Eagleville Offers Food, Fun And Festivities At The 4th Annual Fall Festival

BY MELISSA BUCHANAN

Eagleville ushered in the changing colors of the fall season with fun, food, and a family-friendly atmosphere at the 4th annual Fall Festival, held for its 2nd year at the Eagleville City Park. With the colors of the changing landscape as its background, the stage was alive with the twang of banjos and bluegrass music from several local bands- Rank Strangers, Hollow Creek, and the Ben Dillon Band. Live performances were also made by the Middle Tennessee Country Cloggers.

The kid-friendly atmosphere included an inflatable slide and obstacle course, and new this year- a petting zoo! The petting zoo featured exotic animals from Cripple Creek Farm, owned by Bill and Joyce Boner from Readyville, TN. Kids could ride a miniature pony, pet a sheep, goat, alpaca, llama, or even a camel! Big Ben, the latest addition to local Oak Haven Farm was also in attendance...all 2,800 lbs of him! This Belgian draft horse was bought by local owner Wes Fitzgerald from an Amish community in northern Ohio and stands a towering 19.1 hands tall. Thanks to the local CO-OP and Vice-Mayor Ronnie Hill for providing hours of entertainment with the ever popular watering trough filled with dry corn-the kids loved it! Congratulations to this year's costume contest winners. In age group one, a 1st place ribbon and $10 were awarded to Houston Fitzgerald (pirate), 2nd place ribbon/$5 Tyler Clark (karate), and 3rd place ribbon/$1 Shelby Mooneyham (Strawberry Shortcake). In age group two, a 1st place ribbon and $10 were awarded to Carly Jensen (fairy), 2nd place ribbon/$5 Sam Johnson (Cat in the Hat), and 3rd place ribbon/$1 Katlyn Vanatta (old lady). A big thanks to all the parents for bringing your children to this yearly event! Special ribbons were also awarded to everyone who participated.

This year's food fare included southern favorites and the ever popular catfish plate, making its comeback for the 2nd year in a row. The catfish were donated by Park Director, Jeff Mooneyham and his Dad, Vernon Mooneyham, who made the big catch at Woods Reservoir. Several volunteers were on hand to serve up the catfish with French fries, white beans, and cornbread. Another crowd favorite and returning for the 4th year in a row was local Tru-Line worker, Rangsy Sanouvong adding an Asian flare to the event with Laotian rice, egg rolls, and lo mein. Again this year, it was a complete sell out!

Even though the local landscape was ablaze with fall colors, we're still feeling the heat here in Middle TN. With temperatures on Saturday climbing into the mid-80's, folks beat the heat by taking advantage of the fresh squeezed lemonade (proceeds went to the park) and trips to the Hawaiian shaved ice booth, while others sat in the shade of the park pavilion to watch the live entertainment. There were around 30 unique vendors at this year's event, offering a variety of things from homemade crafts, jewelry, doll clothes, handmade soaps, and even airbrushed tattoos. Local churches were even present, with the Eagleville Methodist Church offering free popcorn and the Ladies Ministry from Eagleville Baptist offering on-site fall crafts for children to enjoy. A big "THANK YOU" to everyone who came out to join in the fun, we hope you make this a yearly event your whole family can enjoy!

Eagleville Candidates Attend Forums

On Thursday, Oct. 2 Eagleville candidates for city council were invited to participate in a forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters and the Rutherford County Chamber of Commerce. The candidates were asked questions regarding the future of the community. The forum, held at the Rutherford County Courthouse was televised by Channel 19, the Murfreesboro TV station.

On Tuesday, Oct. 7, the candidates were invited again to participate in a forum sponsored by the Eagleville Times. This event was held at the Eagleville Community Center. The Eagle Roost Smokehouse & Grill provided food for the event.

Eagleville Candidate Statements

The Eagleville Times has given the Eagleville council candidates the opportunity to address some basic questions in preparation for the upcoming election.

Alan Ball

I am a candidate for councilman because I believe the city needs a change in leadership. Being on the outskirts of Murfreesboro we need to plan and grow along with our neighbors. We have been called the best kept secret in Rutherford County and Eagleville does shine with its School, Park and the support it receives from its citizens. I feel the city has not supported the taxpayers trust. We do not have a six month, one year, three year or five year plan for the city. We have not had police protection for many months. There have been issues with zoning compliance. We do not now have a grocery store. Sewage is becoming more of a problem everyday. There has been fraud and theft in the city office. Citizens feel they get little or nothing for their tax dollars. All of these issues will need to be addressed by the new City Council and they will have to plan much like any business to succeed as a City. Eagleville has many talented and loyal citizens who we as a council need to call on for advice and guidance. If elected I would propose that we utilize this talent pool by asking citizens to serve on specific committees and work with the council to address each individual need of the city. I believe with this input we can be put the city on a sounder financial footing and plan for the commercial and residential growth we need to sustain the City without additional tax increases. We have the opportunity with the new road to attract and encourage new businesses, such as a grocery store.

