Eagleville 3rd Annual Craft & Bluegrass Festival

By Glenda Dyer

Hundreds of people attended the third annual craft and bluegrass festival at the Eagleville City Park Saturday.

Some traveled from as far away as Chattanooga to hear such bands as the Rank Strangers, Hollow Creek and the Dillon Band perform. Many of the out-of-town guests said they were followers of festivals where bluegrass music is played. The high-stepping Tennessee Country Cloggers also entertained the crowd.

The Rank Strangers, which started off the music at 11 a.m., was the first band to play at the new park.

Among the activities at the festival was a games area laid out on one of the ball fields by the ROTC group from Eagleville High School. Besides playing an assortment of skills games, youngsters could also crawl through a low to the ground obstacle-type course and could also propel themselves in a harness along a cable stretched between the backstop posts.

Vendors offered a variety of foods, including home-made style lemonade, shaved ice cones, boiled peanuts and more. Among the favorites at the park's concession stand were fish dinners and "loaded" baked potatoes topped with barbecue meat.

Other vendors offered wares such as hand-made walking canes, knives, artwork, jewelry, antiques, hand-made wooden toys, other crafts and more.

One of the favorite competitions at the festival was a Halloween costume contest, which included youngsters dressed up as ballerinas, a bee, pirate, octopus, hillbilly, milkmaid, and hobo.

Winners in the nine and under category were the milkmaid, whose name was unavailable at press time, and Shelbie Mooneyham, who was dressed as a hobo. Katlyn Vanetta won the older group competition. She was dressed in a black costume with a skeleton mask.

A version of an old-fashioned cake walk was also held. Because the baked good categories also included pies, brownies, cookies and breads, this competition was known as a "bake walk."

Among the bake walk winners were Rosa Binson, who took home a fudge pie made by Phil Williams. Amber Underwood won a caramel cake made by Margaret Ryan, Hannah Underwood won a strawberry cake made by Nell Lynch, and Tate Adams won a butterscotch banana bread loaf made by Sherri Whisener.

The baked goods entered for the bake walk were also judged. Winning in the brownie and cookie category was Melissa Buchanan's chess squares with Whisener's bread winning in the bread category.

Terry Ezzelle's devil's food cake with homemade caramel icing won in the cake category, and Lela Rooker's

Eagleville Grocery Opening Day Big Success Grand Opening Celebration November 3rd

By Glenda Dyer

The Eagleville Grocery store opened Oct. 9 to a crowd of happy shoppers after having been closed for several months.

New owners Brad and Ryan Perryman are now planning a grand opening celebration for Saturday, Nov. 3, with a professional clown on site entertaining the children with face painting and balloon sculptures.

"We will be giving away a lot of prizes all day long and also homemade baked goods for the customers' enjoyment," the Perrymans said. "Some of our vendors and friends will also be participating in giving away free stuff so there should be plenty of exciting things going on all day long.'

In conjunction with the grand opening, the store is having special sales the week of Oct. 30 through Nov. 5.

Brad and Ryan are the sons of the late Alan Perryman, a long-time grocer, and Jacque Perryman Dospil. The Perrymans co-owned the former Henry and Al's grocery with Henry Ghee from 1994 to 2004.

The brothers have renamed the store the "Eagleville Grocery."

A number of customers interviewed on the opening day expressed their pleasure at the store's opening.

"I think it is a beautiful set up," they have reopened it, and I think they have really made an effort to make it a good part of the community."

Wade "Buddy" Taylor said he didn't realize he would miss the store until it was gone.

"I'm glad it is back," he said.

Taylor's wife, Janice, also said that it is good to have the store back.

"We need a grocery store here," she said. "It is too far to go get bread, milk, or whatever and have to drive 10 miles at least. I am glad for the town."

Linda Skinner said she is also happy to have a grocery store in Eagleville again.

"I usually stop everyday," she said. "I am always just needing one thing to finish up something."

Candace appears pleased.

Also on opening day, Brad and Ryan's mother and grandmother expressed their sentiments about the brothers' venture.

"I'm so proud for the boys, and I think their daddy would be really proud," mother Jacque Perryman Dospil said. "They have worked hard and done good."

Grandmother Frances Wigington of the Holts Corner area said, "I almost cried because I was so pleased to see what they were doing and how happy they were because this store means a lot to them."

TVA Holding Public Meeting To Gain Input On Proposed Substation

By Glenda Dyer

TVA is seeking public input on a draft environmental statement that concerns the potential impact of a new 500 kilovolt (kV) substation proposed to be built near Patterson and about 55 miles of new transmission lines that will pass through Rutherford, Williamson and Maury counties.

The agency will hold a public meeting at Eagleville High School on Oct. 30 from 4 to 8 p.m. to discuss the draft environmental impact statement and to receive comments.

TVA's preferred new substation location is on an approximate 60-acre site on the north side of Coleman Hill Road in the Patterson community. The property is owned by the Keenan family.

The new transmission lines will include 30 miles of 500-kV and 25 miles of 161-kV lines.

The 500-kV line will be built on existing, but never used, right of way from a 500-kV substation near Columbia to the new substation near Patterson. The new 500-kV line is proposed to cross Horton Highway just north of Webb Road in the College Grove community. It will cross Highway 41-A near the College Grove Road intersection, which is north of Eagleville.

