Contratulations EHS 2011 Graduates

Colonel Roberts

By Cadet First Lieutenant Austin Duke

On Wednesday, April 6, Our company commander, C/LTC Sarah Roberts attended the Rutherford County brigade board. At this board, seniors from every school in the county compete to be given honorary positions as staff members for Rutherford County. Sarah went before a board made up of the professor of military science and several others at MTSU. She competed against battalion commanders from every school and is now the commander of all the JROTC units in the county. She also received a promotion to the rank of Cadet Colonel. She is the highest ranking cadet in the county and is the first cadet from Eagleville to earn this honor.

Congratulations Colonel Roberts!

Shawn Trittin (Ruben’s nephew) Ruben and Eagleville Fire Chief Terry Greene know how. Needless to say, he’s a blessing and a joy and love of our family. Shawn and Ruben are best buddies, two of a kind, with the same intent of the the heart.

Thank you! Thanks to you and everyone who made the evening so special to a very special young man.

Ever Grateful, Helen Sanchez (Ruben’s sister)

To Chief of the Fire Station Crew “45”

I can’t thank you enough for the thoughtful gesture and respect given to Ruben, my brother, on Tuesday, March 1st.

Once again you proved that dreams do come true. You’ll never know how much your gift of the helmet and the honorarium paid to him has meant. Priceless!

Ruben is 58 years old and most of his life lived across from a fire station. Ruben has always said “someday when I grow up, I’ll be a fireman or paramedic”. No matter where we are, at the sound of a siren, he perks up then says, “someday!” He has said he can’t drive a fire truck because he’s too short. Never said it was that he didn’t

A Message From Your Mayor

Hello Eagleville,
It is the time of year once again to be thankful for another fine crop of seniors to graduate from Eagleville High School. I would like to personally congratulate each senior for 12 years of dedication and hard work. The memories and friends you have made will follow you the rest of your life. Also, I would like to say thank you to each parent who encourages and demanded your child continued education. Each graduate will continue their life as never before; some will marry, some will enter the work force and some will continue their education in a professional field.

Regardless, make the best of life and find your place to contribute to our great country.
No one ever said life is fair. Make the best of whatever you choose to do. Your life is yours; use it wisely, for those of you who choose a leadership role, always remember, being a leader is not always popular. When making decisions you can’t and should not try to please everyone.

Your life is about to change forever as you enter the adult world, this is what you have been working for, now go for it !!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

I hope everyone has had the oppournity to enjoy the beautiful spring we have been blessed with, our city park is busy as always. Go out and enjoy the park with family and friends.

Our annual street festival is barely one month away. It appears this year will be bigger and better than ever. I encourage everyone to take advantage of vendors and entertainment on June 4th . If you have time and want to volunteer helping for the event, please contact City Hall. There is many places you can contribute to show our city support.

As always, shop local to support your local business people, support our school, contribute toward making EAGLEVILLE a better place to live.

If I can be assistance feel free to call my personal cell number 849-6509.
Sam Tune, Eagleville Mayor

Congratulations
Hannah Elizabeth Temple

Hannah attended Copiah-Lincoln Junior College in Wesson Missississippi, Lousiana State University and Middle Tennessee State University where she will receive her Bachelor of Business Administration. Hannah plans to continue at MTSU to pursue her Masters Degree.

We are so proud of you and love you. “Remember, The Sky’s The Limit”. From your family and friends.

The first Sunday of May each year is designated for the Annual Odd Fellow Pilgrimage to the Tomb of the Unknowns. Permission for this date was granted by the Department of the Army, official custodian of Arlington National Cemetery. The first pilgrimage was in 1934 with the purpose of not only honoring the Unknown Soldier and the Nation’s war dead, but also, the members of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows who made the supreme sacrifice during World War I. On this day each year, Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, pay tribute and homage to fallen heroes who sacrificed their lives in defense of our country. A lone Army Sentinel guards the Tomb of the Unknown, day and night, the sentinel paces and guards. He stops pacing at the observance of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs in the placing of wreaths at the Tombs. Each Unknown Soldier has been presented with the Grand Decoration of Chivalry, the highest decoration that can be bestowed on an Odd Fellow. These jewels are prominently displayed by the U.S. Army in the Hall of Trophies.