I plan to work towards the goals of have our having own police force, extending our tax base, implementing sound accounting practices in the city office, treating citizens with respect, and planning for growth in the city. I would appreciate your support on election day. Thank you.

William 'Wes' Fitzgerald

Why are you running for office?

I feel privileged to have health, family, and good friends to help guide everyday to make my life more meaningful. With that said, I feel I have a moral obligation to give back to our community and hopefully pass along some experience I've gained throughout the years. It is the responsibility of every citizen, not just to sit back and hopefully benefit, but instead to guide a new path so that our quality of living in Eagleville is the best it can be.

What do you hope to accomplish while you are in office?

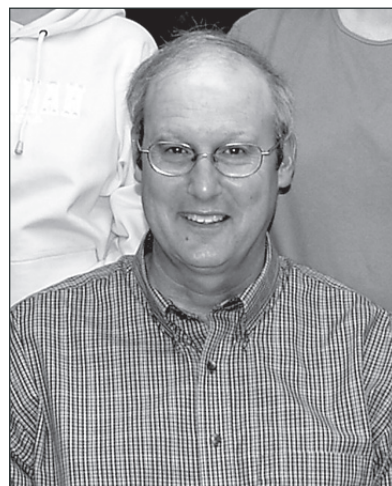

To create a positive community spirit that gives us all a sense of pride. After all, we are only renting our time in this life, until it's time to head to a better place. Anything is possible with a positive effort and a diligent attitude. Together, we can set a direction for our community that any town would envy.

In your opinion what are the biggest issues facing Eagleville today?

We have to search outside the box for new ideas and solutions to our problems. We're strapped with a declining tax base, and obviously finances do have a big influence in charting our course. We need to call on creative minds and use the experience of people who have "been there, done that" to move forward. Often it takes rattling the cages and bringing in outside ideas and thoughts to break up the complacency of what we call the "Good ole boy mentality." We have a good selection of candidates that have the ability to rock and roll.

What solutions would you suggest for solving some of the issues?

Problem solving begins with a collaborative effort of council and a working knowledge of what citizens concerns for our town are. Management of the issues begins at the head of the stream. Without the foresight and a clear direction for our city, the head of our stream is unable to neither motivate nor delegate a positive plan that is representative to the citizens of Eagleville. It's time to start a new and learn from mistakes. With your votes we can change the course of direction, have input, and grow this "Diamond in the Rough" for the benefit of all who reside here. I encourage the community to get involved, not as a police force, but as individual activists' to improve the quality of our city for all.

Ronnie Hill

I, Ronnie Hill, am seeking a fifth term on the Eagleville City Council because I feel this is the best way for me to make a positive difference in the town.

I am 54 years old and have been a resident of Eagleville since 1977. I have worked as a farm equipment dealer for 34 years and currently own and operate Farm Sales and Service in Eagleville and also farm. I am married to the former Gloria Wilson, and we have four children and three grandchildren.

I have the experience and the knowledge necessary to make the tough decisions that will have to be made by the next city council. I am not afraid of hard work, mental or physical. I don't believe in waiting for someone else to do something that I know needs to be done. Some examples in which I have taken the lead are having the ambulance building located in Eagleville, development of the city park and in submitting concerns to the district attorney and state investigators that led to the investigation into the misdeeds at city hall.

If I am re-elected, I intend to continue trying to get the most benefit for the citizens out of each of their tax dollars. I pledge to work to keep taxes as low as possible.

One of the most pressing needs for the city is a sewer system, and the city council needs to explore any option that might be available to get one. If not corrected, the lack of a sewer system will keep our downtown area from ever becoming what it potentially could be.

Another concern some of our citizens have expressed is more police protection. Because of our current financial situation, I believe we must continue relying on the Rutherford County Sheriff's Department to provide police protection for us right now. The department has increased its presence here, and the officers have been doing a good job in Eagleville. The current city council has been exploring establishing a sheriff's department substation here to further enhance the officers' presence.