The 500-kV lines would run on lace steel four-legged towers that would probably be from 110 to 120 feet tall, according to Roger Sparry, TVA's manager of siting and environmental engineering. The distance between the towers would vary according to terrain, but typically they would be between 1,000 and 1,200 feet apart, Sparry said.

The new 161-kV lines would originate at the proposed substation near Patterson and would include nine miles of line to the existing Almaville substation; 15 miles of double-circuit 161-kV lines to the existing Christiana substation, and three miles to the existing Murfreesboro-Triune-East Franklin transmission line.

The 161-kV lines would for the most part be carried on single steel poles that could reach about 90 to 100 feet above ground and would be about 600 feet apart.

The system upgrades are needed because of the projected growth in Williamson and Rutherford counties, according to TVA officials. The agency predicts that the load growth in the two counties will be more than TVA's system can handle by 2010.

Construction on the estimated $90 million project is projected to start in May 2008 and be completed in April or May of 2010.

Eagleville Planning Commission Meets

By Glenda Dyer

The Eagleville Planning Commission has voted to recommend to city council the rezoning of a new 1-acre, single home subdivision on Highway 41A south from general industrial (I-1) to medium density residential (R-2).

The action on rezoning the "Craig & Shandy Sewell Subdivision" took place at a special called meeting held Oct. 11. The subdivision plat was considered at the Aug. 6 planning commission meeting.

Sewell, who owns the sod farm, said at the earlier meeting that a house would be built on the 1-acre plot, which is part of a parcel of land that is zoned I-1. The I-1 zoning does not allow any "new residential activities," according to the zoning ordinance.

City Planner Bo Logan said that the 1-acre site could have been zoned R-1, which is for low density residential areas, if the site being considered was at least two acres. According to Eagleville's zoning ordinance, the minimum lot size for R-1 is 2 acres, whereas the R-2 zone only requires a 20,000 square foot lot for a single-family residence and 30,000 square feet for a duplex.

The R-2 zone allows all the uses permitted in R-1 plus it also allows duplex dwellings. Also, the minimum yard requirements for an R-2 area are less than those required in an R-1 zone.

Mayor Nolan Barham said the recommendation for the rezoning will be presented for city council consideration at the October meeting.

At a planning commission meeting on Oct. 1, commissioners gave approval for Doyle Wood, who owns the new Eagle Roost Smokehouse and Grill, to modify sidewalks to provide better access to his building and the business next door.

The restaurant is located in the former When Pigs Fly building on Main Street. Wood predicts the Eagle Roost restaurant will open at the soonest on Nov. 1 but more likely about Jan. 1.

"This is three month longer than I thought from the beginning," he said.

Wood also inquired about adding sidewalks and/or curbs along the parking lot at the former Huckleberry's Café, which he also owns, to keep motorists from cutting across the property.

Wood is planning to turn the building, which is located at the corner of Allisona Road and South Main, into a coffee shop and ice cream place. The eatery will be named the Billy Goat Café.

No action was needed from the planning commission for the sidewalk work, except Wood will need a permit for the sidewalk construction.

He also inquired about constructing a new storage building to replace an existing one at the former Huckleberry's location. More information was needed on how close the storage building is to the property boundary before commissioners could decide on what, if any, action would be needed.

Wood said he already has a permit for renovating the former Huckleberry's location. He does not plan on adding onto the building unless the health department requires another bathroom.

He plans on tearing down a wall inside the building and adding a new ceiling and redoing the exterior which will include an outside seating area.

"I believe it will look sharp," he said. "It will be an old building but I it will be sort of up scale."

Eagleville High School Senior Michael Frost Goes To State

By Ray Frost

(one of Michael's greatest fans)

Senior at Eagleville High School, Michael Frost, started playing golf only four years ago as a freshman. From the very beginning, he decided and was determined to play in the State Tournament before or during his senior year, even though he was new to the game of golf.

Michael had the dream and has put in the hard work to make it happen and it paid off this season. He started this season out the right way, by coming in as low medalist 7 out of 10 district matches.

During the district tournament on September 25th at Henry Horton Michael placed 4th out of 52 players. This qualified him to compete in the regional tournament also played at Horton on October 1st. After teeing off on hole one at the regional Michael realized that the greens were putting rough and hard to predict and did not putt as well as he wanted, but when Frost turned to play the back none holes you could see the determination in his eyes to buckle down and make up for some bad breaks in his putting game. He knew that he had to play par golf the rest of his match to get close to advancing to state, so Frost went to work making long drives, great shots to the green and finishing out the holes with precision putts.

Almost at the end of his match Michael was 'even-par' for the back nine going into hole 18.

On the last hole he hit a very long drive but the ball landed next to a tree on the right of the fairway leaving an impossible shot toward the green. Frost had to punch out to the fairway but made a smart save for one over par for the last hole giving Michael a very solid score of 77 for the day. This was the score he needed. His 77 ended up being 3rd pick as an individual for the State Tournament to be played at Old For Park on October 9th and 10th.

Michael Frost is the 3rd golfer to ever make it to the State in Eagleville School history. He is a great example that if we set our goals in life, stay focused, work hard and keep the faith, we can accomplish great things. He said he is looking forward to the great experience of competing on the state level and is ready to "enjoy the ride".

