

Sewer Project For City of Eagleville - A Reality

It's been a long time coming, but it's finally arrived.

In a joint press conference, Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 30., the U.S. Department of Agriculture Rural Development and the city of Eagleville met at City Hall and announced that USDA will provide $1,005,000 in emergency grant funding so that a much needed sewer project can get underway.

The $2.6 million dollar sewer system will eliminate the run off from the failing septic tanks which pose possible public health hazards to the residents.

Neighbors have complained for years that when it rains, you can't walk down the streets of Eagleville due to the smell.

Installing a new wastewater infrastructure for public safety is key to economic growth.

Beginning a couple of years ago, when Sam Tune became mayor of Eagleville, his main objective was to fight for a sewer. By the crowd of senators, representative and congressman in attendance on Wednesday, it was obvious his work has paid off for the community of Eagleville.

In addition to sewer lines, Consolidate Utility District (CUD) will also install new water lines. This will provide quality, quantity and fire protection. Another important factor, CUD would not be making the new water line improvements at this time if it were not for sewer.

The project is expected to go to bid in March with construction beginning in April or May. Project planners estimate the project will be completed in 6 to 9 months.

City Councilman Andy Soapes said he was proud to see the city and community come together "to complete something our grandchildren will be proud of."

The ground-breaking on the city sewer project will take place in May 2013.

Questions for Mayor Tune:

- Is there a priority on which connections will be added to the new system?
- I have suggested that when the project begins to head to the school as fast as possible. My goal would be to see the school on line when students come back in August.
- As history tells, Eagleville is still paying back money for the old grant that was provided for a sewer years ago. How can Eagleville afford this and is there a stable financial plan prepared for this project?

I had nothing to do with the agreement from the past, Continue on page 2

Mayor Tune acknowledged that without the property provided to the City by the Crosslin Family, the sewer project could not be a reality.

THE BUZZ AROUND CO-OP

This month I'd like you to meet Lisa Herrod, our Eagleville Co-op gardening expert. Lisa has been a Co-op employee for 20 years, coming to us from the Murfreesboro store where she gained years of gardening and greenhouse experience. Lisa is a garden planner and is at our store to help you with your garden planning and questions. She personally selects plants and seed for our Middle Tennessee area and ones that have shown planting success. Co-op also has a full inventory of insect products for the organic gardener and chemical pesticides. February is the month our greenhouse opens back up, starting with cole crops, seeds, potato and onion sets. Please stop by the Co-op soon and talk to Lisa about your spring gardening!

as I understand there was NO GRANT. A grant is free; a loan you pay back. Yes, you are still paying today for the mistakes from the past. I have no idea what the money was used for or what happened to it. We met with SEC president Jamie Reed, discussed our health issues. After many meetings and conversations we decided we could make a go of the sewer project to reduce health issues. In the long run it was a simple agreement. SEC would do all engineering, help with grant writing, permits, applications loans; whatever it took to get a sewer for Eagleville. They would do all the work that was required to successfully build a sewer plant at a affordable rate to our citizens, or they would not get paid. As of yet they have not been paid one red cent. They have worked 4 years with NO pay. So how can our citizens afford a sewer, simple, everyone else has put four years of hard work and spent many dollars at NO COST to the citizens.

- What can residents expect to pay for their part on a tap fee and monthly cost?
- A monthly sewer rate has not been established as of yet, however we are estimating in the $40 per month range.
- Will residents that have a good working sewer be required to hook on to the new system?
- There will be a sewer ordinance passed that adheres to state utility law.
- With the installation of the sewer plant being so close to homes and downtown, will there an odor?
- There will be no odor what so ever. No one will know it is a treatment plant. We are told that we can cut hay from the fields for additional income to the city.

A Message From Your Mayor

Sewer & New CUD Lines Is Coming!

It is true - no more wondering and speculating.

After many years of work hardship the City of Eagleville is getting a public sewer.

Will users get a sewer bill? Yes you will.

Will we clean raw sewage off our streets and yards? Yes we will.

