☀ Hello Summer Vacation! ☀

News from Ms. Hill's Third Grade, Eagleville School

We would like to welcome Elizabeth Cumbee to our classroom. She joined us about three weeks ago and has already made lots of friends.

Everyone is working on their wildflower books. This has been a wonderful spring for this project.

We enjoyed an interesting and educational field trip to the Ridley 4-H Center called "Take a Walk on the Wild Side". Everyone enjoyed hands on science activities despite the rainy weather.

Twelve students from our classroom met the qualifications of the Sounds Reading Reward Program. Students from the third, fourth, and fifth grades enjoyed a free trip to the Sounds game Friday night. It was a fun night for both parents and students.

Four students from our class were selected to participate in the county Science Olympiad in May. Congratulations to Gabe Pennington, Caspian Vanekelenburg, Ben Beard, and Ethan Brown.

Danielle Watkins was an honored guest at the Rutherford County author's reception. Jake Messick was also invited but was unable to attend.

As you can see we have been very busy and will continue to be so until May 25. Then it is HELLO SUMMER VACATION!!!

Below are awards that were received from the 3rd grading period.

Principal's List: Ellie Burns, Carissa Curtis
Honor Roll: Ben Beard, Lindsey Bowling, Jadyn Davis, Reagan Dodson, Chase Kress,

Lytic Metzler, Gabe Pennington, Ryleigh Pettit, Mary Watkins

Most Improved: Reagan Dodson

Student of Nine Weeks: Carissa Curtis & Gabe Pennington

Citizenship: Jackson Doughtie

Art: Ethan Brown

Perfect attendance for this nine weeks: Ellie Burns, Reagan Dodson, Danielle Watkins, Chase Kress, Caspian Vanekelenburg

Perfect attendance for whole year thus far: Caspian Vanekelenburg, Kim Dodson

Fire Chief Terry Greene

The Eagleville Volunteer Fire Dept. is always looking for individuals to serve with us. You must be at least 16 years of age and willing to put in the time it takes for monthly training and service. If you are interested, please contact Terry Greene at city hall.

Pictured, at right, are the men who have completed firefighting rookie school. They are now considered fire fighters. Many long hours and hard work have gone into completing such a task. Not only have they completed bookwork and classroom time but they had to participate in a live burn and prove competency. If you see these men out, thank them for their time and willingness to protect their community.

I would like to remind everyone to be safe during spring clean-up. As always if you know of anyone in need of smoke detectors please contact me or let one of the firefighters know. God Bless, Chief Terry Greene

To The Eagleville Community

I can never express to you my gratitude for the support you have given me at the time of my hospitalization and recovery, and though the doctors say it will be at least three to six more months before I will be back to normal, I finally have my life back.

Your thoughts, your calls, your cards, your visits, the delicious food, and most of all, your prayers have been overwhelming. I am truly blessed. I will never be able to thank you enough. God Bless You All.

Sincerely,
Judy Turner

THE BUZZ AROUND CO-OP

USE CAUTION WITH HORSES AND SPRING GRASS

Spring grazing is a critical topic for horse owners. Taking a horse from hay to pasture needs to be a gradual change. This grazing time can make the difference between soundness and a disabling condition like laminitis.

As green grass sprouts, the overall sugar and starch (NSC) contents increase in grass. Grazing should be closely monitored because it makes the NSC consumption high and potentially dangerous. To be safer, here are some general rules to follow:

- Be careful of night temps below 40 degrees - grass has high NSC
- Once night temps are above 40 degrees at night - NCS lowest before sunrise
- NCS level highest in late afternoon sun

The best turnout time in moderate climates like ours in Tennessee is before dawn till 10 AM and then at night starting at 11PM. It is a very good plan to offer hay year round. Co-op offers a low sugar and low starch feed Equi-lite to help horses with sensitive conditions. Hopefully these guidelines will help you keep healthy and happy grazing horses. Please stop by our Co-op for all your equine's needs.