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows (I.O.O.F), also known as the Three Link Fraternity is an unselfish and benevolent fraternal organization. It derived from the similar British “Odd Fellows” service organizations which came into being during the 18th century, at a time when unselfish and charitable acts were uncommon. The word “Independent” in the organization’s name was given by the founded in Baltimore Maryland in 1819.

The most widely encountered symbol of the IOOF – on signs and grave markers – is the three-link chain (“the Chain With Three Links”, the “Triple Links”) with three initials, ‘F’, ‘L’ and ‘T’, one each inside each link, signifying Friendship, Love and Truth.

Modern references state that the true reason for the name Odd Fellows isn’t known or documented. Whatever the reason may have been, the unusual name has been the object of public curiosity.

As an organization, the Independent Order of Odd Fellows are dedicated to improving and elevating the character of mankind by imparting the principles of friendship, love and truth and making the world a better place to live by aiding the community, the less fortunate, the youth, the elderly, the environment and the community at large in every way possible. It aims to improve and elevate every person to a higher, nobler plane; to extend sympathy and aid to those in need, making their burdens lighter, relieving the darkness of despair; to war against vice in every form, and to be a great moral power and influence for the good of humanity.

While Odd Fellowship is not a religious institution, many of its principles, practices, and objectives are based upon the teachings of the Holy Bible. Many of the rites and ceremonies, of ritual and lectures, the secret passwords, signs, and counter-signs, have a Biblical origin or significance.

On May 4, 1846, the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Eagleville was chartered and designated as Lodge No. 17. The charter members were:

Cannon, the governor of Tennessee, from 1835-1839. Samuel Morgan (b. 1815) and wife Martha (Carson) lived north of Eagleville in 1878 and were parents of 12 children.

Samuel K. Rankin and wife Rebecca (Whitworth) married in 1839 and were living in Marshall County in 1840.

William M. Nunn married Jane M. Jones in 1841 in Williamson County. It is believed that he was a Court Officer in Williamson County.

William Taylor – There were several Taylor families in the area, but it is believed that William Taylor, charter member of the Odd Fellow Lodge was William Stafford Taylor. He was born in 1804 in North Carolina. As a young man he first settled in the Versailles Community of Rutherford County, later moving to Bedford County. He brought with him a saw mill from North Carolina, choosing this area to live because of the abundance of red cedar. He married in 1827 to Nancy Taylor, (believed to be no kin). William Taylor died in 1887.

John K. F. Nunn

John W. Masefield

This group of individuals was from Eagleville, which was in Williamson County in 1846, Rover and the surrounding area. One must wonder how this particular group of men, joined together, 165 years ago and organized a Fraternal Organization that became a vital importance to the community.

The original “Candidates Question Book” reveals some interesting facts about the occupations of the people of the Eagleville area from 1846-1862. During that period there were a total of 146 members. Seventy-three, by far the largest number, were farmers. “Mechanics” came in a poor second with twenty-one. There were seven ministers, seven clerks, five teachers, five physicians, and five merchants. Since there were only two listed as blacksmiths, it is suspected that that was part of the work of the mechanics. Only one man said he was a laborer. It is indicative of the education of the citizenry that only one man made his mark (x).

Some of the occupations which are now practically non-existent were saddler, tobacconists, coach-maker, wheelwright and wool carder.

An Eagleville Lodge Certificate

During the period from 1846-1862 the following people worked in Eagleville as mechanics: John C. Clemous, John D. Robinson, J. R. Chery, Moss Bobit, B. T. Wilson and Sterling H. Edmonds. John A. Wilson, William R. Puckett, and John T. Wilson were store clerks; James Knott kept a grocery store; James W. Manier was a merchant; James C. Nunn was teaching school; James Yancey was a saddler; and G. C. Kinnard was practicing medicine here in 1857. (The above information from the “Candidates Questions Book” was taken from the History of Eagleville written by Mrs. Minnie Dyer in 1972. We are very fortunate to have the history she recorded, since so many of the old records are displaced or destroyed.)

The exact location of the first meeting house of the Eagleville Lodge of Odd Fellows is unknown but believed to have been in an upstairs of an old store building located on the corner of Main Street and Salem Highway where Shelton-Smithson Service Station was later built. An old deed, dated June 1857, refers to a transfer of a lot and store house, where the upstairs was used as the Odd Fellow Lodge, from W. R. Nunn to John S. Parks.