On October 9th and 10th Michael went to play in the two day state event and said it was just as exciting as he expected. There were several hundred spectators attending and that made it a very wonderful experience and honor for him to represent his school, community and county.

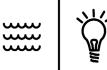

Michael was the only golfer from Rutherford County to play in the A/AA state tournament. Frost said although he did not shoot as well as he had hoped, his focus is still on the fact the he reached his goal of making it to state and will look back on it as a very special time in his life.

Michael hives thanks to his family and to all who have encouraged him and helped him in his games but gives his greatest thanks to God. Michael said "without his relationship with Jesus Christ he would be nothing."

The people of Eagleville are proud of you Michael and wish you the best in all you do, and by all means, always "Enjoy the Ride".

TVA Will Hold an Open House for Input on the Draft Environmental Impact Statement of the Proposed Transmission System Upgrades in Middle Tennessee

TVA will hold an open house on October 30 at the Eagleville High School from 4 p.m. until 8 p.m. for public input on the draft environmental impact statement (EIS) for a 500-kilovolt substation in Rutherford County and associated transmission lines in Rutherford, Williamson and Maury Counties.

You are invited to stop by anytime during the open house to submit comments about the assessment and to talk with TVA representatives about the proposal.

Persons interested in reviewing or commenting on the draft environmental impact statement can access it online at www.tva.com/environment/reports/. Copies of the document will be available at the open house or can be requested in advance by contacting the person listed below.

TVA is interested in receiving comments on the draft environmental assessment. These comments will be used in preparing the final assessment that will identify the environmental impacts of the proposed action. TVA will continue to accept comments until November 20, 2007. You can submit your comments at the public meeting, send them to the address listed below, or submit them electronically at: http://www.tva.gov/environment/reports/rutherford/index.htm.

The school is located at 500 Hwy 99, Eagleville, Tennessee. If any member of the public has special needs, please call the person listed below a minimum of five days prior to the open house meeting.

A Step Back in Time

This year marked the 20th anniversary for family, friends and fans to gather in Winchester, Virginia to memorialize Patsy Cline. Events organized by the "Always Patsy Cline Fan Organization" – led by Charlie Dick's brother, Mel Dick is held each year during the Labor Day Weekend. Included was a service at Patsy's grave at the Shenandoah Memorial Cemetery where a Memorial Bell Tower has been place by her fans. Cline fans from different areas of the United States plus foreign countries meet each year in Winchester for these events. Country singer and songwriter, George Hamilton IV, a friend from Patsy's Nashville days was in attendance. He encouraged the crowd to enjoy their recollections of Patsy and not mourn her death. He had worked with Cline on "The Jimmy Dean Show" where both performed. "It's not that sad of an occasion because we're celebrating Patsy's life," he said "and what she meant to us and what she still means all over the world." The Labor Day weekend was chosen for the annual celebration because it falls close to her September 8th birthday. As these events came to an end, I'm sure plans were already being made for next year's celebration for the life of Patsy.

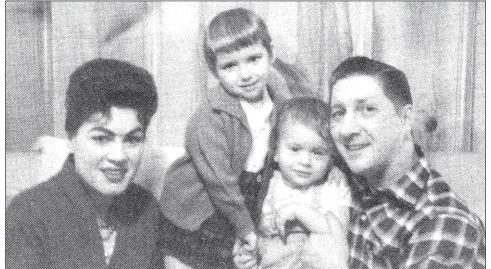

Virginia Patterson Hensley, born September 8, 1932, in Winchester, Virginia, was the oldest child of Hilda and Samuel Lawrence Hensley. She had two siblings, Sam and Sylvia Mae. In her youth, Virginia Hensley was called Virginia or Ginny but later became known to the world as Patsy Cline. Soon after Patsy was born the family moved near Elkton, Virginia, returning to live in Winchester when Patsy was about 16 years old. About this same time Sam Hensley abandoned his family and as a sophomore in high school Patsy dropped out of school to help her Mother make ends meet. She worked various jobs, usually as a waitress. One job was at Gaunt's Drug Store as a fountain attendant. She earned $35.00 a week. She was known to be outgoing, happy and bubbly, with a loud voice and a full-bodied laugh. At times she would sing while she worked, telling her friends that someday she would become a famous singer. Sonny Lonas, a regular patron at the drug store said, "Patsy could make the best chocolate milkshake he ever had".

Patsy was known to be a very warm and generous person. As a teenager, she paid fifty cents down and fifty cents a week for a doll for her sister at Christmas. And at Easter, even if she and her mother couldn't scrape enough money for new outfits, they managed to find money for new clothes for the younger children.

In the early years Patsy was interested in dancing and wanted to become a dancer. Her idol was Shirley Temple. Patsy was entered in a children's dance competition by her Mother and surprisingly won first price. Soon after, Patsy lost interest in dancing, and was completely into music instead. First it was playing the piano, which she did by ear, and later it was singing.

At the age of thirteen Patsy became very ill with rheumatic fever. In a 1957 interview she stated, "I developed a terrible throat infection and my heart even stopped beating. The doctor put me in an oxygen tent. You might say it was my return to the living after several days that launched me as a singer. The fever affected my throat and when I recovered I had this booming voice like Kate Smith's."