Will we be able to maintain our school? Yes we will.

We will be able to recruit businesses that will enhance the quality of life for our citizens.

It will be a great addition to have a dry cleaner, laundromat, car wash, maybe even a sonic or subway!

Hopefully construction will begin late spring/early summer. The project could be completed by Christmas 2013.

There has never been a question "if" the City of Eagleville needs sewer. The need has been here for many years, only some people have been in denial.

As recent as yesterday, Ms. Lowe's home, across from city hall, had septic failure. Her total plumbing disposal had failed. No bath, no restroom, no way for washing dishes. This is not an uncommon story in Eagleville; only the names have been changed.

This project has been a huge undertaking with many key players to make sewer become a reality. SEC Engineering Firm President, Jamie Reed put all stakes on the line when he offered his help. He agreed to assist in any way possible to help solve the health issues of our city. SEC offered to work free, at no cost to the city. Only if we were successful to build a sewer would they receive payment.

I always try to present facts, no egos, personalities, no faces, just raw facts; give credit where credit is due. I don't care if you are democrat or republican, let's present facts!

Our senators and representatives have been behind our sewer project from day one. Senator Bill Ketron, Senator Jim Tracy, Representative Joe Carr, Representative Pat Marsh, Congresswoman Diane Black and Congressman Scott DesJarlais have been back breaking in every way to help seek monies for several years. After redistricting was completed a couple of years ago our Representative Rick Womick came on board like a ball of fire to see the job completed.

The reality of sewer would not be possible if not for these GREAT LEADERS. Please remember them.

Can we expect to see changes? I hope so! I hope this fall we can see our championship football team compete for another title and breathe fresh autumn air as our opposing team sits across in the stands of the football field. At the same time, I hope I never see another septic truck pumping a restaurant in our city. I hope I don't look out from city hall and see the home across the street being pumped. Maybe the most embarrassment, over a ten year period - the city paid $8,000 to have city hall septic tank pumped. NEVER AGAIN!

Along with sewer line installation, Consolidated Utility District will be installing new larger water lines throughout the city. This will provide better fire protection for everyone. I DO SEE POSITIVE CHANGE FOR OUR CITY!

Anytime you can solve health issues and increase fire protection, you have improved the quality of life for everyone.

Please support our school and local business's.

If I can be of assistance, feel free to call my personal cell number. This is not paid by tax payers.

Sam Tune, Eagleville Mayor 615.849.6509

Attention

Are any of you men or women interested in becoming a volunteer with the Eagleville Fire Dept.? If you are, there is room for you in our family of volunteers. We can use women and men who would like to receive training as a Volunteer Firefighter or Rescue Technician. If that does not interest you we also need men or women who would be willing to operate in support positions such as Rehab roles to bring cold water for the firefighters to drink during the hot summer months and to bring hot beverages for the firefighters during the cold winter months. If you are interested please call Fire Chief Rick Parks at 615-804-7859.

Notice: Are there any Eagleville City Residents who are elderly or have disabilities that have special needs that will have to be checked on if an Ice Storm causing a major long lasting power outage inside the Eagleville City Limits occurs? Please contact Fire Chief Rick Parks at 615-804-7859 so that I can make a list before this event occurs.

It is a privilege to serve as your Fire Chief in this great city!

A Friendly Church With A Vital Message

PASTOR'S PONDERINGS

By Pastor Ken Sharp, Jackson Ridge Community Church

February is the month that all hearts are drawn to consider those whom we love and appreciate and consider “altogether lovely” in our lives. It is important to recognize and tell those in our lives that we love and appreciate them. And we should not wait for a particular day or month to do so.