Rockvale Church of God Celebrates 100 Years

On Sunday, April 15, 2012 the Rockvale family of faith celebrated the church's 100th birthday with a special service, singing, and a catered dinner. Rev. Don Kelly, a former pastor now in Zoe, Kentucky, returned to give the main address.

Rev. Don Kelly from Zoe, Kentucky was the featured speaker and is a beloved former pastor.

Praise Chapel Stereo Quartet from Franklin provided special music for the service.

Pastor Bruce with the children during the celebration service explaining what different kinds of birthdays we have. In the choir loft behind are area Church of God ministers who joined us for the celebration.

Former pastors, their wives, and area Church of God pastors who made up a choir for our celebration.

Rutherford County Mayor Burgess presenting a proclamation to the church honoring the one hundred years of service. Governor Haslam also sent a state proclamation. Written greetings from Senator Alexander and Congresswoman Black were also received by the church.

Mother

In Memory of our Mother - Doris Elizabeth Brewer
(The Lord took her April 12th)

What is the definition of a Mother? One who loves with unconditional love. Our Mother did just that. She guided her children, with the best of her ability, to become a person of strength. She, herself, had a difficult time showing love, because of the dreaded disease (Dementia) that tormented her mind for the past 4 to 5 years. This did not stop her from fighting back against it, she new that if she gave up, she would lose the battle. She continued trying to keep her body going even after the (broken hip and elbow) surgery. But at the end, her frail body gave into the inevitable, death came peaceably without the fighting.

Our Mother was born September 8, 1927, she was 84 years young. She was married to Sam Lynn Brewer, her three children are Jane Haskins, Sammy Brewer and Cathy Parham. She loved life and loved her family. She loved to cook for others, made the best biscuits and gravy, that was the one thing she loved about food and of course fried potatoes. Back in the old days, family would visit one another on Sunday, she always prepared enough food to feed everyone. We had a smiling Uncle Speck, if we were not at home when his family came to visit, he would always do something with the lawn furniture, like put it on top of the house, you knew who it was, that was tradition. When she would take us to town, she would have all three of us holding onto to her dress, as we walked around the square of Lewisburg, she was like a mother hen protecting her chicks. She loved us dearly. When growing up as a child, her mother died when she was very young, her brother and his wife took care of her. There is a picture of her horse that she enjoyed riding, I cannot picture her riding a horse, but she did, always bareback. All of her brothers were responsible for her well being, that is why she was so spoiled. She loved working in the yard with her green thumb, was forever giving me pieces of her flowers to transplant, these plants continue to strive.

As the years passed on, she continued to need more help, she moved from Fayetteville to Lewisburg, Sammy was able to give her the assistance she needed. She loved him dearly, he would come throughout the week to do the odd jobs around the house, I would come every Thursday to take her out to eat and run her errands. Sammy and I would sometime take her back to Fayetteville and do a little antique shopping, that was a joy for her. Sammy was her rock, she called him quite frequently as the disease was getting stronger in her body, but the SON, did not mind, he cared for her continually. Each of my visits, were memorable, we would go to Mildred’s Restaurant, for fried chicken and fried green tomatoes and peach cobbler, then go to Wal-Mart to get her groceries, she loved Wal-Mart. On occasions Sammy and I would take her to Columbia, eat at the fish restaurant and shop at Belk, besides eating she loved shopping, that was a passion of hers.

Her family was very important to her, she took pride in telling anyone that would listen, about her children, especially at the nursing home. While there, she developed friendships with all the nurses, they were dear people to mother and heart broken when she passed. She also got to her know the lady that was in the room with her very well, Mrs. Floyd, what a dear lady, that was the only one person she had gotten close with. Jane, my sister, would come to the nursing home to visit with mother, most of those visits were good, but sometimes mother would be agitated because of the disease, but Jane was persistent, as a dutiful daughter she would always come back, she loved mother very much.

