wayne Workman Construction Co. of Dickson, $63,250; Middle 10 Contractors of Lebanon, $59,800, and Preston Brothers Construction Co. of Woodbury, $63,516.

The bid specifications for the walking trail paving project include 2,233 feet of 6-foot wide sidewalk, 150 feet of sidewalk 12 feet wide at the pavilion, four bench areas along the sidewalk that are 10 by 12 feet, a 23-inch by 6-foot pavement at the memorial brick area, a 10 by 21-foot corner area and a 10 by 15-foot drive-in entrance area.

Letter To The Editor

There comes a time when one has to speak his or her mind and that time has cal Government Committee in the Tencome for me.

I recently learned of a bill that is being presented in Congress called the Military Voting Protection Act. It is HR 5673, introduced by Congressman Kevin McCarthy (R-CA).

This bill would require the Pentagon to collect absentee ballots overseas and deliver them stateside by express air transport. This would shorten the delivery times for overseas ballots from 3 weeks to only 4 days. More importantly, it would mean that thousands of military ballots rejected in 2004 would be counted in 2008.

A recent survey by the Election Assistance Commission revealed that of the almost one million ballots requested in the last election by overseas and military voters, only about one-third were successfully cast and counted. Most of the bors and acquaintances. Please ask them votes that were disqualified were stricken because the requested ballots sent to military voters were returned as "undeliverable" or because the mailed ballots were received by the local Election Commissions too late for them to be counted.

The National Association of Secretaries of State, composed of both Democrat and Republican Secretaries of State from across the United States, has endorsed the Military Voting Protection Act.

Currently House and Senate Demo- Floor Leader cratic Party leaders are blocking the Act Tennessee State Senate from moving to a vote.

As Chairman of the Senate State & Lonessee General Assembly, which oversees all election laws, I have worked with this bi-partisan committee to insure that every registered voter vote is counted in Tennessee and those not registered are not counted. We work to insure that all voting laws are fair and never disenfranchising.

There are currently 41 co-sponsors of HR 5673. Only one Democrat, Congressman Dan Boren (D-OK) has signed on. Congresswoman Marsha Blackburn (R-TN) has joined as a co-sponsor.

We currently have men and women in uniform serving their country to protect our freedoms and the American way of life. Some will even shed their blood or, worse, give their life for us as we speak.

Here is where you can make a difference. You have friends, family, neighto call, e-mail, or fax their Congressmen and Senators in every state in which they

As we approach the most important presidential election of your lifetime, please give our military the right for their vote to be counted this November. Please ask your congressmen to vote for the Military Voting Protection Act HR 5673.

Nolensville Historical Society Journal

The Nolensville Historical Society is in the midst of printing its fourth journal. This year's family articles are: The Wiley Jobe Family and the Sherwood Jenkins Family, plus an in-depth history of all the known schools surrounding Nolensville. An added feature will be the life of George William Johnson. Bill, as all Nolensville knew him, was the builder and owner of modified stock cars. He raced the area short dirt tracks in Tennessee, Alabama and Kentucky in the late 1940's, the 1950's and early 1960's. Some of Bill's drivers were Pete Eudailey, Frank Reed and Jimmy Griggs who competed with Coo Coo and Jack Marlin, P.B. Crowell, Bobby Mayes, Bobby Talley and Bullett Bob Reuther.

Our Society is taking pre-publication orders for our journal until September 1, 2008. All orders are prepaid - $15.00 per copy - if mailed add $3.00 for postage and handling. Attention Rockvale Fire Department District

The Rockvale district has lowered the ISO Class rating down from a ISO Class 9 to a new lower rating of ISO Class 7 / 9. This means that residents in the Rockvale fire district may be able to save money on their homeowners insurance policies due to the lower rating. Contact your insurance company and provide them with this information and ask them to check and update your policies.

The Rockvale Volunteer firefighters have worked very hard and put in several volunteered hours to be able to achieve this goal!

