Eagleville, Tennessee

On Saturday, October 5 Betty Bolek and her daughters Colleen Adams & Susan Moore (all of Eagleville) took a Hot Air Balloon ride – something which was always a dream of Betty's. Her children and grandchildren decided to make her dream come true and all got together to give this adventure to her as a Birthday gift.

They boarded at 7:00 am, just in time to take flight and watch the sunrise while floating 500 feet above the ground. Top speeds were 13 mph while flying, and reached the height of 550 feet. The 1 ½ hour Balloon ride took them from Columbia, TN to Franklin, TN and covered about 16 ½ miles. Upon landing they celebrated their flight with a Champagne toast.

The ride was booked through Middle Tennessee Hot Air Adventures of Franklin, (615) 584-6236.

TURTLE COOKIE BARS

Crust:

- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1/2 cup butter, softened

2nd Layer

- 1 cup pecan halves or chopped pecans
- 2/3 cup butter
- 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1 cup milk chocolate morsels

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Combine first 3 ingredients in a mixing bowl; beat at medium speed with an electric mixer until blended. Pat mixture firmly into an ungreased 13x9 inch pan.

Arrange pecans over crust.

Combine 2/3 cup butter and 1/2 cup brown sugar in a saucepan; bring to a boil over medium high heat, stirring constantly. Cook 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Pour mixture over pecans. Bake at 350 degrees for 15-17 minutes or until golden and bubbly.

Remove from oven; sprinkle with chocolate morsels. Let stand 2-3 minutes or until slightly melted. Gently swirl chocolate with a knife, leaving some morsels whole (do not spread). Let cool on a wire rack at room temperature until chocolate is set. Cut into squares.

PASTOR'S PONDERINGS

By Pastor Ken Sharp, Jackson Ridge Community Church

This is a beautiful time of year, with the Fall colors and the cooler, crisp air. It is a time when we are reminded of the majesty of God's creative hand all around us. In Psalm 89:34, the Lord is speaking to David: "My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of My lips." That is how God speaks of His solemn covenant with His servant David. But the words, which are rooted in the immutable fidelity of Almighty God, reach out beyond the one covenant and embrace all the promises of God. They assure us that God is not a man. Once He makes a promise, it is unalterable, whether it is a promise to David, or to all the household of faith, as in the great words of assurance with which the Word of God abounds. Yes, God does mean what He says. There is a great blessing in taking Him at His word. Have a blessed October.

Little Stories About You & Me

By Nancy Allen

Summer Heat and Brown Leaves

Earlier in my life when it was 95 degrees in the shade somehow I didn't mind. I'm remembering the days of my youth when the only relief from the heat was the big maple trees in our front yard and the funeral fans scattered through our old pre Civil War house. The ceilings had been lowered to make it easier to heat in the winter, but summers were just hot, making October a welcomed relief.

My husband from my youth was a "red neck" because his body was white except for his neck and hands which were dark brown or maybe even a little red from working outside in all kinds of weather.

I worked in the house, even so my pores were washed clean from sweating in the summer heat. People ate lots of salt, we needed it and boy did a drink of water from the deep cold well taste good. In those days water was our drink of choice.

Sitting on the front porch in the cool of the evening listening to night sounds such as crickets chirping before going to bed is a favorite memory. I loved listening to the frogs after settling in on the cool sheets—you could hear them because the windows were open. When the breeze blew through the room it was easy to relax and fade into satisfaction knowing even if it rained I would be safe with my husband by my side.

But now I'm alone. I sit here by my window, a 97 year old woman, no longer able to relax on the porch or tend to my yard as I did when I was young.

Look at my neighbor over there in his yard raking his leaves. He manicures that yard like it's a carpet in his house. I've never seen a man so obsessed with a lawn.

I wish I was younger—more supple. I was once like the green leaves of summer, flowing with sap, giving rise to the wind, giving shade to my neighbors—but not today. Today I'm like the dried up crusty leaves clinging to the trees, hanging on to life—my face is brown, wrinkled and crumbling.

Can't see what the old coot sees in me. He was over here just yesterday giving me what for—flirting if you asked me. But it will be a cold day in summer before he rakes my yard. I don't like him, never did even when we could go tumbling across the yard like the brown leaves. My yard is covered—over my shoe tops if I should go out there. Guess my leaves bother him. I don't care. I can't do anything about them. My nephew promised to rake my leaves this week. I hope he cleans out the flower bed. Brown leaves are gathered all around the dead plants. He said he would shred the leaves for his compost. They do make good dirt. Can you imagine something good coming out of something so dried up and ugly? New life—that's what it is—new life.

That's the door bell, he must be here. "Come in," I yelled from my chair. "The door's open."

"Hello, Aunt Millie, where do you want me to start?"

"Get the back yard. The leaves are thick there. They are even piled up against the back neighbor's chain link fence. But you don't have to bother with the front. Just leave those leaves. When the west wind blows, my leaves will be the old coot's problem."

Birthday Potluck: A Taste of Thailand - Wed. Oct. 16

The speaker for this month's Birthday Potluck at FiftyForward College Grove is Pai Petko, from Thailand. Pai will discuss her native country, and she may have slides to show. We will also have an opportunity to ask her questions.

The Center is in for an extra treat because Pai is going to prepare an authentic Thai dish for the entrée. It's a chicken and rice recipe, not too spicy.

Birthday Potluck is Wednesday, October 16. Lunch at 11:30. Program at noon. Please bring a side dish.

Eagles Win With Total Team Effort

Eagleville improved their record to 6-1 and 3-0 in district after beating Fayetteville last Friday night. Quarterback Ryan Jordan threw for three TDs, one to Chris Hale then he hit Britt Roberts for a 35 yard score and his third one went to Brandon Petrig. Running back Chris Hale added one more on the ground making it 28 to 0 and ending up with 170 yards rushing. For the 2013 season Hale has over 1,200 yards so far.