Once we can afford it, I pledge to work toward having a well-run and adequate city police department.

New commercial development opportunities are on the horizon for the city with the completion of the new section of Highway 99 into town. This commercial development will bring in new tax dollars to help the town provide necessary services, such as a sewer system and police protection, to its citizens.

The city council must be a part of the planning process for this development because the new road will be one of the main gateways into our town.

I believe that a city council member should be prepared to spend more time working for the town than just the couple of hours required each month to attend the council meetings. During my years as a councilman, I have spent many hours working for the town and will continue to do so in the future.

I am fortunate in that my farm equipment dealership is near the center of town and that I live in town, so I am readily available when needed. I am available to discuss or answer questions about the city with anyone at any time at either my home or my business. You may drop by or call me at either place. My home phone number is 274-6044, and my business phone number is 274-2200.

I would like to continue working for you and appreciate your support and concern for our town. Thank you.

Donna Jensen

I am Donna Jensen, and I am running for a seat on the Eagleville City Council because the residents, including myself, have been through enough problems at city hall and we all deserve better.

I have been attending city council meetings for several years now, and the next step is to take a seat at the table myself.

I am asking Eagleville voters to allow me to represent them for the next four years. They can trust that I will treat them, their concerns and their opinions with the utmost dignity and respect. I view myself in this position, not as a politician, but as citizen doing her civil duty in community service.

If you elect me I will work to bring city government and citizens together to decide where we want our city to go and what we want our city to look like. I am willing to work with others and research all options to help find creative ways to finance what we decide we need and want.

I pledge to make sure city government is open and responsive to the people. To help accomplish this, I will seek a bigger and better place to hold city council meetings, so that citizens can hear what is going on and can also be heard. Also, I will work toward opening up a dialogue among city council members and the citizens so citizens can express their thoughts and ask questions about what is being done.

One project for the new city council will be to rewrite the city’s charter, which is the document that governs how the city is operated. I will work toward establishing a committee that will include citizens, council members, consultants and other people knowledgeable about city government to come up with a charter that best meets the needs of the city of Eagleville and its people.

Also, the new council will need to address the findings of the recent Tennessee Bureau of Investigation (TBI) investigation and the state comptroller’s audit report. I will recommend a committee to work to develop procedures for checks and balances to assure proper oversight of city finances and for managing all the city business.

I am 58 years old and have lived in Tennessee since 1990 and in Eagleville since 1995. My first job is my family. My husband, Art, and I have been married 42 years, and we have three children, nine grandchildren and one great grandchild.

I am retired now but have worked outside my home in a variety of areas, including retail, assembly, manufacturing, banking and healthcare. I have made and inspected telephones, assembled Caterpillar bulldozers, balanced bank tellers’ counterwork, and worked in healthcare for Medicare. My most recent employment was as a mail carrier for the Rockvale Post Office. I have volunteered for Hospice, Crisis Line, Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts.

Sam Tune

Why are you running for office?

Response; several people ask me to run, I declined then more people ask me to run. After very careful consideration I decided if the 50 or more people ask me to run to help make city decisions I would run for office of city council.

What do hope to accomplish while in office?

Response; money makes every house hold operate successful, the same for any business. In this case it is the city of Eagleville. We have got to re-establish a strong financial group of businesses in down town Eagleville, where local people can shop and encourage people from other cities to visit, eat and shop.

What do you see as the biggest problems facing Eagleville?

Response; citizens of the city of Eagleville paying city taxes and getting no services for their money. Policies and procedures not in place, the ones that are, are not followed properly. It appears the citizens have been ignored and not represented by the council.

What solutions would you suggest?

Response; start with east things that does not cost the tax payer any money. Form a merchants association made up of all businesses in the city and community, this will help promote business. Make sure there is a check and balance system in place, follow the city charter, make sure city ordinances are in place to promote and encourage a wholesome, clean city. Establish sub-committees made up of citizens and council members, hopefully this will establish a good working relationship with city government and its citizens. A little paint and clean up down town would not hurt anything, a proper working restroom in city hall would be nice.

I promise to up hold the charter, vote with a clear conscious and not be influenced by any person or group of people for their interest and personal gain.

If elected, I would like to see some plans made. We need to plan for the new road, this will bring on new business. We need a 1 year, 5 year, and a 10 year plan.

The city council should plan for the future, not wait and re-act when something happens.