A Step Back in Time

There was an estimate that four billion people watched the Opening Ceremony for the 2008 Summer Olympic Games in Beijing, China on August 8th. The opening ceremony for the Olympic Games is the biggest live production of it's kind. There's pressure to perform, pressure to be imaginative and for the host country, it's like inviting the world into your living room. So for the next two weeks, the world will be guests of Beijing, watching extraordinary athletes exhibit years of training and the best, awarded for their hard work and dedication.

Just how far back in history, organized athletic contests were held, remains a matter of debate. Of all the games held throughout Greece, the Olympic Games were the most famous. Held every four years between August 6 and September 19, they occupied such an important place in Greek history, that the late antiquity historians measured time by the interval between them—an Olympiad. The Olympic Games, like almost all Greek games, were an intrinsic part of a religious festival.

The modern Olympic Games are named for athletic contests held in ancient Greece for almost 12 centuries. They were banned in AD 394 but were revived and made international in 1896. The Winter Games were added in 1924. World War I and II forced cancellation of the Olympics in 1916, 1940, and 1944, but they resumed in 1948 and are held every four years. In 1986 the International Olympic Committee voted to change the schedule of the Olympic Games so that the Summer and Winter Games would be held in different years. After 1992 the Winter and Summer Games were no longer held within the same calendar year. To adjust to this new schedule, the Lillehammer, Norway Winter Games were held in 1994, the only time that two Games have been staged two years apart. The Winter Games were played after only a two-year interval and every four years thereafter. The Summer Games were scheduled for 1996, and every four years thereafter. The following is a list of location and year of the Olympic Games; Summer Games since 1896 and Winter Games since 1924.

* In 1996 when the Summer Olympic Games were held in Atlanta, Georgia, our small community played a part in the pregame events. On June 26, 1996 a record crowd of people gathered in our highly decorated little town, Eagleville, to watch the Olympic Torch be escorted through downtown by the Eagleville Police, Rutherford County Sheriff's Patrol and the Georgia State Police. It was estimated as many as 2,000, possibly more, watched and cheered as a caravan of Olympic vehicles and the torchbearer was ushered through town. The Olympic torch entered Tennessee from the Carolinas and spent the night in Knoxville before moving to Nashville. It was guarded by Georgia State Patrol troopers that evening. The following morning, the torch continued its cross-country trek en route to Atlanta. After passing through Nashville and Franklin it made its way into Eagleville, which was the only city in Rutherford County that had this honor. The

Olympic Games - Then and Now

Olympic flame began its 84-day journey in the United States. Los Angeles on April 27th. Since that time, the flame traveled by several methods, the most unusual being by train, steamboat, crop duster airplane and horseback.

To show Eagleville's appreciation of being on the torch route, the businesses as well as homeowners decorated windows, poles, mailboxes and almost any available space for two miles along Main Street, from the city limits on the north end to the city limits south of Eagleville. Red, white and blue were the colors of the day. A small parade, complete with the Eagleville High School Color Guard and several law enforcement vehicles and guests preceded the torch.

The centennial Olympic Games opened August 4th, in Atlanta, Georgia with 10,318 athletes from a record of 197 nations in attendance. The opening ceremonies, which began 16 days of athletic competition, featured a tribute to the ancient Greek games and slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King, Jr. Former world heavyweight boxing champion and Olympic gold medallist, Muhammad Ali, lit the Olympic torch, which completed a 15,000-mile trek across

The games featured 28 delegations that were participating for the first time. Tight security and Atlanta's hot and humid August weather were major concerns for Olympic organizers and those attending the games. In spite of security precautions, a homemade pipe bomb loaded with nails and screws exploded at a late-night concert in Centennial Olympic Park, killing one person and wounding more than 100 others.

Atlanta, Georgia was chosen for the location of the 1996 Olympic Games over Athens, Greece, Belgrade Yugoslavia, Manchester Great Britain, Melbourne Australia and Toronto Canada. It took 47,466 volunteers to assist in all aspects of the 16 days of events. I don't know if anyone from this area attended the Olympic Games in Atlanta but everyone who was in attendance in Eagleville, Tennessee on June 26, 1996 when the torch passed through, participated in the pre-games by cheering the torchbearer and the Olympic caravan through our town, an experience that may not ever happen again.