In December, 1866, Chesley Williams deeded land for a different site, to the Odd Fellow Lodge:

Whereas I Chesley Williams of the County of Williamson, State of Tennessee, For the love and affection I have and entertain for the promotion of Education Science and Morality and for the high esteem I have and entertain for the members of the Eagleville Lodge No. 17 of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, I do hereby give, transfer and convey to George K. Hemphill, W. G. Ozborn, J. N. Hendrix, T. B. Wilson & F. S. Richardson, building committee and to George K. Hemphill, T. N. McCord, T. B. Carson, John Hendrix and S. S. Morgan, officers of Eagleville Lodge No. 17 of I.O.O.F. and their successors in office forever, A certain parcel of land situated in the County of Williamson District No. 23rd in the village of Eagleville State aforesaid: To have and to hold the same to the said G. K. Hemphill, W. G. Ozborn & others... George K. Hemphill, T. N. McCord, T. B. Carson, John Hendrix & S. S. Morgan, officers of Eagleville Lodge No 17 and their successors in office for the use and purpose of building and erecting there A Male Academy and Odd Fellow Hall in Eagleville and no other. Signed Chesley Williams – 24 Day of December 1866 (the above only a portion of the deed).

As of today, I haven’t located any information of a Male Academy, being built at the located mentioned above. There was a Male and Female Academy at another location in Eagleville.

The land given is believed to be the location of the old Taylor Store building previously located north of the present Eagle’s Roost Restaurant building. Mr. James Bell Taylor operated the store which sold groceries, kitchenware, glassware and a few items of clothing, from 1912 until his death in 1940. His wife and daughter, Ruth, operated the store until 1942, when it was sold. The upper floor of this building was the meeting place for the Odd Fellows and other known organizations. Records of a Knights of Pythias Lodge and Woodmen of the World were also found when the store building was demolished in 1987.

In November, 1977, Jesse Tate acquired this property from the Grand Lodge of Tennessee, Odd Fellows. Stated in deed: Being the same property conveyed to the Independent Order of Odd Fellows approximately 100 years ago. The real estate has been held openly, notoriously, and continuously by the Independent Order of Odd Fellows since the time of the original conveyance.

The Odd Fellows were active and influential in Eagleville until the early 1970’s. One of their last acts of service to the community was the donation of a set of Encyclopedia Britannica to the Eagleville School. Mr. Jim Dub Ralston, who died in 1975, was the sole surviving member.

The Sixty-Sixth Annual Session of the Grand Lodge (Independent Order Odd Fellows) report, dated October 1906 stated: Eagleville reported from July 1, 1905 to June 30, 1906, 3 members were admitted and 2 were dropped. They had a total of 40 members – Total Revenue $97.45, assets $372.05 and expenses $72.19. T. R. Ralston was District Deputy Grand Master and Representative at the meeting held in Chattanooga, Tennessee. W. J. White was Secretary of the Lodge.

On April 30, 1909 the Eagleville Lodge of Odd Fellows celebrated the ninetieth anniversary of the Order. An address was made by Dr. J. R. Moon (a local doctor in Eagleville for several years). After the other ceremonies, a supper was enjoyed by all.

Also in 1909 there was a Rebekah Lodge organized at Eagleville by the Benevolent Rebekah Lodge of Rover. At this time, The Rebekah degree was open only the wives and daughters, or sisters of Odd Fellows are eligible. Although no records were found in the building, it is believed the Rebekah Lodge also met in the Odd Fellow Lodge Hall. (No other information known on this organization at the present.

ROVER I.O.O.F. LODGE No. 395

On 28 day of November, 1903, for the consideration of $450.00, Mr. Dallas Crick purchased a store house and store house lot at a public auction in the Village of Rover, Tenth District of Bedford County. The property was previously owned by Mr. N. R. Taylor and wife Fannie. Evidently Mr. Crick was acting on the behalf of the trustees of the Rover Odd Fellow Lodge. On this date, Mr. Crick instructed Mr. H. M. Doak, who was in charge of the sale, to deed the property to W. T. Blanton, F. M. Jackson and J. E. Maxwell, trustees of the Odd Fellow Stock Company at Rover, Tennessee.