And maybe the most important: encourage the citizens of Eagleville to attend city council meeting to see and hear first hand how their council runs their city.

CDC Says "Take 3" Steps To Fight The Flu
Flu is a serious contagious disease.

Each year in the United States, on average:

- More than 200,000 people are hospitalized from flu complications.
- 20,000 of those hospitalized are children younger than 5 years old.
- 36,000 people die from flu.

Take action to protect yourself and your loved ones from the flu.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) urges you to take the following steps to protect yourself and others from influenza (the flu):

1.) Take time to get a flu vaccine.

CDC recommends a yearly flu vaccine as the first and most important step in protecting against this serious disease.

While there are many different flu viruses, the flu vaccine protects against the three main flu strains that research indicates will cause the most illness during the flu season.

The vaccine can protect you from getting sick from these three viruses or it can make your illness milder if you get a different flu virus.

Getting a vaccine is very important for people at high risk for serious flu complications, including young children, pregnant women, people with chronic health conditions like asthma, diabetes or heart or lung disease, and people 65 and older.

People who live with or care for those at high risk should also get a flu vaccine to protect their high-risk contact.

2.) Take everyday preventive actions.

Cover your nose and mouth with a tissue when you cough or sneeze. Throw the tissue in the trash after you use it.

Wash your hands often with soap and water, especially after you cough or sneeze. Alcohol-based hand cleaners are also effective.

Try to avoid close contact with sick people.

If you get the flu, CDC recommends that you stay home from work or school and limit contact with others to keep from infecting them.

Avoid touching your eyes, nose or mouth. Germs spread this way.

3.) Take flu antiviral drugs if your doctor recommends them.

If you do get the flu, antiviral drugs are an important treatment option. (They are not a substitute for vaccination.)

Antiviral drugs are prescription medicines (pills, liquid or an inhaler) that fight against the flu by keeping flu viruses from reproducing in your body.

Antiviral drugs can make your illness milder and make you feel better faster. They may also prevent serious flu complications. This could be especially important for people at high risk.

For treatment, antiviral drugs work best if started soon after getting sick (within 2 days of symptoms).

Flu-like symptoms include fever (usually high), headache, extreme tiredness, dry cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose and muscle aches.

For more information, visit www.cdc.gov/flu or call 800-CDC-INFO.

A Step Back in Time

By Bobbie Sue Shelton-Lonas

Halloween, the time of year for dress up, make believe and trick or treating. Children look forward to this time of year. It's the fall season, which is the perfect time for wiener roast, hayrides and ghost stories.

Our home state of Tennessee is home to many stories of unexplained happenings and sightings. Weird stories or often referred to, as "ghost stories" seem to resurface every year near Halloween. Almost every community has at least one good "ghost story" that is often repeated through the years, especially near Halloween.

Chapel Hill a neighboring community to Eagleville has their story of unexplained lights on the railroad tracks. Several stories have been told about this light, one is which, many years ago on a rainy and miserable night, torrential rains had weakened a section of track. A man was sent out with a lantern to warn the train coming from Nashville of the problem. As he signaled the approaching train, the man slipped off the muddy bank, falling onto the tracks, where his head was severed by the train wheels. His head was never found and many believe that the light is the man's spirit searching for his long lost head.

Another famous ghost or witch story is about the Bell Witch in Robertson County, Tennessee. In a small town, Adams Tennessee, a spirit terrorized John Bell and his family, 1817 through 1821. Although the Bell Family was the target for most of the verbal and physical abuse, the spirit who identified herself as the "Witch of Kate Batts", was seen and heard all over Robertson County. Kate Batts had been a neighbor to the Bell Family before her death and she and Mr. Bell had some serious disagreements over the years. It is believed her spirit sought revenge with the Bell family as well as the entire county. True or not, this story has been retold for several generations.

Other strange stories that have been told for years are those of area churches that have Bibles that cannot be removed from the building. There are also reported sightings of spirits and strange noises in old homes and buildings in neighboring communities. The cause of some of these happenings has been discovered and some have not.

Our small community, Eagleville, also has its own eerie story that has been passed down for about 113 years. But unlike the previous stories, this story was proven to be TRUE. This is a ghoulish story of how an Eagleville doctor whose activities as a grave-robbler caused Governor Bob Taylor to call out the militia and the State Legislature to tighten the law against unlawful disinterment of bodies.