COUNTRY HAM BREAKFAST

By Bobbie Sue Shelton-Lonas

For the past several years an (by invitation only) appreciation breakfast has been held to extend thanks and appreciation for workers, volunteers and those who have contributed to the success of the Flat Creek Ice Cream Supper. This year on Friday morning, July 18th, a very delicious country ham breakfast with all the trimmings was again enjoyed by a large number of supporters. Tom Lawrence, of radio station WAKM, conducted a live broadcast from the community center, interviewing individuals promoting the ice cream supper.

Scenes from the very successful 111th Flat Creek Ice Cream Supper, held July 19th at the Flat Creek Community Center. In addition to the delicious food, especially the homemade ice cream, pies and cakes, several activities were enjoyed. An ice cream eating contest was held for the Williamson County sheriff candidates, an old-fashioned cakewalk, an auction of donated items and to conclude, fireworks was enjoyed by this large crowd.

Music City RV Fails to Pay Lenders

BBB alerts Middle Tennessee and Southern Kentucky residents to the business practices of Music City RV, operated by Gary Armagh, President.

BBB has received a pattern of complaint alleging consumers signed contracts to purchase a motor coach vehicle using a trade-in as a down payment. Once the deal was approved Music City RV was obligated to satisfy the bank lien against the trade-in motor coach; however, the company failed to do so. Another complaint indicated the consumer consigned a motor coach for re-sale, but when the vehicle sold the company again failed to satisfy the bank lien. The value of these motor coach liens range from $59,000 - $100,000. BBB has since become aware of a lawsuit filed by a financial institution against Music City RV for failure to satisfy loans granted to the company. The lawsuit is currently pending.

This company's BBB Accreditation status has been placed under Suspension for failure to honor BBB Accredited Business Standards. If you have had an unsatisfactory business experience with Music City RV please contact Chris Hubbard at 615-250-4233 or visit www. bbb.org to file a complaint.

BBB offers the following general advice:

Consumers should understand they are contractually responsible to their financial institution for all payments on any vehicle used as a trade-in until the financial institution receives payment in full. In order to avoid any late fees, added interest or negative credit history consumers should continue making their monthly auto payment until the financial institution provides documentation that the lien has been satisfied. Any over payments will be refunded to the consumer once the auto dealership fulfills its purchase agreement with the consumer to satisfy the lien.

If you are looking for a reputable recreational vehicle dealership visit our website at www. bbb.org, enter your zip code and click on E-Quote. This is a free service that will instantly put you in touch with BBB Accredited businesses you can trust.

BBB & FTC Cautions Consumers about Voter Registration Scams

Have you received an unsolicited email or phone call from someone who claims to represent your local election board or another civic group and asks for your Social Security number or credit card number to confirm your eligibility or registration to vote?

According to the Better Business Bureau and the Federal Trade Commission, the nation's consumer protection agency, unsolicited messages from people who claim to need your Social Security number or other personal information as a pretext to register you to vote — or to confirm your registration — could be a scam designed to steal your personal information. The scammers may use the information to commit identity theft.

As a rule, federal officials say, organizations conducting legitimate voter registration drives either contact you in person or give you a voter registration form that you fill out yourself. They will not ask you to provide your financial information.

If you receive an unsolicited phone call or email from someone who claims to need your Social Security number or other personal or financial information to register you to vote, report it to the BBB at www.bbb.org http://www.bbb.org/ or 615-242-4222 and the FTC at ftc.gov http://www.ftc.gov, or 1-877-FTC-HELP. If you already have shared your personal information with someone you don't know, you may be the victim of a scam. File your complaint, then visit ftc.gov/idtheft http://www.ftc.gov/idtheft.