As I close with this dedication to my mother, I would like for everyone to hug their mother today and express your love for her, because you only have one Mother in your lifetime, you want to cherish those moments and keep them in your heart. The Lord is with her now, she is now smiling, released from the disease, looking upon us with endearing love for her children. Now she has PEACE.
With Loving Hearts,
Jane, Sammy and Cathy

A Tribute to Mammy Mary Sue Maupin Perrell

March 27, 1900 – Sept. 13, 1994

By Jane Shelton

Mammy was the second child of George and Bet Maupin. She was born March 27, 1900, which made it easy to figure out how old she was each year. In 1918 while visiting her sister Clara in Murfreesboro, she met and married Rosco Perrell.

Mammy gave birth to 12 children, included in the twelve were two sets of twins. Her heart ached as she buried two of her babies, one lived ten hours and one lived six weeks. But she praised the Lord and she raised ten healthy children. Again her heart ached as the oldest son went off to battle in World War II. She thanked the Lord when he safely returned home after the war. Before her death she mourned the lost of a husband, another son and a daughter. She never asked the Lord why, she only thanked the Lord for allowing her to have them as long as she did.

Mammy's tasks were never done. She would get us (ones old enough to milk) up before daybreak and we would be at the milk barn by 4 o'clock in the morning. She would have breakfast ready for us when we were finished milking. In the summer she would carry the little ones to the barn and she would help milk. If she helped milk, while we finished up she would go to the house and start breakfast. After breakfast she would see that each child had lunch, wrapped tightly in a newspaper, to carry to school; usually meat and biscuits from breakfast. She saw to it everyone got off to school. Without there was farm work that Daddy needed help with.

Wash days were hard; I have seen Mammy's fingers bleed from scrubbing on the wash board using home made lye soap. In the winter Mammy would hang our socks and underwear at the back of the heater to dry. She wanted us to be clean.

A lot of times in the summer she would go to the field to help, if not the field it would be to the garden to chop, gather the vegetables, or go to pick blackberries. Summers were always busy getting food ready and canning. Mammy tried to can everything she could in the summer so we would have food for winter. It was so sad when Mammy would work so hard getting the food canned and a few days later to find some of the jars had spoiled because the lids didn't seal good. In the fall, tobacco stripping days, she would go to the barn to help strip tobacco. She would cook dinner while cooking breakfast and carry it to the field or barn.

No matter what time of year there was always sewing to be done, clothes to make, mend or patch and quilts to be pieced or mended. She bleached the feed sacks and made underwear, sheets, pillow cases and towels. The printed flour sacks she washed starched and sewed into dresses and shirts. Mammy would take old worn out britches cut them up and patch over the quilts. In the winter they would be so heavy you could hardly turn over, but they were warm. I remember Mammy quilting pieces of material on paper. No scraps were ever wasted. Even very small pieces of material; she would sew them to paper and then sew them into the quilt tops. She took hand-me-downs that people had given her and turned them into clothes that could even be worn to church. All this was done by hand and a treadle sewing machine.

When we got to go to church, Mammy would have dinner cooked before we went. She knew we would be hungry when we got back home. And of course each day before going to bed Mammy saw that each had been feed three meals made from what ever she had to cook. She has turned the flour barrel upside down many times and beat the bottom to get all the flour out to help see that everyone was full before going to bed. Gravy and biscuits never tasted so good!

Two or three weeks before Christmas Mammy would start saving the eggs to use to bake cakes for Christmas. She would get a fresh coconut, a can of pineapple and a little hard candy for the cakes. There would be a coconut cake, a pineapple cake and always a yellow cake with chocolate icing. She would use the hard candy to decorate the tops of the cakes. She would boil a shoulder of the hog meat Daddy had killed early in the winter. Daddy would get a hoop of cheese. Oh! what a Christmas feast we had. There were no toys or gifts on Christmas morning, an orange, apple, raisins and a little hard candy was all Mammy and Daddy were able to put in our socks, but we were so excited about that. Gifts didn't matter to us because they were things we didn't know about. All we knew was that it was Christmas and the house smelled good from the apples, oranges and there would be a good meal. But most of all we were together and Mammy and Daddy loved us.