The Eagleville community has had several physicians over the years but only one who brought statewide attention to our small community. In 1895 soon after the local physician, Dr. Horton Blount Hyde moved to Nashville, another doctor by the name of C. B. Heimark arrived in Eagleville and opened a practice. He was a graduate of University of Nashville Medical School and did his internship at the Davidson County Asylum. Dr. Heimark was described as a young, good-looking medium sized man, about 5 feet 6 inches tall, evidently of Norwegian ancestry and his walk was described as "like a coon".

Although people in the neighborhood liked the doctor, and he built up a good practice, some of the Eagleville citizens wondered at some of his ways. For instance, though he boarded with the McGowan Family, he rented a little cottage in the town and always kept it locked. At regular intervals he would also make night trips to Nashville in a wagon, hauling some mysterious boxes. Changing horses in Nashville, he would return before morning ready to be about his profession as a physician in the neighborhood. It has been said that the tollgate keeper noticed his travels at night. The doctor hired a black man and a boy name Jody McGowan to work for him in some strange business. His strange activities went on for about three or four years. Then folks began to notice that some of the doctor's patients who weren't critically ill would die overnight, after the doctor's visit. They began to suspect there was really something strange about him when the mystery was suddenly solved.

It was discovered that a new grave in the Russell Cemetery, about ½ mile north of Eagleville had been desecrated. Some clothing and hair was found on a fence near the grave where Mrs. Pruitt was recently buried. It was apparent that her grave was empty and the search for the body began.

After discovering the robbery of Mrs. Pruitt body, Eagleville residents who had recently buried loved ones began to wonder about their graves. Those who could not stand not knowing, had their relatives' graves reopened. "Were their graves empty, too?" was the unspoken question of others.

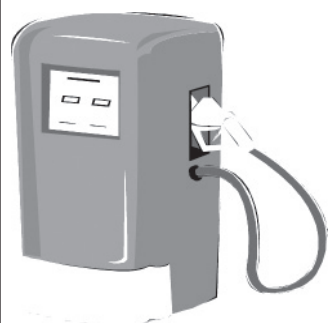

Two more bodies were discovered missing at area cemeteries. Stolen, were the remains of Stephen Bennett Sr. from the Bennett Cemetery on Mt. Vernon Road and Mrs. Eva Jane Corbitt also from the Russell Cemetery.

Stephen Bennett Jr. particularly wanted to know what had become of his father's remains. He also had the resources to do something about it. The younger Bennett was a Nashville police officer. Nashville investigators put the pressure on their informants, and on Monday, January 17th, the police received a tip. Detective Pat Hanifin learned that the body of Mrs. Pruitt had been moved earlier that day to a concealed point about 50 feet off Bramet's Lane in Nashville. After a three-hour search, her body was found and taken to Hogan's Funeral Monument for Mr. Steve Bennett and other family members.

Home, where it was prepared for reburial. A reporter from a Nashville newspaper uncovered the motive behind the theft. Back roads were used to take the body from Eagleville to the Franklin Road area and then to Nashville, where it was delivered to a medical school. But word of the theft had already sped – faster than the mysterious carriage – to the college. Initially, college personnel refused the body and "there was a commotion," the reporter said. After the argument, the body was accepted and the grave robber was paid his $15.00. Bennett soon learned of the medical school incident and obtained search warrants for all three of Nashville's medical school morgues. However, extensive searches failed to recover his father's remains. On Wednesday, January 19th, a fourth body was discovered missing, and that night, police got their first important break in the case. They took a suspect, Dr. C. B. Heimark, into custody for questioning. He was held over 48 hours for surveillance and on the following Friday warrants were obtained. Meanwhile, a near lynch-mob mentality developed in Eagleville and surrounding communities. The excitement and indignation at Eagleville seemed to grow rather than diminish and a similar state of affairs had developed in the Chapel Hill and Salem neighborhoods where unmistakable evidences of wholesale grave robbing had just been discovered. At that point Detective Hanifin received another tip: The bodies of Mrs. Corbitt and Bennett had been shipped to a medical school in Burlington, Vermont. Both bodies had been hidden in a crate marked "books" and sent by train to Vermont. An urgent telegram was sent to Burlington asking that the bodies be sent back. Hanifin received a wire back: "Send $120 first." The $120 in question was a refund to the Burlington member of the grave-robbing team. He had paid his Nashville connection $110 for the corpses. The remaining $10 was for shipping.

Hanifin confiscated the bodies when they were returned to Nashville and a huge, angry crowd witnessed the reburial. Hanifin stated that the people of Eagleville are greatly excited and made open threats of violence against Dr. Heimark. Due to the threats, Heimark remained in custody in Nashville.