To register to vote — and to find out whether your state requires your Social Security number for registration — contact your local election office, or check the U.S. Election Assistance Commission's National Voter Registration Form at www.eac.gov/voter <file://localhost/htttp/::www.www.eac.gov:voter> . Most states accept this form. Many states and localities have their own rules about how far in advance of an election you must register to be able to vote, and whether a Social Security number is required for registration.

MT. PLEASANT BAPTIST CHURCH BIBLE SCHOOL

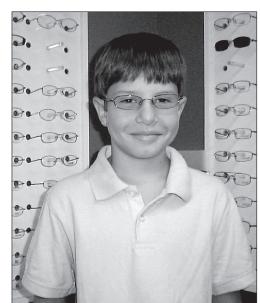

Mt. Pleasant Baptist Church experienced a great week of Vacation Bible School recently. With an enrollment of 99, and an average attendance of 91, teachers and students kept very busy from 9 to 12 each day with studies, crafts and recreation. The Bible School was fortunate to have five summer missionaries from Murfreesboro to help with all the activities. Studying Bible Stories about serving God carried out this year's theme, "I'm In The Lord's Army". There was also a lot of "marching" from one session to another. Recreation included, sock races, obstacle courses and tug of war, with all present enjoying delicious refreshments each day. The craft classes were busy decorating backpacks, tie-dyed T-shirts, bookmarkers and sun catchers

The classes also engaged in a competition of bringing the largest number of aluminum cans, to be collected and sold, with the money, along with each day's offering, being donated to the Baptist Children's Home. Another very worthwhile project during this week, was bringing items to prepare boxes to be sent to the soldiers from the community.

A very successful week ended with the commencement on Saturday, followed with a cook out for all the children and parents. During the Bible School, three people made a decision for Christ. A Baptismal Service was held August 10th.

Little Stories About You & Me

By Nancy Allen

Runaway Writer

No doubt about it, she had a story to tell. Joy Grace volunteered at the local nursing home once a week, mostly talking to the residents. Her smiles and presence lightened hearts and softened faces. But one man sat in his wheelchair unable to stand for he had no legs and unable to smile for he had no joy.

Joy Grace said, "good morning," as she quickly walked by the silent, hard faced man. For five months she passed him by until one day she felt she had to try to talk to him. Walking up to his chair, she knelt down by his side and said, "good morning, my name is Joy. How are you today?"

She waited, looking into his snarled face. He said, "what do you care?" He closed his eyes, turned his head and shut

She patted him on the hand and said, "I do care."

One of the nurses told Joy, "don't let him bother you, honey. Mr. Silas is mean to everybody. He's been here nearly a year. He doesn't have any family or friends. I've never seen him talk to any-

The next week when Joy visited the nursing home, she stopped by Mr. Silas' chair.

"How are you today, Mr. Silas?"

"Who told you my name?"

"A little bird told me. What's your last name?"

"Campbell, what's it to you?"

"Mr. Campbell, I just want you to know that I'll be praying for you and I will be back to see you next week," said Joy.

Mr. Campbell mumbled something under his breath that Joy Grace couldn't make out.

During the week while working on her genealogy Joy came across a great, great grandfather whose name was Silas Campbell. How odd. Could it be? She thought. When she left for the nursing home she took the genealogy information with her. This time she went to Mr. Campbell's chair first.

"Good morning. How are you today?" she began.

"Don't matter much how I am," said Mr. Campbell.

Ignoring his disposition Joy Grace pulled out her papers and handed them to Mr. Silas. "Who was your grandfather?" she asked.

Slinging the paper on the floor, "What's it to you?" said Mr. Campbell.

Joy patiently picked the papers up off the floor.

"If you had a grandfather named Silas Campbell, it means a lot to me. We could be cousins.

Silas Campbell looked up at Joy for the first time.

"I was named after my grandpa. He was a good man."

Joy reached down and embraced the old man. She could feel him soften as tears came to his eyes. That was enough for one day, but Joy and Silas soon had longer visits talking of family and of the good old days. Later that year, Mr. Silas was even baptized into the Episcopal church and now the priest and some of the parishioners visited him too.