The years past, things were better for Mammy the last 30 years. At Christmas Mammy wanted to have a gift for everyone. She still had very little money and there were so many, children, in-laws, grand and great-grandchildren but she would leave no one out. Late summer she would start making pot holders for all the women. Early fall one of the children would take her to town and she would buy a towel to go with the pot holders she had made for all the women and a pair of socks and a handkerchief for the men, for the older girls a box of Kleenex and for the smaller children a very small inexpensive something like color books. She would have to buy a few things at a time wrapping them and putting names on the gifts when she got home. When Christmas came everyone was so proud of her gift because she put all she had and a whole lot of love in each of them.

Mammy loved the Lord and her church. Sometimes you would go in the house and hear Mammy talking with someone. You would not see anyone or she would not be on the phone and when you asked her, "who were you talking to" she would say, "Just me and the Lord were having a little heart to heart talk." When the new Baptist Church Auditorium was built she didn't have money to give, but she obligated herself to buy a choir chair. She took in washing using the money to pay for the chair to make sure she did her part. Probably more hours of love and labor went into that one choir chair than most any other item purchased for the church.

We all laugh as we remember Mammy's cards. She would send birthday cards to us. She didn't always have the right type of card but that didn't stop her; she would just mark through Get Well Wishes, Thank You, Sympathy or what ever the card occasion was and she would write Happy Birthday I love you on it. If she had a dollar bill she would put it in the card and mail it. We couldn't wait to open our card to see what kind it was. They meant more to us than any card Hallmark ever printed.

Many sacrifices were made as her children's needs were met. Mammy had coped with poverty during the depression and considered any style of life above the bare necessities as luxury. Her last years we all tried to see that she had and enjoyed things she had never been able to have before. She enjoyed eating out and going places with all of her family and getting her hair done.

Mammy was a kind gentle woman; she rarely ever raised her voice at any of us and I never remember her getting angry at any of us or at anyone about anything. I never heard her say a bad or unkind word about anyone, and it seemed that everyone loved her as well. Mammy was known as a person who tried to see the best in everyone, regardless of their thoughts. Mammy always wanted everything peaceable, and everyone to get along with each other.

Mammy had a unique but very effective way of expressing herself. Many of her phrases were, "Stick to gather", "just keep on going", just do the best you can', where there's a will there's a way," "our burdens might get heavy, but the Lord won't put more on us than we can stand", and "the Lord will see us through this and keep us going".

Mammy never talked about feeling trapped and helpless, or things were just too much for her or she just had to have some time to herself. When asked at the age of 75 by her doctor, if her nerves ever gave her trouble, she told the doctor she didn't know. She heard people talk about nerves but really just didn't know what nerve trouble meant.

Mammy has passed on but her memories will never be gone. Anyone of us could write page after page about Mammy, how she cared for us and of the memories we hold so dear of her. The way Mammy lived her life still continues to make big impressions on all the family. Today we count our blessings and feel so thankful to have had such a wonderful Mother who loved and cared for us. Mammy will always be with each of us through her memories and we do honor her.

WASTEQUIP Demo Day Celebration

On April 3, 2012, Wastequip's Eagleville, Tennessee operation hosted their Demo Day Celebration providing lunch, a factory tour and give-aways.