In January 1905, W. T. Blanton, J. E. Maxwell and F. M. Jackson Trustees for the Stock Company of members of the Lodge of Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Rover No. 395 sold to Mr. C. C. Puckett the lower floor of the storehouse, to be used as a general store. The Odd Fellow Lodge reserved the upper floor and the right-of-way stairway to and from the upper second story. The Lodge received $430.00 for this transaction.

The upper story of the Puckett General Store was owned by the Rover Odd Fellow Lodge until May, 1942, when it was sold to Mrs. C. C. Puckett. The deed was signed by T. F. Crick, Noble Grand of Rover Lodge, I.O.O.F. No. 395.

In 1903 the above property was surrounded by property owners; On the West by M. L. Stearns; South by Eagleville-Nashville and Shelbyville Turnpike; East by Hester and Taylor; North by W. T. Vernon and wife.

In 1905 the connecting property owners were: North, W. T. Vernon and wife, East by W. T. Gentry, South by E-N- Shelbyville Turnpike and West by Charley Hammon.

As in other communities, the Odd Fellow Lodge Hall was the meeting place for other organizations. The Woodmen of The World and the local 4-H Club, organized by Mrs. M. E. Shearin, were two known organizations known to hold their meetings in the Rover Hall.

Several other surrounding communities are known to have an Odd Fellow Lodge, but since most old records have been displaced or destroyed, the information is very scarce.

Pass the Salt

As long as I can remember salt has been a part of our everyday meals, and is equally a common part of American culture and cuisine. If the taste of something isn't to our liking it seems we simply add more salt. I have noticed people in restaurants who reach for the salt shaker before tasting their food. Food producers often cut fat or calories by adding more sodium to give the product a flavor that is more appealing. Together with culture and individual habits we have developed quite a taste for salt—but is it healthy?

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and the Institute of Medicine released the report "A Population-Based Policy and Systems Change Approach to Prevent and Control Hypertension." The report emphasized connections between salt and hypertension (high blood pressure), heart attack, and stroke. Heart disease is the leading cause of death in the United States and one in three adults suffer from high blood pressure. This statistic highlights the need to have a clear understanding of salt consumption, its risk, and the choices we can make. New York City established the National Salt Reduction Initiative which is a nationwide partnership with states, cities, and restaurants to lower the amount of salt in many of our commonly consumed foods. Dr. Oz has given attention to reducing salt consumption with his segment the "Salt Shakedown." All of this attention helps bring awareness to salt—the new nemesis of good health. But, do we understand what salt means to us, and ways we can reduce our personal salt consumption?

The CDC estimates we consume 3,400 milligrams (mg) of sodium daily, about 1,900mg more than we need. Older adults, African-Americans, and those who struggle with high blood pressure need even less (about 1,500mg daily). For us to reduce sodium intake, we must first realize how much sodium is in the foods we eat.

Salt sneaks into our diet in so many ways and just a pinch here and there can add up quickly. For comparison, one teaspoon of table salt has 2,325mg of sodium. Here are a few ways to help keep your sodium consumption in check:

- Know your labels: Sodium-free or salt-free, must contain less than 5mg of sodium. Very low sodium must contain 35mg or less of sodium. Low sodium contains 140mg or less. Reduced or less sodium, the product contains about 25% less sodium than the regular version. Use caution when food is labeled as "reduced sodium" or "low sodium" they may still contain significant sodium per serving.

- Eat more fresh foods: Usually fresh fruits and vegetables are naturally low in sodium. I recommend eating as close to fresh as possible. It is a good idea to rinse any canned vegetables to remove excess salt. Fresh meat is lower in sodium than processed luncheon meat, hot dogs, and bacon. Plain whole-grain pasta and rice instead of "ready in minutes."

- Limit sodium-laden condiments: Soy sauce, salad dressings, dips, ketchup, mustard and relish all contain significant amounts of sodium.

- Use spices, herbs, or other flavorings: Herbs (fresh or dried), spices, lemon zest, and fruit juices. These suggestions can add another dimension to food giving it more zing and flavor than simple salt.