The Song of Solomon chapter 5 verse 16 says “He is altogether lovely.” This is referring to the Bridegroom, which is our Lord Jesus Christ. He is indeed, “altogether lovely!” But the sad thing is that we, as Christians, know far too little about meditation upon the Person of our Lord. Why is that? Perhaps if we spent more of our prayer time to quietly think of Him instead of in asking for something alone, if we spent more time searching the Word daily to learn of Him instead of looking only for things that we think might immediately help us in our own concerns, we would then have a much higher appreciation of the loveliness of Christ. The author of Hebrews tells us “Consider Jesus,” see Hebrews 12:2-3. Spending just a little time in daily meditation upon Jesus Christ will do more to revive and restore our spiritual lives than anything else. For it is impossible to behold Christ without loving Him,, and it is impossible to love Him without serving Him.

WINTER READING PROGRAM

Resolve to read! Linebaugh Public Library will hold its annual Adult Winter Reading Program from January 28 through March 09. Patrons are challenged to meet a goal of reading and briefly reviewing at least six books over the course of the program. That's six books in six weeks or a book each week. All formats are accepted and count toward the goal of six books. Patrons may sign up for the program at the library's Circulation Desk beginning January 22.

At the conclusion of the program, every person who has met the goal of reading and reviewing at least six books will be awarded a gift card from Barnes & Noble, courtesy of The Friends of Linebaugh Library. They will also receive a waiver good for up to $10 in library fines.

One person will be randomly selected from among those who have met their goal, and that person will receive a Grand Prize. This year the Grand Prize will be gift cards from Maple Street Grill and Barnes & Noble, each having a value of $100.

The 2013 Winter Reading Program is sponsored by The Friends of Linebaugh Library, and through donations from Gary McGuire and O'Possum's Irish Pub, and patrons of the library.

Linebaugh Public Library is located at 105 W. Vine St. in Murfreesboro. The Library is the cornerstone of our community, enriching lives through free resources for learning, fun, and opportunity. For more information about the Winter Reading Program, please email David O'Flaherty, doflaherty@linebaugh.org.

Deacons Cha Cha (Church) Trip

by Cathy Parham

The Lady Deacons from Rocky Glade Cumberland Presbyterian Church went on a Cha Cha (Church) trip to Crossville this January. We were blessed with a joyous time of laughter and prayer about our upcoming year of events that are planned at our church. Of course, we went (THRIFTING) shopping at all the thrift stores we could find and was lucky enough to purchase many items for a few bucks. We are always looking for any items we can use for our upcoming events which include Maunday/Thursday, this will be at the end of March before Easter Sunday.

Here are some of our other events: Celebrating everyone's birthdays, Easter Egg Hunt, Honor New Members Dinner, Spring Fling Dinner, Honoring Graduates Dinner, VBS, Patriotic Sunday, Revivals, Father's Day, Grandparents Day, Labor Day Campout, Christmas Programs.

We pray the continuation of this kind of trip each year to refresh ourselves with the word of our dear Lord as we strive to help lead each AOK (Act Of Kindness, we touch many people through this outreach) and events we have planned for the year. Our Deacons are always blessed with the love and support of one another through our church family.

Thank you Rocky Glade Cumberland Presbyterian Church for your kindness and trust you have for us.

Our Deacons of the church are: Janet Tucker, Elaine Tucker, Tara Whaley, Cathy Parham, Brandon Lamb and James Plunkett.

May God Bless, Cathy Parham

Farm Service Agency Announces Important Program Updates

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farm Service Agency (FSA) reminds producers that the American Taxpayer Relief Act of 2012 extended the authorization of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 (the 2008 Farm Bill) for many Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) commodity, disaster, and conservation programs through 2013. FSA administers these programs.

The extended programs include, among others: the Direct and Counter-Cyclical Payment Program (DCP), the Average Crop Revenue Election Program (ACRE), and the Milk Income Loss Contract Program (MILC). FSA is preparing the following actions:

- FSA will begin sign-ups for DCP and ACRE for the 2013 crops on Feb. 19, 2013. The DCP sign-up period will end on Aug. 2, 2013; the ACRE sign-up period will end on June 3, 2013.
- The 2013 DCP and ACRE program provisions are unchanged from 2012, except that all eligible participants in 2013 may choose to enroll in either DCP or ACRE for the 2013 crop year. This means that eligible producers who were enrolled in ACRE in 2012 may elect to enroll in DCP in 2013 or may re-enroll in ACRE in 2013 (and vice versa).