The Tennessee operation, previously know as "Holt Specialty Equipment", was opened in 1977 with 4 employees in a 2,400 square foot building and has been expanded several times over the past 35 years to the current 100,000 square foot facility located on just over 12 acres in the heart of Eagleville

The facility currently staffs 50-70 direct shop employees, 5 office staff, and is home to the container division engineering department consisting of 5 engineers/drafters. Current employees Cindy Henson, Kenny Stafford, Clifford Leverette, and Kenneth Crutcher have been employed at this location for a combined 124 years. Their extensive experience in the industry and knowledge of local customers' needs continues to be a huge part of this facility's success.

The Tennessee facility was founded with a focus on the production of rear-load, front-load and roll-off containers with an emphasis on the specialty market. Throughout the years, product offerings expanded to include a full line of hoist products ranging from the Trailhoist line to the 60,000# models and a full compactor line. For a short period of time, plastic jon boats became part of the production capabilities. Today this facility's efforts are focused on front-load, rear-load and specialty roll-off containers. In addition to manufacturing containers, this facility is also an active hoist mounting and compactor remanufacturing site for Wastequip.

So You Want A Tattoo?

It seems tattoos are graduating from the stereotype of being only for carnival workers, sailors, and bikers. Tattoos are and have been moving into the mainstream of our society. According to a USA Today survey 24% of people 18 to 50 years old sport at least one tattoo. The art of tattooing dates back to 3300 B. C., and even has biblical mention. No matter your view on the art of tattooing—it is shared by Kings and commoners, prisoners, sailors, and sweethearts.

With the number of tattoo parlors popping up all around, you could be the proud owner of a new tattoo in just a matter of a few hours. I think it is wise to mention that tattoos are much easier to get—than to get rid of. So, some food for thought on choosing the right tattoo artist, the procedure, safety, and options for when your tattoo falls short of your expectations.

Tattoo artist typically use a machine that acts similar to a sewing machine by repeatedly puncturing the skin and injecting small droplets of ink. The process is done without anesthetics and can cause pain ranging from slight to significant discomfort. Anytime the skin is pierced it can result in a small amount of bleeding; and of course when our skin is breached there is a risk of infection.

So, have you decided to get a tattoo and do you know your risk? It is important to know the risk and the importance of reporting any signs of complications to your healthcare provider immediately should they occur. Tattoo dyes can cause allergic reactions in some people. The most common dye colors causing reactions such as an itchy rash are green, red, yellow, and blue; these symptoms may last a few days or in some cases have occurred years later. Skin infections: usually associated with redness, swelling, pain, and may have a pus-like, foul smelling discharge. Another skin problem called granuloma (bumps) can develop around the tattoo. More serious complications such as bloodborne disease including tetanus, hepatitis B and hepatitis C; can be minimized by choosing a reputable artist who insist on clean conditions and makes your health paramount.

As always I recommend consulting with your healthcare provider before making decisions that could affect your health. Then ask yourself if you are truly ready to invest in permanent body art. Before the ink starts flowing is the time to remove all doubt and think through your decision. I think we all would agree it usually is a bad idea to allow yourself to be pressured into any decision; much less the decision to get a tattoo. Make sure when deciding on the art of choice you are free of the influence of drugs or alcohol.

If after consultation and deep contemplation you have decided to get a tattoo then here are some tips on choosing the right artist. Check with the local health department on licensing and regulation requirements and has the artist of operator been cited for any infringements. Make sure the artist wash their hands and wear clean gloves. Ask them to remove any needles and tubes from their sealed packaging in your presence. Any trays, pigments, or containers should be unused. Demand the artist use only heat sterilized (autoclave) equipment including instruments and supplies and tables, drawer handles and sinks should be disinfected with bleach or a commercial disinfectant. If all of these meet your inspection ask to use the restroom and if it is not equally clean—run.

After your tattoo is complete make sure you leave with care instructions. Typically, I would recommend applying an antibiotic ointment to the tattooed skin until healing is complete. Apply mild moisturizer several times a day, avoid sun exposure for a few weeks, and stay out of swimming pools, hot tubs, rivers and lakes. Shower no baths if the tattoo would be submerged in bath water, and remember to report any signs and symptoms of infection to your healthcare provider.