As a child, Patsy sang in the local Baptist church choir, later singing on local radio shows and at dances. With great determination Patsy's singing career was beginning. Jim McCoy, a music legend of Virginia and West Virginia was very influential in the early years of Patsy's career. According to a new biography just published "Joltin' Jim" Jim McCoy's Life in County Music, by John Douglas; Jim McCoy, reminisced about the year he was 17, he and his band had a 30-minute program on radio station WINC in Winchester, Virginia. Young Virginia Hensley apparently listened to Jim's Saturday show, and one morning, Jim looked up and saw Virginia staring at him through the big window in the studio. She let it be known that she wanted to do a number with his group. Still only 17, Jim already had a reputation for sharing his mike with others, particularly young performers – a reputation that continues today. The exact date of this occurrence is unclear but most likely it was in the winter of 1946-47, a few months after Virginia had turned 14. The next Saturday, Virginia/Patsy turned up again as the band was setting up for the broadcast. She announced she was ready to sing. Jim remembers going out to the lobby to talk with her. When she told him her plans, he auditioned her on the spot by having her sing a bit. "I decided that if she was crazy enough to step up to the mike, well, then, we'd let her," Jim said, "I talked to the boys and they said, "Yes, let's give her a chance". "Boy, we knew right off that this girl was something else," Jim, said. For the next month or so, she joined Jim and the band every Saturday morning. The story of Patsy Cline's professional debute with Jim has been told so many times that it's almost a legend. The tale is mentioned in biographies of the Country Music Hall of Fame Singers, in the notes of reissues of her records on compact disc, and on the National Park Service website for Patsy Cline's childhood home in Winchester. "I knew this girl was going to move forward. You could tell it at an early age," Jim said. In the 1950's, she would become known to the world as Patsy Cline.

Oddly, the tie between Patsy and Jim became stronger over the years. After she moved to Nashville, whenever she wanted to come home to Winchester, Va., Patsy would call Jim so he could line up jobs to help cover her expenses. Often this involved appearing at drive-in theaters, then in their heyday. For a few songs before the movie, they were typically paid $50 - $75 each, the equivalent of about a thousand dollars today. In March 1964, a year after Patsy's death, Jim did the first of his many radio shows remembering Patsy, a tradition he continues with special tribute events each year at the Troubadour marking her birthday and her death. On Sunday afternoon during the Labor Day Weekend, the "Celebrating Patsy Cline" event is held at the Troubadour Park in Berkley Springs, West Virginia. Jim and his wife Bertha invite Patsy's family and musicians who played in the past with Jim and Patsy to take part in the event. Many members of Patsy's fan club also attend for an afternoon of great music.

In 1953 Patsy married Gerald Cline of Maryland from whom she took her stage name. In 1956 she divorced Cline and in 1957 she married Charlie Dick of Winchester, Virginia, and had two children; Julie born in 1958 and Randy born 1961. Charlie, Randy, Julie and her family presently live in Nashville, Tennessee.

In the mid-1950's, Patsy often performed with the Kountry Krackers, a popular regional band. "This band was the one for Patsy", Jim McCoy said. "It gave her great experience and they played the kind of music she needed". Sonny Lonas, a local Eagleville resident who grew up in Winchester, Virginia was a member of the Kountry Krackers at this time and later moved to Nashville with Charlie and Patsy.

Patsy's first recording contract was with Four Star Records in 1954 –1960 and later with Decca 1960 –1963. According to the biography "Joltin' Jim" McCoy's old friend Ernest Tubb also recorded for Decca and helped pave the way for her there. Decca was a major force in the country music of the 1950's and 1960's. From Kitty Wells in the early '50s to Brenda Lee and then Patsy and Loretta Lynn. Decca put a lot of effort into promoting its women.

Patsy's first hit record; "Walking After Midnight" was recorded on November 8, 1956 but for some reason the record company didn't release it at once. On January 21, 1957 Patsy got the opportunity to perform on the Arthur Godfrey Talent Show, and there she sang "Walking After Midnight". It was a total success as Patsy froze the famous applause meter. Soon after her appearance at the Arthur Godfrey Talent Show, the record company released "Walking After Midnight" in a hurry.

Despite the success on the talent show her next big hit "I Fall To Pieces" wasn't recorded until November 1960, and according to many, was the turning point in her career. After that, the hits were coming regularly. "Crazy", "She's Got You" and "Leavin' On Your Mind" to mention a few.

Patsy and her family moved to Nashville, Tennessee in 1959 and she became a member of the Grand Ole Opry in 1960. One of the greatest singers in the history of country music, Patsy Cline also helped construct a trail for female singers to assert themselves as an integral part of the country music industry.

One of Patsy's biggest hits, "Crazy" was recorded just after she was in a very bad car accident. On June 14, 1961 Patsy and her brother Sam were involved in a head-on car collision in front of Madison High School in Nashville. The impact sent Patsy into the windshield and nearly killed her. Due to the car accident, Patsy got a visible scar across her forehead.

Patsy also had a number of big hits released after her death, among them "Faded Love" and "Sweet Dreams (Of You)". In "Faded Love", if you listen carefully at the end, especially when she breathes before the final word, she sounds as if she has almost started to cry. It's been speculated that this could have been because the song was so close to her own life at the time, or maybe it just shows Patsy's genuine feeling and emotion. She was known to actually shed a tear as she sang some of her songs, according to her husband, Charlie Dick. The recording of "Faded Love" is truly a treasure.