- All dairy producers' MILC contracts are automatically extended to Sept. 30, 2013. Eligible producers therefore do not need to re-enroll in MILC. Specific details regarding certain modifications to MILC will be released soon.

FSA will provide producers with information on program requirements, updates and signups as the information becomes available. Any additional details will be posted on FSA's website.

For more information about the programs and loans administered by FSA, visit any FSA county office or www.fsa.usda.gov.

Murfreesboro Medical Clinic Expands To Meet Needs Of Community

Excitement is building as the second phase of Murfreesboro Medical Clinic's new building nears completion at 1272 Garrison Drive in the Murfreesboro Gateway area. On February 11, 2013, patients will start to utilize the new 155,000 square foot addition, which is joined to the existing 78,000 square foot facility which opened in 2008. On the side of the newest structure is a conspicuously large MMC logo to serve as a beacon for the community. It stands out boldly in the neighborhood, proudly announcing the presence of the largest multi-specialty clinic in the region. Joseph A. Peay, CEO of Murfreesboro Medical Clinic and SurgiCenter states, "The new and expanded facility will provide a better working environment for MMC's physicians, but more importantly, it will allow those physicians to better serve the needs of their patients and our growing community in a new, state-of-the-art facility."

YOU are still the core of our mission... You and your health are our mission. The staff of 540, including almost 70 doctors, will be able to serve patients more efficiently in the new facility and with new equipment. This process officially began in 2007 with construction beginning on the first phase of the building. When it opened in 2008, it included an expanded SurgiCenter of Murfreesboro, an Infusion Center, Comprehensive Breast Center, Radiology and Laboratory Services as well as the Gastroenterology, General Surgery, Ophthalmology, and Otolaryngology (ENT) Departments and several other health care providers (Sleep Centers of Middle Tennessee, Restorative Health Services, Home Care Solutions, Tennessee Retina, and St. Thomas Heart. Shortly thereafter, MMC also moved its Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery Department as well as added 3 new specialty departments with physicians specializing in Allergy/Immunology, Orthopaedics/Sports Medicine, and Physical Medicine/Pain Management. This new addition allows all of the remaining clinical departments and ancillary services to relocate to the same building. These clinical departments include Dermatology, Endocrinology, Internal and Family Medicine, Neurology, Obstetrics/Gynecology, Pediatrics, Podiatry, Rheumatology, Urology, and Vascular Surgery. Also, the Laboratory and Radiology Departments will expand while NexSlim Medical Weight Loss, U Medi Spa and Boutique, Internal Medicine Walk-in Clinic, the Diabetes Care/Anticoagulation Clinic, and the MMC Vein Center will be moving into their new space. Dr. James Carter, MMC President, noted, "Having all of MMC's physicians and staff back under one roof will help facilitate patient convenience when referrals are needed as well as communication among a patient's treating physicians. A patient benefits when physicians can collaborate and communicate on a case more easily, and our new building facilitates that communication."

"MMC already stands out as a leading health care provider in Middle Tennessee, but what the new facility has to offer upon completion will not only distinguish us further, but it will create the opportunity to serve even more patients", stated Denise Flanagan, Director of Operations. The physician-owned multi-specialty group sees over 30,000 patients per month, averages 150 new patients per week, and performs an average of 680 surgical procedures per month.

64 years and counting...Our building is new, our surroundings in which we practice will look different, but our 64 years of serving the healthcare needs of our community is a demonstration of our strong commitment to serve you and your family with the best healthcare possible. We are happy to celebrate in this transition with you, as we celebrate 64 years of your trust in us! We offer you ONE location with a state-of-the-art facility, equipment, and the excellent specialists in their fields of expertise. We are Murfreesboro Medical Clinic and Your Health is STILL OUR MISSION.