When we realize one pack of ketchup contains 153mg of sodium and ½ cup of canned corn has 375mg, you begin to understand how quickly sodium can impact our diet. These ideas are only a few ways you can reduce your sodium intake. By taking control of the amount of sodium in your diet, you will feel better and reduce your risk of cardiovascular disease. Salt is an acquired taste, by gradually reducing its use our preference for salt will diminish. So, enjoy the true taste of the foods you eat, and be good to your heart.

THOMAS MAUPIN RECEIVES THE FOLKLIFE HERITAGE AWARD

By Bobbie Sue Shelton-Lonas

On April 12, 2011 Thomas Maupin was honored by Governor Bill Haslam and First Lady Crissy Haslam in a special ceremony produced by the Tennessee Arts Commission.

Daniel Rothwell & Gov. Haslam

Held in the Conservation Hall of the Governor's Residence, Thomas, who was accompanied by his family, received the Folklife Heritage Award. This award recognizes folk artists or organizations that have made outstanding contributions to artistic tradition.

The award is intended to honor long-term achievements within art forms that are rooted in the traditional culture of Tennessee

"Culture and art help to form our state both in its beauty and heritage," Governor Haslam said. "We congratulate all the winners for the legacies of art they have created for each one of us to enjoy. "The eight 2011 recipients represent excellence and the rich diversity that defines the state's cultural life," says Rich Boyd, executive director of the Tennessee Arts Commission.

The Folklife Heritage Award recognizes folk artists or organizations that have made outstanding contributions to artistic tradition. Thomas Maupin, of Murfreesboro, is the most celebrated traditional Tennessee dancer of his generation. While he owes his abilities to a strong family dance heritage and to considerable natural talent, Maupin's notoriety also reflects years of dedication and a sheer love for adding his rhythmic footwork to the sounds of old-time string music. He was born into an Eagleville farm family where everybody, including his barefoot grandmother, danced for enjoyment. It was traditional buck dancing or flatfoot dancing; a southern folk form evolved out of Scotch-Irish step-dancing and African juba rhythms. Maupin polished his steps as a young man, when community square dances were still fairly common. As square dancers perform choreographed group figures, buck dance steps afford an outlet for expression of individual styles. Thomas mastered basic traditional steps with his own flare and, an innovator from the beginning, ventured beyond to incorporate elements from tap dance as well. As a young husband and father, Maupin for some time prioritized work and family over dancing. Then in the 1970s, as new fiddle contests and other traditional music festivals gained popularity, he found time and opportunities to dance in public again. Most often it was in traditional dance contests, where for 25 years, he was extremely competitive, winning over 60 championships at surrounding regional and state competitions. Lately Maupin has devoted more time to workshops, exhibition performances, and mentoring younger dancers. Most recently, he's developed a special partnership with his grandson Daniel Rothwell, who fine old-time banjo-playing provides a perfect complement to showcase his talent and dance heritage. (The above information appeared in the Governor's Art Awards Official Program.)

One of the highlights of the event for Thomas was dancing for Governor and Mrs. Haslam and other distinguished guest. Thomas was accompanied by his grandson and son-in-law Daniel and Danny Rothwell.

The other recipients of the Folklife Heritage Awards were The Blues Foundation of Memphis, an organization that serves as a hub for the worldwide passion for Blues music; and Charles Towler of Cleveland, one of the most highly-respected figures in the world of southern gospel convention singing.

Arts Leadership Awards was presented to Patrick W. Halloran, III of Memphis, and the W.O. Smith Nashville Community Music School. Recipients in this category may come from arts organizations, business, educators, patrons, arts administrators, corporations, or volunteers who have demonstrated significant support or participation in activities which foster excellence in, appreciation of, or access to the arts throughout the state.

Halloran is a visionary leader who played a key role in the preservation of the Orpheum Theatre, and positioned the theater as an economic development partner with downtown Memphis --a vibrant cultural treasure. Once a derelict building, the Orpheum Theatre now thrives as a world-class performing arts facility.

Since its inception in 1984, the W.O. Smith Nashville Community Music School has made affordable, quality music instruction available to children from low-income families. The nationally acclaimed after-school program continues to transform lives through music, and has changed the cultural and artistic fabric of Middle TN's young people.

The Distinguished Artist Award recognizes artists of exceptional talent and creativity in any discipline, who over the course of a career, have contributed to the arts and have helped guide and influence directions, trends, and aesthetic practices on a state or national level.