The date, March 5th, 1963- is burned in the memory of Patsy Cline fans all over the world. Returning from a benefit concert in Kansas City for the widow of Jack McCall, a disc jockey she'd known, tragedy struck. The plane carrying Patsy, Cowboy Copas, Hawkshaw Hawkins and Randy Hughes crashed near Camden, Tennessee. Patsy's manager, Randy Hughes, had flown the group of entertainers to the concert in his yellow 6:07 pm.

It's been 44 years since that fatal plane crash. Entertainers and fans alike have never forgotten what the country music industry lost that night in that catastrophic plane crash. Patsy, Cowboy Copas and Hawkshaw Hawkins will always be remembered for their music legacy to the world.

Patsy's life and career was cut short but her voice remains very much alive throughout the world.

I want to thank, Charlie Dick and Julie Fudge for their contribution and permission for this article. My thanks also goes to Jim McCoy and John Douglas (author of Jim's book) for their permission to use text from their new publication "Joltin' Jim".

October - Cyber Security Awareness Month Protect Your Children Online

October is National Cyber Security Awareness Month. This national campaign's goal is to increase the public's awareness of cyber security and cyber crime issues so users can take precautions to avoid these threats on the Internet. The Multi-State Information Sharing and Analysis Center is sponsoring the Kids Safe Online web cast in celebration of National Cyber Security Awareness Month. The October 17th broadcast features an interactive play geared for 4th and 5th graders. The play will feature entertaining skits to help children learn more about cyber security and how to be safe when using computers and the Internet. Students, educators and parents are encouraged to view the web cast!

To register to view the web cast go to: www.msisac.org/ webcast/10_07/index.cfm.

Children present unique security risks when they use a computer. The National Cyber Security Alliance, a partner in the National Cyber Security Awareness Month initiative, offers the following tips to keep children safe and to protect their data. By taking some simple steps, you can reduce the threats to your child.

- 1. Keep your computer in a central and open location in your home and be aware of other computers your child may be using.
- 2. Discuss and set guidelines and rules for computer use with your child. Post these rules by the computer as a reminder.
- 3. Use the Internet with your child. Familiarize yourself with your child's online activities and maintain a dialogue with your child about what applications they are using.

- 4. Implement parental control tools that are provided by some Internet Service Providers and available for purchase as separate software packages. Remember, no program is a substitute for parental supervision. You may be able to set some parental controls within your browser. To find these options in Internet Explorer for example, click Tools on your menu bar, select Internet Options, choose the Content tab, and click the Enable button under Content Advisor. (For other browsers, contact the vendor to determine what parental controls are included.)
- 5. Consider using software that allows you to monitor your child's e-mail and Web traffic.
- 6. Consider partitioning your computer into separate accounts. Most operating systems give you the option of creating a different user account for each user. If you're worried your child might accidentally access, modify, or delete your files, you can give your child a separate account and decrease the access and number of privileges your child has.
- 7. Know who your child's online friends are and supervise their chat areas.
- 8. Teach your child never to give out personal information to people he or she meets online, such as in chat rooms or bulletin boards.
- 9. Know who to contact if you believe your child is in danger. Visit www.getnetwise.org for detailed information.
- 10. If you know of a child in immediate risk or danger, call law enforcement immediately. Report instances of online child exploitation to the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children's Cyber Tipline at www.missingkids.com.

Children need advice, guidance, and protection. Talk to your child and let him or her know you can be approached with questions about behaviors or problems encountered on the computer. Teach your child how to safely use the computer and the Internet. There are many Web sites

Happy Birthday Mary Vincent October 30th From Sherry Womble

God gave a gift to the world when you were borna person who loves, who cares, who sees a person's need and fills it, who encourages and lifts people up, who spends energy on others rather than herself, someone who touches each life she enters, and makes a difference in the world, because ripples of kindness flow outward as each person you have touched, touches others. Your birthday deserves to be a national holiday, because you are a special treasure for all that you've done. May the love you have shown to others return to you, multiplied. I wish you the happiest of birthdays, and many, many more, so that others have time to appreciate you as much as I do.

The Eagle Battalion cadets have been very busy so far during the 2007-2008 school year. To date, thirty cadets and our two army instructors participated on a canoe trip to the Grimes Canoe Base in Flatwoods, TN during the Labor Day weekend. This was our first canoe trip since 2005 and everyone enjoyed their seven mile trek down the Buffalo River.

Our color guard teams have presented the colors of the United States of America at one American Legion meeting, three high school football games and the middle school homecoming football game. In addition, the color guard and drill teams have been practicing very diligently getting ready for their first drill competition on Saturday, November 3rd, 2007 at Oakland High School in Murfreesboro, TN. Both of these teams will also be performing at the 13th Annual JROTC Veterans Day program scheduled for Friday, November 9, 2007.

Completing the teams update, our "up and coming" Rifle Team has also been on the move. During the month of September, all JROTC cadets competed to earn a spot on the 2007-08 team. At the conclusion of this local competition, sixteen cadets shot straight enough to become members of the Rifle team. Congratulations on leading the pack! The Rifle Team's first competition is at the Montgomery Bell Classic Rifle Competition on October 20, 2007 in Nashville, TN.