Little Stories About You & Me

By Nancy Allen

Cycle of Time

The west wind blew and the signs of winter crept across the shadows on their faces as they sat on the bus-stop bench; young, almost seventeen. He was tall, blond and bronze. She was fresh and full of natural beauty. Her hair flowed in long curls caressing her tender skin. It seemed only yesterday their love was as warm as a bright spring day, flourishing like flowers in the park.

"I'm unhappy with our relationship," he said. "I want to my life to go in another direction."

"What have I done wrong?" she asked.

"It's not you, it's me. I just need something different, I don't know what. I'm not going with you today."

The bus was coming. It was time to board. She had to go. She arose—her heavy legs refusing to move. As she stumbled toward the bus door, she looked over her shoulder into his eyes and said, "I will always love you." Blind with tears streaming down her face, she moved down the bus isle, and found a seat on the back row. Sitting alone she thought, how will I go on? My life without him will be empty and meaningless. He is my life.

"What? No, this seat isn't taken," she said half dazed. How long had she been riding? Had she missed her stop? The handsome young man sat down beside her, leaving her solitude uninterrupted, until the bus was nearing the end of the line.

"Will you come to the front of the bus with me?" he said.

"I will take you places you have never seen before. We can see the world together and learn to love life."

"Yes, I will go with you," said the brave young girl.

Years passed. The adventurous couple grew older. Their hair turned gray and their joints groaned as they moved, but they learned to support and love each other.

"I have business today and I can't go with you. Will you meet me at the end of the line?" asked her brave and prosperous husband.

"I can do that, I know how to travel alone, said his courageous, independent wife.

As she sat on the bus-stop bench, an older man in tattered clothes sat down beside her. "Do you remember me," he asked.

"Yes, of course I remember you. You are the boy who took another bus so long ago. How are you?"

"I'm not doing so well. I guess you heard. My wife and I divorced. I lost all of my money and my health is waning."

"I'm sorry for your loss, but at our age some things are bound to go wrong," she said. "Here comes a bus."

"It's number 10. That's my number" he said. "Will you come with me?"

"No, she said. I'm taking number 11. I have promises to keep at the end of the line."

As he boarded his bus, he turned with tear stained face and said. "I will always love you." And he disappeared through the door.

Got The Jitters?

Everywhere I go these days, I seem to be running in a rat race at full speed in a futile attempt to make the most out of every minute of my day. Sometimes I feel as though the faster I go the further behind I fall as time disappears right before my eyes. In conversations with friends and colleagues, it seems as though everyone is running in the same race, and we all struggle with the time constraints of career and family as we are caught in the perpetual motion of life. Instead of saying "no" to one more commitment, one more phone call or e-mail, we look for ways to pack in just one more task or errand.

So, many of us reach for a cup of joe, a soft drink, or an energy drink in hope that it will stimulate our thinking and give us that needed boost of energy to keep us on track as we say "yes" to another task and scramble to get the kids to the next event. However, have we taken the time to examine how much caffeine we are consuming and the effect it has, not only on our bodies, but on our time?

How big is our addiction to caffeine? Red Bull® was introduced to the U.S. market in 1997 as the first "energy drink" and remains the market leader with approximately a 65% market share. Energy drinks are not the only source of caffeine, but it seems as though we are adding caffeine to everything from chewing gum to super extreme energy drinks. According to the ResearchWikis Web site (www.researchwikis.com), here are a few comparisons of some popular products and their caffeine content in milligrams (mg) per 12 ounces: Coca-Cola (34), Pepsi (37), Dr. Pepper (41), Mountain Dew (55), Red Bull (120), and Starbucks Coffee (194).

A moderate amount of caffeine is considered to be 200 to 300 mg per day or about two to three cups of brewed coffee per day. Moderate amounts of caffeine intake are not likely to cause most people any harm; consuming too much (500 to 600 mg per day) can cause noticeable effects such as irritability, restlessness/nervousness, rapid or irregular heartbeats, headaches, anxiety, muscle tremors, nausea, and insomnia. Excessive caffeine consumption can lead to caffeine intoxication with symptoms similar to alcohol intoxication. In some people, however, even small amounts of caffeine can cause effects such as anxiety and sleep interruptions.