An area resident stated, "there hasn't been such a country gathering since as the day they brought the bodies of Mrs. Corbitt and Steve Bennett back from Vermont. The bodies arrived in Murfreesboro by train and were met by two horse drawn hearses" he said. "Folks crowded to see them and buggies followed the hearses all the way to the Cemeteries at Eagleville. (Neither Mrs. Jane Corbitt nor Mrs. Pruitt have a grave marker in the Russell Cemetery. Mr. Bennett's original grave marker has deteriorated. His name and dates are now included on a family monument in the Bennett Cemetery.)

Detective Pat Hanifin, with the aid of Sheriff J. J. Lee, began a little unearthing on their part and dug up some facts on the ghoulish activities of Dr. Heimark. It seems that an Eastern concern had contracted to pay him $45.00 for each "stiff" he furnished them, to be sold to medical schools for dissection. So far as was known, he hadn't furnished any bodies of white persons other than the three discovered, but as Mr. Gillespie put it, a black woman was said to have died of a harmless ailment the following morning after Dr. Heimark's visit. That led to speculation as to how many unknown victims the doctor might have had. He admitted that he kept the bodies in the cottage he rented until he could take them to Nashville to ship away.

Dr. Heimark was arrested and arraigned before Squire R. S. Brown. The law at that time made it a misdemeanor to disinter a body for unlawful purposes. Dr. Heimark paid a fine of 150.00 for each of the three bodies and also served six months in jail. The black man who helped Dr. Heimark escaped. Jody McGowan was identified as the other helper in the robbing of Steve Bennett's grave by an old "arctic overshoe" that stuck in the mud. His shoe had been torn and his mother had previously sewed it up with needle and thread. They were able to trace the shoe back to him. Pressure of public sentiment let him go free with only a fine.

The case attracted such statewide attention that the Legislature in 1899 passed a law making it a "felony punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a period of not less than two or more than five years for any person who removes any dead body or disinters any dead body from its place of interment for the purpose of selling or otherwise disposing of same to any person, company or corporation for the purpose of dissection or otherwise mutilating said body without first having obtained the consent of the family or relatives of the deceased.

After Dr. Heimark served his jail term, he left this area. Recently I discovered that Dr. C. B. Heimark and his wife Maria* arrived in a small town, Wendell, Minnesota in 1902. He was appointed the Chairman of The Board of Health and was also the County Coroner of Grant County, Minnesota. He built a good practice, and advertised himself as a physician and surgeon. His business card also indicated that he spoke Norwegian and would answer calls promptly day or night. He apparently left the Grant County Minnesota area in 1906 and it's unknown at this time where he went. While in Wendell Minnesota, he and his wife had a daughter who died as an infant. According to an employee of the Grant County Historical Society Museum in Elbow Lake, Minnesota, no known strange events occurred during his tenure in Minnesota.

*Dr C. B. Heimark came to Eagleville as a single man. It is assumed that he married after he left the area.

Mr. Steve Bennett and Mrs. Eva Corbett are the ancestors of many of our Eagleville residents. No known information on Mrs. Pruitt's family.

THOMAS MAUPIN – SILVER STARS WINNER

BY BOBBIE SUE SHELTON-LONAS

On August 23rd, 2008, Thomas Maupin was a contestant in the audition for the Health Spring Silver Stars Contest in Nashville. The purpose of this event, sponsored by Health Spring Inc., was to recognize the talent of 'seniors' who possibly had been over-looked in other talent shows because of their age. The contest was open to musicians, singers and dancers over the age of 60. Solos, duets and groups were welcomed.

When Thomas signed up for the audition, he had planned for his grandson, Daniel Rothwell, to provide banjo music for him to dance by. It turned out that the audition was held at the Cadillac Ranch on Broad Street and Daniel wasn't old enough to gain admission in order to accompany him.

The talent was outstanding at this event. Out of the group of more than one hundred, who auditioned, ten finalists were to be named. Thomas was notified in September that he was selected as one of those top ten. News, he could hardly believe. On October 4th, the finals were held at the historic Ryman Auditorium in Nashville with an audience of nearly fourteen hundred people. Band members, Daniel, along with his father, Danny Rothwell and John Nicholson provided music for Thomas to buck dance.