And just before leaving for Fall Break, the TN National Guard and Sergeant First Class (E7) Neeley brought their Rock Wall display to Eagleville. As you can see from the accompanying pictures, many of the cadets accepted the challenge and climbed to the very top of the display.

Lastly, the world famous EHS Raider teams will compete in their last Raiders Competition of the year at the Rutherford County hosted Twenty-First Annual JROTC Raider Rendezvous at Cedars of Lebanon in Wilson County on October 20, 2007. Stay tuned to this fine newspaper to find out how well they did!

The drill team is striving for perfection in 2007-08 chocolate pie took top honors in the pie category.

Tate Adams' pumpkin won in the pumpkin decorating contest.

Among the many volunteers who helped out at the festival was Cory Call, assistant branch manager at Regions Bank in Eagleville, who served as emcee.

Vice Mayor Ronnie Hill, who chairs the park committee, said he was very pleased with this year's festival.

"It seems like everyone had a good time, and the weather was great," Hill said. "There was a lot going on at once, and something for everyone."

The proceeds from the festival will go toward park projects. The total amount of funds raised on Saturday was not available at press time.

Current plans are for the 4th Annual Craft & Bluegrass Festival to be held next year on the second Saturday in October at the city park. The festival was held downtown last year, and this year was the first time it was held at the park.

Hollow Creek Bluegrass band provided just what the crowd expected of a great performance.

Eagleville ROTC provided games throughout the day for the festival.

Rank Strangers Bluegrass band is first band to perform at the new Eagleville City Park.

Safety Drills For All County Schools October 15-19

MURFREESBORO — As part of ongoing efforts to train, practice and evaluate the preparedness of our schools for emergencies, various safety drills will be held at all Rutherford County Schools next week, Oct. 15-19.

A change this year will be that school administrators and individual school resource officers will not have prior knowledge of when or what type of drills will be conducted. The operation is being overseen and executed by the commanders of the Sheriff Department's School Resource Officer division, which coordinates with Rutherford County Schools about safety procedures.

The media is asked to publish information about the drills in an effort to avoid any sort of panic or confusion by parents or residents.

Two years ago, Rutherford County Schools adopted a uniform emergency plan for all schools in order to have better consistency and understanding during emergencies. Each year, the school system continuously trains personnel at the schools and holds drills to evaluate those procedures.

The system was initiated by Rutherford County Schools Director Harry Gill Jr. in coordination with the School Resource Officer division of the Sheriff's Department. In the past, the school system and the SRO division have held drills on simulated hostage scenarios, bomb threats and various other emergency situations.

For additional information, contact James Evans, Community Relations, at (615) 893-5812 or at evansj@rcs. k12.tn.us.

College Grove Elementary Every School Every Day

By Wendy Jones, Library Assistant

Monday, October 8 - On Thursday, September 27th, the fifth grade students enjoyed a wonderful trip to the Nashville Public Library. "A Midsummer's Night Dream" was presented using puppetry. Students were amazed at the size and flexibility of the puppets. Students really enjoyed their day at the library.

Tuesday, October 9 - Mrs. Vickie Brake's and Mrs. Carol Nations' second grade classes are excited about their butterfly celebration this week. The unit on life cycles has been fun and engaging. Students are busy learning their math facts and phonics skills. Best wishes and enjoy the new fall season.

Wednesday, October 10 - Art students at College Grove are painting the warm color palette of desert landscapes. They are drawing the many animals that live there and incorporating them into the landscapes, using collage. The students have just finished large abstract dancing line paintings, in the style of Kandinsky.

Thursday, October 11 - Last Thursday at College Grove Elementary the 2nd and 3rd grade music students performed patriotic songs for their parents and those attending the PTO meeting. Kindergarten and 1st grade music students are working on environmental sounds and steady beat. Rounds and partner songs are heard during 4th and 5th grade music class.

Friday, October 12 - Third grade science classes have been studying plants and animals. We are growing bush beans hydroponically after germinating the plants in a seed sprouter. Many of the students and their families have provided crayfish for us to study by catching them from the local creeks. Thank you, Daniel Callicoat and Annabelle Goodman for bringing in so many great specimens to school. Beetles will be arriving shortly and will round out our study of live animal specimens.

Monday, October 15 - The fourth and fifth grade students recently traveled to the Nashville Public Library to see the Shakespearean play, "A Midsummer's Night Dream." The troupe used marionettes and designed their own music and costumes to give those in attendance a glimpse into the lives of the characters Titania, Oberon, Hermia and Helena, to name a few. It was a good time and enjoyed by all. A special thank you goes to our librarian, Terri Hood who arranged this trip for us.

Tuesday, October 16 - College Grove Kindergarten classes are gearing up to take a field trip to Gentry Farms. They boys and girls are looking forward to picking out a plump orange pumpkin from the farm. They will take their pumpkin to school to measure it and count the seeds.

Wednesday, October 17 - The fifth grade students at College Grove attended a presentation by Jim Williams. The students learned about the effects of drug and alcohol and discussed the problems of bullying behavior. Students made a promise to stop bullying one another and to take a stand against violence in our school.

Thursday, October 18 - In the first grade we are busy learning about our family. We have learned that not all families are the same. We are also learning about writing sequence stories. In the hopes for cold weather and snow we are writing sequence stories about a snowman. Finally, our class would like to say thank you Mrs. Joyce Smith for visiting our classroom and talking about schools from long ago.