Getting control of your caffeine habit can be quite a challenge because trying to stop suddenly may cause withdrawal symptoms such as irritability, nervousness, fatigue, and headaches. The good news is that these symptoms usually go away within a few days. To change your caffeine consumption more gradually, the Mayo Clinic suggests the following tips:

- Keep tabs: Start paying attention to how much caffeine you're getting from foods and beverages. It may be more than you think. Read labels carefully. Even then, your estimate may be a little low because not all foods list caffeine; chocolate, which has a small amount, does not.
- Cut back: But do it gradually. For example, drink one less can of soda or drink a smaller cup of coffee each day. This will help your body get used to the lower levels of caffeine and thereby lessen the withdrawal effects.
- Go decaf: Most decaffeinated beverages look and taste the same as their caffeinated counterparts.
- Make it quick or herbal: When making tea, brew it for less time—this cuts down on its caffeine content. Or choose herbal teas, which don't contain the stimulant.
- Check the bottle: Some over-the-counter pain relievers contain caffeine—as much as 130 mg of caffeine in one dose. Look for caffeine-free pain relievers instead.

According to a Cornell University study on sleep deprivation, the secret to finding more time in your day may be to spend more time in bed at night. Studies have shown that adding one hour of sleep per night for one week can increase your level of alertness by 25%. Although it may sound crazy to those of us with the caffeine jitters, one hour of sleep could make us more productive, pleasant, less irritable, and healthier while bringing the hands of time a little closer.

Keep Seniors Safe by Preventing Falls

By Mary Ann Steelman-RN

Every year, one-third of elderly adults fall, according to the Center for Disease Control (CDC). The rate of falls in the elderly has greatly risen in the past decade. Falls are the leading cause of accidental deaths for seniors. Because of all of this, seniors need to take precautions to prevent falls.

There are certain factors that contribute to senior falls. Seniors who don't exercise regularly have poor muscle tone, poor balance and decreased bone mass. As people age, their eyesight becomes impaired making it harder to see where they are walking. Certain medications, such as sedatives and anti-depressants, can increase the risk of falling. Other factors include diseases and surgeries. There are also certain environmental hazards that can be fixed to help decrease the risk of falling.

By making your home safer, you can help prevent falls. If you need help installing certain items or help with any other safety measures inside your home, you can ask your caregiver.

- In the shower or bath, use a rubber bathmat and install safety bars.
- Use bright light bulbs in your home so you can see where you're walking.
- Tack your rugs to the floor.
- Remove clutter from the floor and clean up spills.
- Purchase a portable phone so you can have it with you in case of emergency.
- A stool riser seat on the toilet makes it easier to get on and off of the toilet.
- Arrange furniture so there is always something nearby for you to grab onto when walking around.
- Keep regularly used items in easy-to-reach places.

There are other measures you can take to stay safe and prevent falls. These include: sensor pads, canes and walkers, specific footwear, and lift slings.

Sensor pads can be placed on beds, chairs and toilets. They detect pressure and the absence of pressure. So, if you need help getting on and off sitting areas, your caregiver will be alerted if you start trying to stand up.

Canes and walkers can help you feel more steady and balanced when walking. Have your caregiver help you determine the height you need for your cane or walker. Also, be sure to put rubber tips on the bottoms of them for traction.

The footwear you wear is very essential to keeping you steady and preventing falls. Properly fitted, low-heeled, non-slip footwear is what you should look for. There are shoes and even socks with non-skid treads on the bottoms. If you purchase slippers, be sure they can't slip on and off easily.

Finally, lift slings help seniors who can't move themselves from bed to a chair or wheelchair. If you can't walk well and need help getting out of bed, this may be a great item for you to have. This helps prevent injury to your caregiver while moving you and also prevents you from falling and getting injured.

While falls are common in seniors, there are things you can do to decrease your risk of falling. Modify and organize your home to make it safer for you. You can also take some of the other measures listed above. It is important to be careful and take the appropriate safety measures to prevent you from being injured.