When Joy saw an article in the newspaper advertising a writing contest, she decided to enter her story about finding her cousin in the Nursing Home. The contest was being held by a local writer's group. So, Joy wrote her story and submitted it.

Everyone who entered the contest was invited to attend the awards ceremony and banquet. When Joy arrived she was surprised to see a gathering that looked like an event prepared for the rich and famous. She even recognized some faces she had seen on television. The governor

Feeling very out of place and nervous Joy left the gathering without speaking to anyone. The next day when she picked up her newspaper—there on the front page was a picture of two people and a space. Under the picture the caption read: First place winner—Joy Grace Campbell. (unavailable for picture), Second place winner—Harry Ball; Third pace winner—Mary Talley.

When she told Mr. Silas about the story and showed him the article in the newspaper he laughed for the first time in a long time.

Three-Layer Motel

When it comes to rating hotels and motels, we generally use the number of stars as a guide: Five stars being the best, one star being the worst.

That's an okay system, but I find that my system is a better indicator of good or bad accommodations. My system is called the Caulk System. Instead of stars, I use the number of layers of caulk around the bathroom fixtures as my barometer.

If a certain hotel has only one layer of caulk, that is a very fine hotel indeed. With only one layer of caulk, one can be assured that this hotel will have fluffy towels that will have only been used by a select few and washed thoroughly between uses. The coffee machine will come equipped with herbal teas, hot chocolate, and the finest Columbian coffee in decaf and extra bold. Someone will bring your suitcases to the room, and extra blankets can be had with a single call to housekeeping. You may even be delightfully surprised by one of those little mints on your pillow each night.

Two layers of caulk is still a nice hotel that might be falling on hard times. Two layers means you can still get a free continental breakfast served cafeteriastyle, but forget about those little wipes with which to polish your shoes or an iron to press your shirt. The towels are still fluffy, but you have to pull someone's teeth to get an extra one. The shower caps are still on the bathroom vanity, but that's only because no one has used a shower cap since Jimmy Carter was president. They usually have a surplus of shower caps and are just hoping someone will wrap their wet swimsuit in one and take it home with them.

Three layers of caulk means that the hair dryer might short out on "high" and at least one light switch won't turn on a light. The shower has two temperatures: ice cold and hotter than Hades, and in order to operate at full capacity, no one else in the motel can take a shower at the same time. The three-layer motel has a pool, but there may be unidentifiable foreign objects floating in it. The towels are low on the fluffy scale and they are only about the size of a postage stamp. When wrapped around you, it wouldn't completely cover your behind if you are larger than a size 4.

Four layers of caulk is getting pretty dicey. The TV has only one channel... the Playboy channel. The air conditioner coughs to the rhythm of Beethoven's 5th and bed bugs have built condominiums in the mattress. The bathroom vanity is made of plywood and covered with contact paper and the fluorescent light bulb, flashing like a strobe light, makes one feel like putting on platform shoes and doing the Electric Slide. Towels are scarce and threadbare.

Five layers of caulk means that there may not be any towels... or drywall. The first thing you experience is the overwhelming aroma of stale beer and vomit. It means that the five layers of caulk are obviously not working because the faucets drip out of sync and the shower has one sub-par stream of water that shoots at a ninety degree angle directly at the shower curtain. If you move the showerhead so that you might use the stream to wash your body, the stream changes direction and shoots directly at the ceiling. Five layers of caulk also means that you will be unwillingly introduced to the sexual habits of the amorous couple in the next room.

I find myself writing this column on the back of a breakfast menu for a three-layer motel in the middle of Nowhere. I would much rather stay in a one- or two-layer hotel, but sometimes a girl's got to take what she can get. For one thing, Nowhere doesn't have any one- or two-layer hotels because there is nothing in Nowhere that anyone with some spare change would want to see.

We came here because my husband is part of a rocket club. If you are going to launch rockets, there is some kind of rule that you need to do this in the middle of Nowhere, just in case a rogue rocket should decide to take a side trip through some one-layer hotel's lobby. No need to worry about that small detail, though.