Friday, October 19 - We miss our butterflies! The second grade classes watched in amazement the complete metamorphosis of Painted Lady butterflies. We enjoyed observing them in a net hanging from the ceiling of our classroom for about a week. We then released them on a beautiful day. We miss the excitement of watching them each day, but we were happy to let them have their freedom. Wow! It was so much fun!

Southern Food & Funerals

By Angela Woodall

This past week I had the privilege and honor of attending a funeral of a co-worker. We work in law enforcement and he had a successful career spanning over 30 years. He was loved and respected by many throughout the state of Tennessee. He was only 52 years old.

I had been asked to stay behind after the funeral service and assist with getting the food ready. We knew that family and friends would be coming back after the burial. The outpouring of generosity was overwhelming, as you can image. People had brought everything from snack foods to sandwich trays to potato salad to cookies. People began pouring in with additional dishes such as green beans, fried chicken, chicken and dumplings and homemade chocolate meringue pies.

As my friend and I worked to prepare the food, I stopped and asked her "Do you think they have this much food at funerals in other places besides the South?" She replied, "I don't know, I'd like to believe not."

We ran out of tables and space quickly. The family and our friends returned and started to file into the kitchen. You could see a total transformation as they entered the door. Some sighed a sigh of relief as they viewed the spread. Some waited until their plates were piled high and they partook of the first bite. Then, you could see the comfort set in. There's definitely something about food after a funeral. I am thoroughly convinced it is medicine for the soul.

As we worked to replenish dishes and assist where needed I also discovered the fellowship and its duration. No one seemed to want to leave and that was okay. People ate and told stories of the friend and loved one they had lost. People recollected over old stories and tales. People laughed and loved but very few cried in that kitchen. That good ole southern food served its purpose and family to dispense. It was time to wrap everything up and send it home. As we cleaned up I also noticed something. Not that it was not appreciated it, but the majority of the sandwiches were still there, the bar-b-que lingered and we had potato chips for days but guess what was completely gone? The chicken and dumplings pan was cleaned as if someone had already washed it. The delicious (I had to try a slice) chocolate meringue pies were long gone. The green beans and potato salad had been wiped clean also. That good old Southern food had prevailed, nourished, comforted those in mourning. It had served its purpose well.

I am convinced that there's nothing like Southern food at a funeral. I would like to let myself believe that there's no other place in this world that this wonderful outpouring of service, love, and dedication exists. I know it helped and comforted me on that very sad day

Working To Recover

Perhaps you know him or at least someone like him. He is seventeen and a high school senior.

He has great grades, a girl friend and divorced parents. He lives with his mother and step-father while his biological father lives in another city. He does not always agree with his step-father or with his mother's discipline. Sounds pretty normal in today's world, doesn't it?

But at eighteen years of age, things for Greg Canada would never be normal again. You may remember Greg. He was an honor student at Powell High School in Knoxville where he was on the golf and tennis teams. When he lived in middle Tennessee he attended Ezell Harding Christian High School. You or your children may have gone to school with him. He was just like the other kids, just a normal teenager.

Greg decided to move to, Knoxville where he had grown up, and live with his dad. After all, there were familiar people, family and a love interest in Knoxville. Love can be a mighty strong pull.

All seemed to be going well for Greg until he and his girlfriend broke up. Like so many of us who need to let off steam, Greg got into his car and drove. On February 19, 2003, Greg drove too fast and ended up hitting a bridge, demolishing his car and causing a head injury so severe that Greg had to be brought back from near death more than once. His injury involves his entire right side with speech, memory, balance and walking affected. He was hospitalized for six months following the accident and has had multiple surgeries in the past four years.

Greg's mother, Linda, who was attending MTSU pursuing her Masters of Science in Nursing, put her life on hold and moved to Knoxville to become Greg's full-time nurse. She now also works as a school nurse at Knoxville Adaptive Learning Center and helps care for her sick and elderly parents.

Life has changed for Greg and Linda. Every mother's dream is for her children to be healthy and successful. Greg's success is measured in inches. While he can now, with great difficulty, walk a short distance, speak slowly, and is arduously catching up on his school work; Greg still has a long rough road ahead of him.

Greg and Linda live in a mobile home on Linda's parent's property. The design and space limitations of their trailer are obstacles to Greg's continuing rehabilitation. Many people believe Greg and Linda may be candidates for "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition." What a blessing it would be to have a workout space for Greg's therapy!

Greg may never recover to the point where he was before the accident but Greg can have a quality of life that will allow him to be independent. If you would like to help, write a letter to "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition," asking them to respond to Greg's need.

Laura On Life

By Laura Snyder

They Don't Know

There was once a TV show called Kids Say The Darnedest Things. Art Linkletter was the host of this show. Of course, I am not old enough to remember that show (pause to clear throat), but I have heard about it.

Mr. Linkletter would interview children and ask various questions that were guaranteed to make them say something that would get their parents in trouble. It Chapstick on her cat's butt because it was hilarious.

I would agree that kids do indeed say the darnedest things, but I believe that they do darned-er (more darnedest?) things. Things that defy explanation.