Lock Down

by S. Bevin

I try not to make promises to my kids that I can't keep. I screw up plenty of other things about parenting so keeping a promise is one thing that seems to be within my control. When my 4th grade daughter recently asked me if I could promise her that she will be safe at school, I stalled. Tried to mute my nerved up gulp- in vain.

I lied to my kid.

I said yes. Made an empty promise that I cannot keep. I added just a little bit more collateral damage to the post-tragedy flotsam that's always adrift in the wake of a storm. I doubt that I am alone. Parents are probably lying straight-faced to their kids left and right these days because there is NO way that some of us can send a scared child to school everyday to learn and have fun. Fear isn't exactly conducive to a learning environment, you know?

Admit it. The first time you went to a movie after the Aurora shooting, you cut a glance briefly to the side door once inside the theater. You scoped out the nearest emergency exit a little more closely instead of wondering if the butter calories were worth it on the popcorn. Maybe nabbed a seat closer to the aisle than you ordinarily would.

The truth? I have no idea if my kids are safe at school. I only know that the every single adult in that building is doing her very best to make it so-- just like the adults at Sandy Hook Elementary last December had been doing until suddenly their best wasn't good enough anymore. So to answer my daughter's question truthfully to the universe? No. I can't promise you're safe. Not today. Not tomorrow. And most likely not the day after that.

The truth of the matter is that I can't promise the bus ride home will be safe either. Buses are a bully's venue of choice these days. The equivalent of a drunken bar just waiting for a brawl to spring into action. Come to think of it, I can't promise that the bumper cars at the state fair are safe. I can't promise that the storm warnings are always embellished. I mean really, if you can conjure it, it can happen. The earth could conceivably open up in a pissed off yawn and swallow us all whole right now. Possibly.

But here is one thing I can promise you. If we don't do something differently soon, nothing will change. Insanity (n): doing the same thing over and over again and expecting different results.

When I was little, I fell out of a ceiling loft and landed hard. Hard enough to knock the breath out of myself and learn the weird truth that seeing stars isn't all hyperbole. My mom sprinted upstairs to check on the origin of the thud that shook the house.

I had broken no bones but definitely the cardinal rule of climbing navigation in general. I tried to navigate the ladder rungs facing out. You're supposed to face in- with your nose to the ladder itself, one-stepping your way back to the floor with both hands white-knuckled to the railings. That would be the safe route. That would be the route of a cautious child. But it felt much more Evel Knievelish facing out.

When my mom found me in a heap, the tears were still stunned into submission. All she saw was a twisted torso and a gape-mouthed kid in pain. Verdict: seriously bruised coccyx bone. I walked funny for days. And I never went down the ladder facing forward again.

Not even to this day.

I still have an occasional flare from that fall decades ago. A pinched nerve. A metal chair for too long might send an electrical current up my spine out of the blue. A pair of vertebrae that easily tangle up on something as innocent as a sneeze.

I didn't listen. I got hurt. It scared me. I changed my approach. I've been safe on ladders ever since. But a few vertebrae still sting to this day. My mom could've reamed me that day. Or reamed the ladder company for no reason. Maybe called me insolent and sent me to my room. I mean, after all, I was warned that I might get hurt if I failed to climb carefully. But she did not. And it wouldn't have helped. In fact, I might have mistaken that type of reaction for lack of caring. For being totally insensitive to the plight of the wounded. The manner in which we are debating guns is making it so difficult for to assume goodwill. One person wishes the NRA president to rot in he-- yesterday. The next is shoving a gun into the hands of a teacher who stands at a chalkboard in front of 20 kids who are still learning to tie their shoelaces.

All of this argument about more guns versus less guns these days? All of this shouting about how to be safer? All of this knee-jerk commentary about where the power shifts should be? All of these internet memes trying to categorically wrap every bit of a horrific tragedy that still feels like yesterday into some neat caricatured package? All this talk of whether automatic weapons were used on December 14th or not? Who cares what kind of gun was used? 20 children and six adults are dead in the one place that was supposed to be able to keep them safe. At this point, I don't care what we do differently. I just care that we do something.