Thomas had a large family support group who accompanied him for the finals. His wife Beulah, brothers, sisters, children, grandchildren and other family members and friends were on hand to see him be named the winner and receive the grand prize of $5,000. A total of $7500 was awarded to the first, second and third place winners. $2,000 was presented to 2nd place Jeannie Gleaves, a pianist from Nashville. Third Place, Uncle Doc Wilhite, a banjo player/singer from Calhoun, Kentucky, won $500.

After almost fainting when announced the winner, Thomas said he is still in shock. After being picked one of the top ten, he was hoping he'd get in the top three of the finals, never expecting to be the first place. Thomas was very complimentary of his band, especially his grandson, the old tyme picker Daniel Rothwell. Thomas, as well as grand ole opy stars, Brenda Lee and George Hamilton IV congratulated and expressed compliments on Daniel's outstanding banjo playing.

The Maupin and Rothwell families were on the road again this past weekend. They traveled to the Tennessee Fall Homecoming at the Appalachian Museum in Norris, Tennessee. The four-day event featured authentic southern Appalachian bluegrass, gospel, folk and old-time country music, along with buck dancing and clogging, continuously on five stages. Demonstrations showing how people lived and worked during pioneer times were spaced over the 60-acre village and farm complex.

Thomas graciously demonstrated his style of dancing to the large crowd in attendance. Daniel was thrilled and excited when asked to exhibit his banjo playing on the main stage. Each of them received a great ovation and Daniel received very complimentary comments from Raymond Fairchild, a world-renowned banjo picker from East Tennessee.

Daniel, the old tyme picker, will be playing at Larry's Grand Ole Garage, Saturday night, October 18th in Madison. It is a free event and worth the drive. He'll also be appearing at the Fall Fest with Jesse McReynolds, at the Pick Inn on the 24th and 25th of October. Jesse and his late brother, Jim, formed the bluegrass- pioneering band, Jim and Jesse around 1947. Daniel and his mom, Deana will be traveling to Florida for his therapy the first two weeks in November.

Congratulations, Thomas, and to your accompanying musicians, Daniel, Danny and John. Your friends in Eagleville know you are the best. We're just glad when others recognize it also.

The Eagleville JROTC Program has started the 2008-2009 school year off with a bang. We began the year with fifty - two cadets enrolled in our program. This is an enrollment increase of two cadets compared to last year. Later, we kicked the school off with our annual Canoe trip on the Buffalo River at the Grimes Canoe Base near Flatwoods, TN on Saturday, 6 September 2008. Fun was had by all that attended. Since then, all of the JROTC teams have already started practicing and the Raiders have competed in two competition. So far, the Raiders have already won trophies in their first two Rutherford County Raider Meets. Go Raiders! We also conducted a fund raiser in support of the County and Willie Nelson Hepatitis C Charity Concert on 4 October 2008 just before our Fall Break began. The cadets and Booster Club members did an outstanding job in providing this service to our extended community. Stay tuned to this newspaper to receive further updates.

Eagleville Cub Scouts Earn Highest Honor

Eagleville Cub Scout Pack 123 recently honored four boys who have earned Cub Scouting's highest honor, the Arrow of Light. Jake Bolden, James Jones, Alex Nippers and Will Price have all earned this honor through hard work and diligence. The Arrow of Light is awarded to boys who have worked steadily to progress through the Webelo rank, accumulating pins that show they have mastered each area. These boys have earned pins for Citizenship, Forestry, Geology, Scientist, Handyman, Artist and many others over the past two years. Three of the boys (Jake, Alex and Will) have earned Super Achiever status, meaning they have earned all 20 Webelo pins. These boys have participated in activities such as camping, canoeing, day camp, the pinewood derby, and service activities, and are now ready to graduate to a Boy Scout troop. Quentin Bolden, Webelos den leader, has put in many hours guiding these boys through their last Cub Scout years.

Shawn Barnes, adviser to the Boy Scout honor society the Order of the Arrow, graciously performed a ceremony honoring these boys and marking their ability to cross over to Boy Scouting.

The Tigers (1st grade), Wolves (2nd grade), Bears (3rd grade) and Webelos (4th and 5th grade) of Pack 123 salute these boys and are very proud of their achievements. We'd love to recruit more boys into our pack, so if you know an interested potential Scout (1st-5th grade boy), please call Melissa Price, Committee Chair, at 368-3312.