Kings, commoners or sweethearts, I think the most beautiful biblical passage on the subject is found in Isaiah 49:15b-16a: "I will not forget you. See, I have inscribed you on the palms of my hands."

Little Stories About You & Me

By Nancy Allen

The United States and Mexico

The Fifth of May (Cinco de Mayo) is not Mexico's independence day, but it is a holiday celebrated in the United States and also in Mexico where people remember the battle of Puebla.

In 1861 the French army stormed Veracruz, Mexico driving President Juarez and his government into retreat. The French army outnumbered the Mexican army two to one, but at Puebla, on May 5th, 1862 managed to defeat the French. However, the victory was short-lived. The French came back a year later with thirty-thousand troops and defeated the Mexicans. Emperor Maximilian I became ruler of Mexico. He remained in power until the United States Civil war was over and the United States could provide assistance to Mexico to expel the French. Some say the French wanted a foot-hold in North America from which to disrupt the American union by supporting the Confederacy.

Cinco de Mayo gained popularity in the United States in the 1980s and celebrates the culture and experiences of Americans with Mexican ancestry.

Mexico represents the largest source of immigration to the United States at about 12.7 million and growing.

We find American and Mexican cultures coming together on many fronts. Churches are reaching out to Hispanic people, communities are developing where Spanish speaking people flourish, owning their own businesses and growing the American economy. Cross-cultural marriage is becoming the norm with many people in America.

Karla and Michael met when Karla's brother brought Michael over to help him fix his car. Karla offered Michael something to eat and it was 'love at first bite.' Michael said he began going over often and Karla always fed him. He gained fifty pounds. At first they couldn't talk to each other and their friends translated. He learned some Spanish and she learned English. After three and a half years Michael took Karla to a really nice restaurant and asked her to marry him. She said yes and was immediately accepted by Michael's family. Because Karla's mother was in Mexico and couldn't come to the wedding, Michael's mother became the mother of the bride, helping her plan. They bonded as family and now they are very close. Her mother-in-law said, "When I grow old I'll have Karla to help me." She raised only boys and now is thrilled to have a daughter in the family. When she broke her leg, Karla and Michael moved in with her for a month and Karla took over the house.

Karla is Catholic and Michael is Church of Christ. However, they have managed to embrace each other's faith by attending services at both churches.

With modern technology Karla uses Skype to keep in touch with her mother in Mexico. She and Michael have a beautiful little girl and her mother gets to see her. Karla is teaching her Spanish and English at the same time. When asked about mixing their cultures, Karla said, "I like to dance the salsa and Michael doesn't like to dance. I take my brother with me when we go dancing." Michael smiled and said, "I danced with you once."

Laura On Life

Stampeding Wildlife

I'm not a germophobe. You get over that the first time your beloved bundle of joy spits up down the front of your shirt. That was 28 years ago for me.

Since then I have had every close encounter of the gross kind you can imagine. I'm immune to it now. My husband apparently has not been exposed to it enough to gain that immunity. He still gags at the thought of a dirty diaper. He still thinks that he can save himself if one of the kids gets a stomach virus.

There is a difference between a three-year old getting sick and a teenager getting sick. Little ones are quiet but have a problem with logistics. Teenagers are loud but at least they have learned when to head for the bathroom.

I had two of my teenagers with me on an out-of-town trip last week. My son was going to compete in a tournament and my daughter decided to come along for the ride. She will have regretted that decision within hours of arriving at our hotel.

It was just before we turned in for the night that my son said the infamous words: "I don't feel so good."

Uh-oh...

Every mom in the world knows what that means. I assessed the situation. One hotel room, two beds and one toilet. My daughter would share my bed. My son would take the bed closest to the bathroom. Most likely, he would be in and out of it all night. It would be rough, but we could deal with it, I thought.