For example, what makes one kid suddenly jump up and body slam his brother while they are peacefully watching TV? Body slamming generally results in someone's head connecting with a hard object. Most of the time, it's the victim's head. When you ask why they did it, they will almost universally admit. "I don't know."

What makes a five-year want to glue everything to his wall whenever he gets his little hands on a glue stick? He says, "I don't know". Me neither. What makes a kid want to use permanent marker on all the light switches in the house? He says, "I don't know."

What makes a two-year old lock the bedroom door... from the inside...while he's still in it? If they could talk, they'd say, "I dunno." What makes them put a Lego up their nose or a pebble in their ear? "I dunno, I dunno!" Are they possessed by some demon; unable to stop themselves? Is there some mad puppeteer pulling their mental strings?

These children must know that if they throw the Frisbee onto the roof, they won't be able to play with it again, yet they insist on doing just that. They must know that if they wash the dog with their drink box, the dog will be sticky and they'll have to give him a real bath. Is it boredom that makes them do these things? I think that might be part of it. But of all the things they could choose to do while they are bored, why do they choose the "darnedest" things? Why don't they read a book or something? They'll tell you, "I don't know."

I got an e-mail from a woman who said that she caught her son putting looked chapped. Well, at least he had a good reason. One can only hope, however, that the Chapstick was used exclusively for the cat's butt.

At what point does reason kick in? I have two grown boys ages 23 and 19, who don't slurp their peas off the edge of their plate anymore. In fact they haven't used a glue stick in ages. They haven't tried to lick the beaters on my electric beater (while it was still beating) in a long time either. Of course that could just be because once you've done that sort of thing, you never want to do it again. They'd also tell you "I don't know" if you asked them why they used to do those things. So when did rational thought enter their brains? Because, if I knew that, I could at least have some time period to look forward to with my other three children.

I've thought a lot about this phenomenon and I think I might know the answer that parents would hear if kids weren't so worried about getting punished. When asked why, when waiting in line for the slide at the playground, they shucked down their pants and watered the bushes, they could say.... "Because I can."

"OLD SHOES BECOME UNBEARABLE"

By Cornelia Elmore

GOOD NEWS

WE, of the human race, thrive on it. We await to hear it for it makes our days happy ones. However, what we Americans read in print and hear every day on the television are mostly "sensational" things, rather than news of interest!!

Last night, for instance, there were two murders in once-quiet Franklin, Tennessee.

Long-ago sports hero O. J. Simpson makes noise again and again on media outlets. Why do people thrive and search for such trash each day? Is this happening in your family?

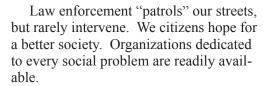

In Eagleville, Tennessee?

There are many households that absorb 3 hours of television news programming each day. None of the leading papers in Nashville and surrounding counties are locally owned; many are owned by media giant Gannet News Service. And how many of us can't wait to read the "cash register tabloids" and magazines about the stars whose lives are filled with misfortune, assault, murder, sexual perversions, infidelity, greed and financial corruption?

Ever wonder why several generations ago our children, after being exposed to this chaos, were frightened? Today, we can run away but we cannot hide from the fact of daily home invasions, human bodies burned in their own homes and jealous ex-spouses murdering each other. Multitudes are addicts in desperate need of illegal and prescription drugs.

Hopeless drunks (now socially dubbed "alcoholics") need their liquor and beer from morning until night.

No one individual can overcome an illicit habit without old fashioned "soul searching". One must make an honest decision to choose a better way of life, ceasing to wallow in self pity while continuously disappointing and disgracing friends and relatives.

A. P. & I have tolerated many things in our years together, but our love and compassion for our son, Keith, never wavers. We are optimists. We sincerely believe that our fellow man and our country can, and will, again become the best nation in the world.

It will require parents who make the "extra effort" to personally teach their children life lessons of morality and begin teaching what churches and schools have ceased to provide. It will require the majority of citizens living by the golden rule instead of hiding behind their weak religious codes of behavior.

Now THAT would be really GOOD NEWS!!

Heat the oven to 350 degrees. For each mummy, spread a tablespoon of pizza sauce onto half of a toasted English muffin.

Set olive slices in place for the eyes and add round bits of red or green bell peppers for the pupils.

Lay strips of cut cheese across the muffin for the mummy's wrapping. Play at different angles for a nice effect. Bake for about 10 minutes or until the cheese is melted.

Glue Ghost Necklaces

Supplies Needed:

pappines (less

White glue Waxed paper Hole punch String or yarn

1 small piece of black card stock

Working on waxed paper, spread a blob of white glue in the shape of a ghost. For the ghost's eyes, use two black circles cut from a piece of black card stock with a hole punch. Let the glue dry completely. This could take 48 hours. When your piece dries, the glue will be transparent. Gently peel it off the wax paper and pierce a small hole in the top of the ghost piece so you can string the ghost on some yarn or string. Boo...you have your ghost necklace!

Scrumptious Skeleton Cupcakes

Ingredients:
Chocolate frosted cupcakes
Miniature marshmallows
Black decorator gel
White icing
Ziploc bag

Top each with a miniature marshmallow for the skeleton's head. Use black decorator icing to make the eyes and mouth. Fill a Ziploc bag with white icing and snip the edge of the bag to create a decorator bag. Pipe a stick figure onto the cupcake and add two or three horizontal lines for ribs. Enjoy!