The tug-of-war among NRA supporters and bashers, pheasant hunters, angry parents, and stymied psychologists does not seem to be helping anyone get closer to a solution. Hurling words in the wake of a school shooting (no matter what side you stand on) are no different than berating the child who just fell from the loft. It is like choosing to hurl expletives over AND at the heads of the hurting who lie in a heap on the ground.

Words and adults obviously failed the Newtown shooter. The longer we wait to do better, the more complicit some of us feel in a tragedy like this. The least we can do is find kind words to navigate a kind discussion in the wake of Sandy Hook. At the very least. Pick someone up. There are plenty still on the ground. Debate guns without shouts. It's time to put the camouflage, memes and lip service away.

Otherwise, we are just descending the ladder facing out.

Note: I made the mistake of leaving this blog open on my laptop as I was writing it. My daughter sat blissfully down at the computer to pull up a YouTube on how to do a waterfall braid last night. Then unbeknownst to me, she read the first two paragraphs. I heard her call my name from where I was doing dishes in the kitchen. I replied with the usual, "Just a minute. I'll be right there." Pretty quickly, I sensed the urgency though. Half mad, half scared. She pointed to the part where I admit to lying to her.

Flashback to late December 2012: We are in the grocery store check out line. There is a People magazine cover that is impossible to miss. Impossible to run a parent screen. My daughter looks at me and says, "Wait. All of those kids died at school?" And that is where this piece really began... I am not sure where it will end.

Emergency Services Of Shelbyville/Bedford County Events

By Bobbie Sue Shelton-Lonas

R. O. K. (Rewarding Our Kids) Concert

On the evening of Feb. 23, 2013, a free concert will be held for all Bedford County students, at the Calsonic Arena in Shelbyville, Tn. Students from other counties are welcomed with an admission charge of $5.00. The event will be held from 6 to 9 p.m., with the doors opening at 5 p.m.

Sponsored by the Emergency Services of Shelbyville/Bedford County, this concert event will consist of three Christian Rock/Pop groups. Those present will not only enjoy great music, but music with a positive Christian message.

Although this concert is a combined effort of the Bedford County Emergency Services, they ask for support and contributions from the entire county community. All contributions will be channeled through the Bedford County Fire Department, Chief Mark Thomas. The youth of Bedford County as well as surrounding communities will receive the benefits of this organized event.

Emergency Services Day Out

Earlier in the day, the Emergency Services of Shelbyville and Bedford County with expected participation from The Tennessee Highway Patrol, National Guard, Air EVAC, and ATF, will be holding Bedford County's first Emergency Services Day Out. This is an effort to enlighten the community about the county's Emergency Services and what they have to offer. This information could be very important when an actual emergency occurs. The event will also be held at the Calsonic Arena, 9 a.m. till 2 p.m. For additional information; contact Jason Barber, Asst. Chief Unionville Fire Department @ 931-294-5223.

Free Oil Change!

The Eagleville Baptist Church Men's Ministry is offering free oil changes to single mothers & senior citizens who live in the Eagleville Community. If you have a genuine need for such a service, and believe that you may be eligible, please call the Church at 274.2925 to set up an appointment.

"By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."
~John 13:35

FROM THE OFFICE OF DR. FITZGERALD: Find a more youthful shade for your teeth, and see how much younger you look! If your teeth aren't the right shade of white, they may be negatively impacting your look, making your face and your smile look older than they really are. Whether poor nutrition, genetics or excess fluoride, dark spots on your teeth can make them look too white, yellow or brown. The spots can make your teeth look dull and unhealthy. So what do I do? Watch what you drink, sport drinks vitamin waters, fruit drinks are more acidic and can cause spots, due to the attack on enamel. If sensitivity isn't an issue, whitening toothpaste can help. A more permanent solution such as bonding or veneers are your best bet. LOOK YOUR BEST AND FEEL YOUNGER!