Three outstanding Tennessee artists were honored with the Distinguished Artist Award. They are: Estelle Condra of Nashville, a professional actor, inspiring storyteller, teacher, and writer who has been legally blind since childhood; Johnny Maddox of Gallatin, one of the most highly regarded Ragtime pianist of the last 60 years who has made hundreds of recordings and sold more than 11 million records; and Dolph Smith of Ripley, a highly creative and innovative artist who has inspired thousands of students and a large number of working artists across the region.

These recipients of the 2011 Governor's Arts Awards will join individuals and organizations that have been recognized over the past 41 years.

Ellen Hays, Chairman of the TN Arts Commission; Thomas Maupin, Gov. Bill Haslam and first lady Crissy Haslam.

Little Stories About You & Me

By Nancy Allen

Baby in the Grass

"Come here, I want to show you something," said Jack as he stood and looked out the kitchen window.

Marie was in the bedroom working on her computer. "Is it another one of those beautiful scenes on the computer? Everyone sends me those. I think I've seen enough for one day," she said.

"No, no—this is real," Jack yelled. "Hurry or you'll miss it."

Marie growled under her breath as she pulled herself up out of her chair and meandered toward the kitchen where Jack stood mesmerized by the window. He put a finger to his lips and with the other hand pointed toward the backyard. There was a doe with two fawns playing near the woods.

"They are so cute," said Marie. "Get the camera and take their pictures."

Jack ran for the camera, but by the time he was set to shoot the pictures, it was too late. The deer scampered away.

"They must have really good ears," said Jack.

While it was not uncommon for deer to appear in Jack and Marie's yard, it was not often they saw a fawn. Marie remembered another day when Jack was looking out the kitchen window. He called for her to come and see that day too.

"There are two rabbits in the back yard," said Jack. "I hope they don't make it around to the front and get into my garden."

He kept watching. "They have enormous ears," he said.

"We don't have jackrabbits in Tennessee, do we?" asked Marie.

"No, I don't think so. Maybe it's not a rabbit. It may be a deer," said Jack.

Jack decided to investigate, so he crept out past the house toward the unknown animal. Sure enough there lying in the tall grass was a newborn fawn. Looking around for the mother, Jack hurried back to the house.

"Where's the mother," asked Marie. "If she doesn't come back soon, we had better do something. A baby needs to eat."

Jack continued to watch for the next hour, but no mother appeared.

"What should we do?" he asked.

"Go to the Co-op and get a bottle and some milk so we can feed it," said Marie.

"No, maybe I can call somebody and they will come and get it," said Jack.

After calling several places and getting no answer, Jack called The Tennessee Wildlife Resources Department, finally getting someone on the line.

"A fawn has been abandoned in our backyard. What should we do? Should we try to feed it? It has been there for hours," said Jack.

"No, you leave that baby alone! A doe will sometimes leave her young for as long as twelve hours. Is that baby laying very still?" asked the wildlife manager.

"Yes," said Jack. "I almost didn't see it and thought it was a rabbit at first."

"He's doing exactly what his mother told him to do. Don't go anywhere near that baby. He doesn't need the smell of humans on him. She will come back for him."

Although Jack watched faithfully, he did not catch the mother in action. In about three hours the fawn was gone. Neither Jack nor Marie knew when the mother came, but she was there to take care of her baby.

Why Not Get Married!

Statistics show that young people are waiting to get married until they are in their late 20's and 30's.

This is a good trend, I think, but one may speculate on the reasons for the trend.

My husband and I married when we were 20 and 19 years old, respectively. Looking back, you could make a case for us being too young to be making life decisions of that magnitude. At the time, though, it seemed that it was the logical next step. We had been dating for almost three years and my then boyfriend had just taken a job in a city 500 miles away. We had three choices: Commute frequently, let the relationship die, or get married. Living together was not an option if ever I wanted my parents to speak to me again.

If he hadn't taken a job in Timbuktu, we may have waited a while longer to get married, but not the 10 or 12 years that we may have waited if we were one of today's young people.

I conclude that he and I simply were lucky to have met each other in our teens. Using that logic, either young people today are having trouble finding one another, or the people they find aren't good enough for them. Perhaps young people are pickier than we used to be.

Maybe our generation wasn't picky enough. I think that's more likely to be true, but it worked out splendidly for us.