Little Stories About You & Me
By Nancy Allen

The Fire

"Mommy, Fire!" screamed my four year old son as he ran in the back door. We lived in a house that had a vacant lot beside it. Our two boys ages 4 and 7 had been allowed to play on this property. They built a fort and their daddy helped them set up a tent where they pretended they were camping. Wood was stacked in the middle of the campsite where the "pretend" fire was supposed to be. Although the boys were warned against any use of matches whatsoever, on that day, the warning was forgotten.

Our older son had gone to school and his daddy had gone to work. I was cleaning the kitchen and washing clothes. We had a quiet neighborhood and I thought I knew what my child was doing in his "pretend campsite." Apparently, he had decided he needed a real fire. He took matches from the house. When he struck the match it burned his finger and he dropped it. The sage field only took one spark. The whole place went up in flames. When I looked out the back door I saw flames sweeping over the field about 4 feet high.

My first thought was, I have to put this fire out. I threw two quilts in the bath tub and soaked them with water. I dragged them outside and began throwing them over the flames. My efforts subdued the flames on our side of the field. But, the flames were moving toward our neighbor's house. Someone called the fire department, and someone at my husband's work heard the call for our address and told him his house was on fire. Soon, the fire department and my husband were there fighting the fire.

When the fire was out, the entire field was burned black. The fort and tent were ashes. My quilts were black with soot. Our younger son was wide eyed and sober and to this day he doesn't like camping.

The Eagleville Volunteer Fire Department answered approximately 65 calls last year, about half being brush fires. Fire Chief David Martin said most house fires originate because of faulty electrical wiring. Brush fires are caused by a variety of things. Last year a combine threw sparks that caught a field on fire.

At present Eagleville has one woman and ten men volunteer firefighters. Mr. Martin said brush fires have been fewer this year compared to last year when the weather was much dryer.

Margaret’s Helpful Hints

Rub scissors with butter to cut up marshmallows.

If a cake sticks to the pan after baking, simply set the pan over a pot of boiling water for a minute or two. The cake will pop out of the pan nice and neat.

You won’t waste syrup or honey if you first dip your measuring cup in flour. Sticky mixtures will slide out easily and completely.

ORANGE JUICE CAKE A Favorite Recipe

- 1 pkg yellow butter cake mix
- 1 pkg instant vanilla pudding mix (small package)
- 1 cup orange juice
- ½ cup oil
- 4 eggs
- ½ cup nuts

Grease bundt pan. Pour chopped nuts evenly over bottom. Mix remaining ingredients and pour over nuts. Bake in preheated oven at 325° for 50 to 60 minutes. Don’t overcook.

GLAZE

Bring to a boil and boil for 2 minutes

- 1 cup sugar
- ½ cup orange juice
- 1 stick butter or margarine

Punch a few holes in the cake with an ice pick. This allows the glaze to seep into the cake.

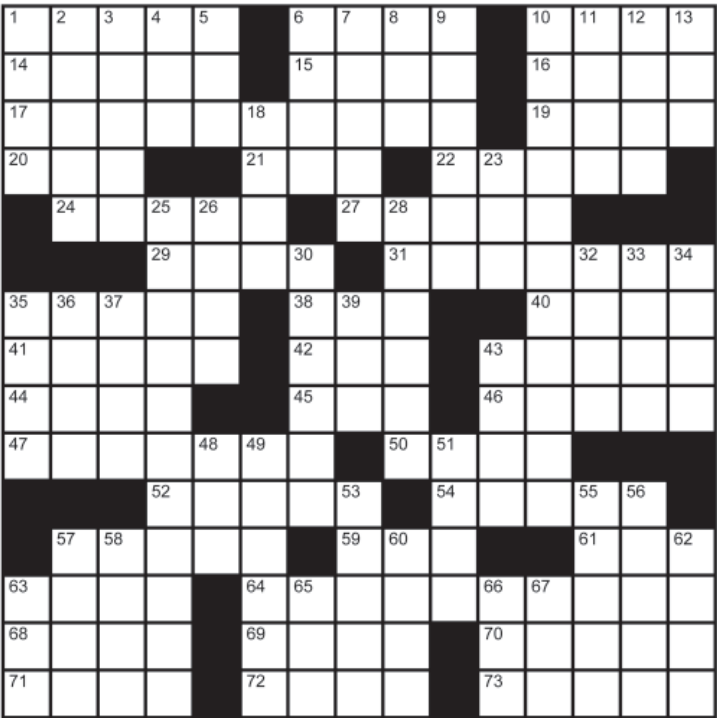

Pour glaze over hot cake in pan. Let set for 30 minutes and remove cake from pan.