If a rocket decided to fly horizontally from one end of Nowhere to the other, there would be nothing in its way except this three-layer motel. I think, perhaps, that a rocket careening through this particular room could only improve it.

Hobbies & Collectibles

A Little Girls Dream Doll – Barbie

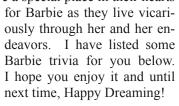

When I was a little girl my grandfather ied beside him. was given a box of used Barbie dolls and clothes from someone he worked with. We didn't have much money and I didn't own my own. I absolutely loved those toys. I wish that I had those vintage dolls today for my own four daughters. I would take empty boxes and create makeshift homes for Barbie. I would decorate the boxes with pieces of cloth and whatever I could find. I spent hours utilizing my imagination to make Barbie come to life. I created pretend furniture and dishes made out of bottle caps. I can honestly say that my own children have never been blessed enough to have that type of "imagination" experience with all the toys and gadgets that have today. This brings me to the subject of this edition of Hobbies and Collectibles. Can you guess what that topic might be? You're are absolutely correct, Barbie.

Ruth Handler was a creator of the Barbie doll. Barbie was first introduced in 1959 at the American Tov Fair in New York City. Ruth, her husband Elliott and his business partner created the toy company Mattel who produced the doll. Mrs. Handler was the president of the company. Barbie was named after the Handler's daughter, Barbara. Ken, who happens to be Barbie's favorite "fella", was named after Ruth's son. Barbie was intended to be a teenage fashion doll and her curvaceous figure has been a topic of controversy for many years. If she were a real person, her measurements would be an impossible 36-18-38. Mattel adjusted the measurements yet they still meet the characteristics of most women.

Financial problems and rumors of documents being falsified lead to the Handlers resigning from their company in 1975. Ruth Handler had already fought a battle with breast cancer by this time. Mrs. Handler passed away at the age of 85 in 2002. She died while in surgery for colon cancer. Her son, Ken, has previously passed away in June of 1994 from a tumor. She was bur-

Fun Fact

The easiest way to distinguish an alligator from a crocodile is by looking at the teeth. The large fourth tooth in the lower jaw of an alligator fits into a socket in the upper jaw and is not visible when the mouth is closed.

Adam the Alligator Craft Box

- 1. Paint the outside of a long, thin box and lid green. Paint the inside red.
- 2. Cut four strips of paper teeth. Glue them inside the box and lid.
- 3. Glue two green pom-poms to the top of the lid. Cut eyes from paper and glue them to the pom-poms.
- 4. Cut nostrils from paper. Glue them on the lid.
- 5. Put the lid on the box. Use the box to hold small objects.

Gator Treats

3 tablespoons margarine or butter 1 (10 oz.) package regular marshmalloms

6 Cups Corn Flakes Cereal Green food coloring

Melt margarine in a large saucepan over low heat. Add marshmallows and stir until completely melted. Remove from head and had cereal and green food coloring. Stir until well coated. Using a buttered spatula or waxed paper, press the mixture evenly into a 13 X 9 X 2-inch pan coated with cooking spray. Cut into squares when cooled. Treat resembles alligator skin!

Alligator Handprints

Brush the palm of each child's hand with green tempera paint. Have child press his/her hand (with fingers together and thumb extended) on a sheet of black construction paper to make an open-jawed "alligator head". Let the child use brushes to paint the alligator's body, tail and legs with green paint, and its sharp teeth with white paint. Next, let the child dip the end of a cork into green paint and use it to print an eye near the top of the alligator's head.

Margaret's Helpful Hints

To keep potatoes from budding, place an apple in the bag with the potatoes.

To clean the rack from your grill after a cookout, rub the rack with crumbled up aluminum foil. It will scrap the buildup right off.

Pour a bucket full of water into the toilet bowl before you start cleaning it. This forces the water level down in the toilet bowl and allows you to access those bowl rings easier.

Don't clean you computer screens with window or glass cleaners that have ammonia in them. It can sometimes cause damage to the finish.