Dating is different now as well. The notion that young people might have trouble finding each other couldn't possibly be true. You can post your dating resume on dozens of internet dating sites and advertise your superior qualities to anyone who has a computer.

The trick is to make yourself sound like a Roman god or goddess without sounding as if you're bragging. Many subscribers will dub themselves a "nerd" or a "dork" so that their viewers' expectations will not be too high. Universally, nerds and dorks are deemed "safe," so the personal risk of dating one is considerably reduced.

On the other hand, the post that mentions the fact that the subscriber is a great lover carries the risk that he may try to prove it on the first date.

So basically, you know what you are getting before the date even happens. These dating sites offer you a plethora of posts to peruse to distinguish between those who are lying and those with which are worth having dinner.

Back in the day, we simply had to hope that some decent scrap of humanity would float into our orbit one day and be ready to snatch him before any of our friends did. With those odds, it's no wonder that we tended to snatch fast and hang on tight, even when we probably shouldn't. We might even rationalize how his bad breath and tendency to spit might be an asset in a committed relationship.

People of my generation have taught our children to be more careful about choosing a lifetime partner. We've taught them that waiting for the "right" person is less stressful than a divorce. So, of course, they heeded our sage advice just like they always do... NOT! I hereby reject this as a possible reason for the trend.

When it comes right down to it, I believe young people are simply too busy to take dating seriously. Marriage is a someday thing, and babies are just too much work to even think about. Sex, however, is another story. In this millennium, sex and babies do not necessarily go hand in hand... unless you want them to.

There are some women who decide that the babies are okay, but the man is too much work. I can't blame them for feeling that way; babies eventually grow up and out of bad habits. If they don't, they eventually move out and bestow their habits upon some other poor schmuck.

Men, too, may think that women need too much maintenance. I mean, why do they always want to "talk?" What's up with that?

It has only been within my lifetime that gender issues have been studied and written about so prolifically. With so much information on how to make a marriage work, nowadays, you'd think humans would be getting better at it. Instead, young people are looking at the workload and deciding "Nope. That's not for me."

Thirty years ago, my husband and I had very little information to go on, thank goodness. We simply... winged it.

Happy Mother's Day May 8th

BY ANGELA WOODALL

Handprint Card for Mom

White paper or card stock
Construction Paper
Scissors
Glue
Acrylic Paint or Stamp Pad
Markers, Pens, Crayons

Have your little one place their handprint on the white paper using the paint or the stamp pad. Cut out the handprint and glue it to a 8 ½ X 11 piece of colored paper folded in half to make a card. Write "Happy Mother's Day" on the outside top portion and glue the handprint on the outside. Inside attach the following poem for Mom:

My dirty little fingerprints I've left on every wall
And on the drawers and tabletops,
I've really marked them all
But here are some that won't rub off,
I'm giving them to you
Because I'm thankful to have a mom
that's just like you!

Mom's Easy Strawberry Shortcake

Prepared Pound Cake (freezer section)
Fresh Strawberries
Spray Can of Whipping Cream or Cool Whip
Granulated sugar

Cut green tops off of strawberries. Slice berries and sprinkle sugar lightly over berries. Let set. Slice prepared pound cake into 1" slices and place on pretty dessert plate. Spoon strawberries and juice over pound cake. Top with whipped topping and place a whole strawberry on top for decoration! Enjoy

Recipe Of The Week

Cornish Hen With Lemon, Pepper, Rosemary and Garlic

- 4 whole Cornish Game Hens
- 1 tablespoon lemon pepper
- 1 tablespoon garlic powder
- 4 whole Roasting Potatoes, cut into quarters
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1/2 pound Brussels sprouts
- 4 teaspoons kosher salt
- 2 teaspoons pepper
- 1 tablespoon rosemary

1. Preheat oven to 350 degrees.
2. In a small bowl, mix lemon pepper, garlic and rosemary and set aside.
3. Rinse Cornish hens under cold water.
4. Rub with spice blend and set aside.
5. Place Cornish hens in a well seasoned roasting pan and sear hens over medium heat until all sides are golden brown.
6. Season potatoes and Brussels sprouts to taste and place in roasting pan around Cornish hens.
7. Place roasting pan in oven for about 20-30 minutes until juices run clear.
8. Remove from oven and serve.