That was until we heard the first few rounds. It sounded like he was trying to give birth to a baby whale. My daughter looked at me, eyes begging me to do something about this nightmare.

My idea of "roughing it" is having to use a fork to stir my tea. This was going to be more than rough. In fact, I was sure that my daughter and I would be in the same shape by morning if I didn't get us out of there.

Just after midnight, I shuffled down to the front desk in my pajamas and asked for another room close to the first one. They had one right next door. I would still hear my son's "contractions" but at least the sound would be muted. I sighed. This trip had just cost me double and my son didn't even go to the tournament.

When I came back to the nightmare room, my son was heaving in the bathroom and my daughter was sitting up in bed with a look of panic.

"I thought you were going to leave me here!" she wailed. Such drama.

I installed her in the room next door and spent a restless night listening to my son trying to eject his innards.

By morning, he was still not over it. Check out time was 11:00 o'clock. I couldn't drive home with him like that. He needed rest and I needed a nap. At 10:30, I was back at the front desk to request another day in the second room. My costs had tripled. At 11:00, I texted my husband to tell him why we would not be coming home that day.

"Take your time," he texted. I could hear the earnestness in those three words. He had some advice for me, too: "Use hand sanitizer and Lysol. Make him take a shower before you come home. Can you wash his clothes?"

I texted back, "No. No laundry facilities."

If texts could beg, this one did: "Can you burn them?"

Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation Hosts Inaugural Relay Rutherford Race

The Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation (JDRF) will host the inaugural Relay Rutherford Race on May 12, 2012. The Relay Rutherford race course covers approximately 55 miles in Rutherford County beginning in Eagleville, passing through Rockvale and Murfreesboro and ending at StoneCrest Medical Center in Smyrna, Tennessee.

Eagleville's own, Ben Kelley and his family are serving as "Honorary Grand Marshals" of the race that starts in Eagleville.

The race uses a staggered wave start with the first wave beginning at 7 a.m. Team finish times will range between 6 and 10 hours with runners rotating at designated 3 to 6 mile transition points. Teams may rotate runners as many times as necessary to finish the race, but every runner must run at least once. A 5 person "ultra" team is $200 and a 10 person team is $400.

The race is geared towards intermediate to advanced runners who can easily run a 5K distance or who want to challenge themselves by running multiple times in a single day.

All participants will receive a t-shirt and finisher's medal. The winning team in each category (male, female, and co-ed) will receive a prize. Prizes will also be awarded to the team that raises the most money, the best team uniforms and the best vehicle décor. Complimentary snacks and water will be available at designated checkpoints and barbecue will be available at the finish line.

Elite runners with type 1 diabetes from SANOFI Team Type 1 will be participating in the event.

For more information or to register, please visit jdrf.org/relayrutherford or contact race director, Jessie Clark at 615-332-2575 or jclark@jdrf.org.

About JDRF: JDRF is the leading global organization focused on type 1 diabetes (T1D) research. Driven by passionate, grassroots volunteers connected to children, adolescents, and adults with this disease, JDRF is the largest charitable supporter of T1D research. Type 1 diabetes (T1D) is an autoimmune disease in which a person's pancreas stops producing insulin, a hormone that enables people to get energy from food. It occurs when the body's immune system attacks and destroys the insulin-producing cells in the pancreas, called beta cells. For more information visit jdrf.org

Central Tennessee Orchestra Festival

Saturday, May 12th, the Central Tennessee Orchestra Festival will premiere its first concert at Central Magnet School in Murfreesboro at 6:00 pm. This orchestra is comprised of students from three different counties who have gathered for the weekend to practice together. Under the batons of Dr. Carol Nies and Mr. Sam Olivia students will perform music from Brahms to Elton John. The ultimate goal for this orchestra is to engage young musicians in string music, encourage retention in the arts and raise community awareness of the importance of music education in our schools. The concert is free of charge and open to the public.
